5,000 Turn out for Wallace Rally at Cape

By JERRY OBERMARK
C A P E

GIRARDEAU—Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, third party presidential candidate, criticized the Republican and Democratic parties in a speech here this morning.

A crowd estimated at more than 5,000 persons cheered enthusiastically as Wallace spoke out for states rights and criticized the two major parties on major issues.

Wallace told the crowd that he expects to win the presidency in November.

"Yes, we can win. It's not just a Wallace phenomenon, it's you the people and people like you all over the country.

"We're talking about phisosophy of government, not one man. We have the masses of people for us. They feel that they have lost any say in how the government is run.

"This is a people's movement," Wallace said.

Wallace appealed to all voters in Missouri to cast their ballot for him because property ownership and the free enterprise system are under attack.

He charged that the federal government has taken over control of schools and businesses and is destroying the people's right to control domestic institutions.

"When I'm president, I'm going to turn back absolute control of your public schools to the individual states," he exclaimed.

He blamed the Republicans for taking away states rights in education, noting that U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren was appointed to the court during the Eisenhower Administration.

"Don't let the Republicans tell you they will give back states rights. They're the ones who took them away," Wallace said.

He pointed out that both Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon have supported the opening housing law, adding that he would have the law repealed when he is president.

On farm policy Wallace advocated the parity be raised from 70 per cent to 85 or 90 per cent. He charged that neither major party has done much for farmers in recent years and advocated better use of existing farm laws.

Referring to law and order, Wallace blasted "anarchists" and said that some newspapers in praising demonstrators "have created a Frankenstein and now the chickens are coming home to roost."

He said that as president he would give more support to the police and firemen, adding that he thought the Chicago police acted "mighty restrained" in dealing with the demonstrators at the Democratic convention last month.

He criticized the pending gun control legislation, saying that if it passed it would give the "thugs" and advantage over private citizens.

The candidate said that as president he would have the attorney general remove every Communist from defense plants.

Answering charges from Republican and Democratic leaders that he knows nothing about foreign policy, Wallace remarked:

"What do the Republicans and Democrats know about it? They spend $122 billion . . . and now we have less friends than we ever had."

He said that as president he would tell the European allies that they would have to help the United States with munitions, money and manpower and to stop trading with the North Vietnamese.

If the allies would not do this, he continued, then "I would cut off their foreign aid and make them pay their debts since World War I."

He reiterated his stand on the Paris peace talks, expressing hopes that they will succeed, but adding that he did not think they would.

As president, should the talks fail to bring peace in Vietnam, he would confer with the Joint Chiefs of Staff on whether the war could be won by use of conventional weapons, and if it could be won, would push for victory.

He called the raising of the Viet Cong flag on college campuses and advocation by some colleges professors for a Viet Cong victory in the name of academic freedom "are nothing short of treason."

"We're going to shake the eye teeth of the liberals in both parties and return sanity to the American government," Wallace said.

Following his speech Wallace was guest of honor at a $25 a plate luncheon here. He left Cape Girardeau by airplane for Kansas City at noon.

Wallace has completed an eight-month effort to meet the qualifications as a third-party candidate for the ballots of all 50 states.

He talked by telephone Tuesday night to 700 of his followers at a state convention in Seattle, Wash., the final state in which he met the ballot requirement.

Wallace has been certified on the ballots of only 45 states but has met the qualifications in all, an accomplishment that required the signatures of nearly three million persons.

In Ohio, however, his certification awaits a ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court, expected Oct. 7.

Sun Airline Crash Injures 3

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) - Three persons were injured Tuesday night when a light plane crashed at the end of a runway at Barkley Airfield near here, the Mo-Crocken County Sheriff's Department reported.

The department first reported that all those aboard the twin-engined Ceasna 402 had been killed.

Those injured in the crash were identified as David Barton, 21, of Benton, Ill., Hugh Robertson of St. Louis, and Terry Coan, 27, of Wildwood, Ill.

Barton was identified as the pilot and Coan as the co-pilot.

All three were taken to Lourdes Hospital here, but were not believed to be injured seriously.

The flight orginated in St. Louis, stopped in Cape Girardeau, Mo., and was taking off from here for Louisville, Ky.

Robertson is an executive of the airlines. The firm recently expanded its service to several points in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana.

It was not known immediately why the plane went down.

Pilot Knob to Relive Battle

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The famed Civil War battle of Pilot Knob in which an estimated 1,400 troops were killed will be re-enacted at the Iron County town Sept. 28.

The Missouri Tourism Commission announced today more than 100 men wearing Civil War uniforms and using Civil War cannon will stage the re-enactment.

The same day Will W. Davis, director of the State Tourism Commission, will dedicate a marker commemorating the unidentified soldiers who lost their lives there.

Federal troops led by Gen. Thomas Ewing are credited with staving off an attack by Confederate Gen. Sterling Price which headed off his march on St. Louis.

In a bloody 15 minutes, Gen. Price lost about 1,200 of his men in a headon charge against the entrenched federal troops, who lost about 200 men.

Sheppard Faces 2 Suits

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) - Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard and the Youngstown Osteopathic Hospital have been named in two wrongful death suits totaling over $1 million. The suits were filed within 10 days of each other.

Martin L.Duffy filed suit in Mahoning County Common Pleas Court Tuesday for $685,000, claiming negligence in the death of his wife, Mary, last May 16, Duffy is fire chief in nearby Liberty Township.

Duffy contends Sheppard failed to perform proper post-operative care for his wife, who died 16 hours after the operation. He said the hospital was negligent in selecting Sheppard for its staff since he had not practiced in 10 years.

On Sept. 7, Mrs. Marcia Lepez filed a $530,000 suit against Sheppard and the hospital. She said her husband, Samuel died following a spinal operation performed by Sheppard on Aug. 7.

Sheppard, who spent nearly 10 years in the Ohio Penitentiary, joined the hospital staff this summer. He was convicted in 1954 of the bludgeon death of his first wife, Marilyn, in their suburban Cleveland home.

A federal court ruled that Sheppard did not get a fair trial. He was acquitted in a second trial.

U.S. Issues Warning to Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States has told the Soviet Union that any attempt to use force against West Germany would be met with "immediate allied response."

A State Department spokesman made this statement Tuesday in reply to a Soviet note to West Germany last July in which it raised the possibility that under two articles of the U.N. charter the Soviet Union could use force against the Bonn government.

Robert J. McCloskey, State Department spokesman, issued the statement, but offered no explanation as to why it was being made more than two months after the original Soviet message.

Neither of the two articles, "nor the Soviet Union or other Warsaw Pact members any right to intervene by force unilaterally in the Federal Republic of Germany," the statement said.

Urges Caution On Siding Sale By Telephone

Richard Pinkerton, executive vice president and general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, today warned local residents to use caution concerning the sale by telephone of aluminum siding.

The Chamber office has received reports from residents who have been contracted by telephone about buying the siding. The calls have originated from Memphis, Pinkerton said.

The caller tells the resident that the firm is interested in using the person's house as a model for future siding sales in the area.

Pinkerton said residents should contact local siding merchants to compare prices before signing a contract with the Memphis firm, whose prices are expensive.

Three Injured in Highway Accidents

Two single-vehicle accidents and a three-car accident on area highways resulted in three persons being hospitalized, one with a broken neck.

A car driven by Olin Friant, 41, Short Hill, N. J., went out of control on wet pavement at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 61, five miles south of Hayti, the highway patrol reported.

The car struck a concrete culvert. Sustaining a broken neck to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital at Hayti and transferred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis

A three-car collision at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 84, four miles west of Hayti, resulted in facial cuts and minor injuries to Linda Shelby, 16, Caruthersville. She was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital.

A car owned by Maudean Bradford, Bragg City, was parked on the shoulder, when a car driven by Morris Fisher, 17, Wardell, stopped beside it, troopers said. Miss Shelby attempted to stop her car, which skidded into the parked vehicle and knocked it into the side of the Fisher car, troopers said.

In a one-vehicle accident today at 12:15 a.m., two miles south of Old Appleton on Highway 61, a truck driven by Melvin Reed, 30, Sullivan, went out of control on the wet pavement, troopers said.

The truck was passing another vehicle and skidded off the road into a creek bed and overturned, the patrol reported.

Reed received internal injuries, scratches and bruises and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape Girardeau.

Muskie Cancels Rally Appearance

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Democratic vice presidential candidate, has been forced to cancel plans to appear here Sept. 28 as the featured speaker at the annual Bootheel Democratic Rally.

The cancellation announcement was made by State Sen. J. F. Patterson of Caruthersville, chairman of the Bootheel Democratic Club.

Sen. Muskie was forced to cancel his appearance here because of a misunderstanding of the time of the rally, Patterson said.

The vice presidential candidate had previously been scheduled to appear at an evening meeting in Iowa on Sept. 28 and had accepted the invitation to appear here Sept. 28, thinking the rally was scheduled in the afternoon, Patterson explained.

Replacing Sen. Muskie as keynote speaker will be Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who had previously been scheduled to introduce the vice presidential candidate.

The rally begins with a dinner at the Armory at 7 p.m.

Democratic candidates for state offices and incumbent state officials are expected to attend the rally.

Patterson stated that a large attendance is expected this year since the 10th Congressional District has been expanded. More than 1,000 persons have attended rallies in the past.

Tickets for the rally have been printed and state that Sen. Muskie will be the featured speaker. Tickets may be obtained from the chairmen of the Democratic committees of each county in the 10th District.

Sikeston and Scott County residents may buy tickets at the Ferrell Coal Co., 326 East Malone, or from Bill Lewis.

Mississippi County residents should contact Bob Hearnes of Charleston.

Other chairman in neighboring counties are:

Senate Rejects Gun Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected today an amendment to the firearms control bill to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., calling the proposal an anticrime and not an antigun measure, offered it as an amendment to a bill barring interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns.

But it was defeated 55 to 31.

Registration and licensing were strongly urged by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as part of the firearms control legislation he submitted to Congress.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., made his first appearance in the Senate chamber since his brother was slain last June to vote for the Tydings amendment.

He came in as the debate over the controversial proposal was nearing an end. He took no part in it and sat with his chin in his hand.

But the Senate did tack onto the bill an amendment that would make a person using a gun in a federal crime of violence liable to a sentence ranging up to life in prison.

This was adopted Tuesday prior to the opening of debate today on the most controversial issue over the control bill: whether to amend it to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

The registration proposal by Tydings was rejected by the House and the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier in the year when those bodies generally limited the measure to barring the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns.

The life sentence would be possible for people convicted of carrying a gun while committing such crimes as rape, arson, murder, kidnaping, burglary, theft, racketeering and extortion in a federal jurisdiction.

Assassination of a president also was specified.

The amendment was proposed by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., and was passed by voice vote after Sen. Thomas J. Dodd., D-Conn., said he knew of no opposition.

Another amendment, also adopted Tuesday by voice vote, would prohibit the confiscation by a government agency of any legally held and used firearm.

Sen. Daniel Brewster, D-Md., said there was nothing in the current bill that would allow confiscations but there is widespread concern among gun owners that stricter firearms controls could lead to that.

The Senate also accepted a provision making an exception to an over-all ban on over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns to residents of another state.

The exception, written into the bill by the Senate Judiciary Committee, permits sales to residents of adjoining states if they comply with the laws of both states.

Rejected 45 to 42 was an amendment by Dodd to tighten a requirement for dealers.

Shrimp, Ice Cream Taken

F. L. Cowan of Pharr, Tex., driver of a tractor - trailer truck, reported today to police that last night someone had taken 12 boxes of shrimp from his truck parked near the Sikeston Diesel Shop, 106 Roberts.

The truck had broken down and was awaiting repairs.

Revisions Expected for Tax Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who is president or which party controls the House, the complicated and much amended tax code is due for a searching study and possible revision next year.

Both Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., who is in line to be chairman if the Republicans take over the House, say they favor a full-scale review of the Internal Revenue Code.

In separate interviews, both said they would put the review high on the committee's order of business and were prepared to schedule weeks, possibly months, of hearings.

Although some minor modifications were made in the code in connection with the 1964 tax reductions, there has been no extensive review of the tax laws since 1954.

Over the years a host of special provisions have been attached to the code, many of which are said by critics to be loopholes for the well-to-do and the well-advised.

Demands were made in Congress earlier this year in connection with passage of the 10 per cent income surtax for revisions to allow for additional revenue without a general tax increase.

But the Treasury pleaded against what promised to be controversial and drawn-out study of the code at the time because of what it said was the urgent need for immediate passage of the surtax.

The Treasury did promise to recommend to Congress possible changes in the law. Congressional leaders don't expect the recommendations until after the November elections.

There has been no official disclosure of what the Treasury may recommend, but it is not expected to call for abolition or drastic reduction of the controversial 27½ per cent of depletion allowance.

Other likely subjects for review include:

—Revisions in the capital gains tax, including possible changes in when it would be imposed and on the length of time assets can be held before straight income tax is applied in place of the capital gains tax.

—Limitations on income splitting within a family. Revision of estate and gift taxes so as to make it less attractive to give away property during lifetime in order to lower the estate tax ultimate heirs will pay.

—Tightening the regulations on tax-exempt foundations, which have already been the subject of extensive congressional studies.

—In general, changes designed to lighten the tax burden at the lowest end of the income scale. A precedent of sorts may have been set this year when the lowest brackets were exempted from the surtax.

This committee has selected a format for the recording of information and plotted the various areas in which the canvessers will work.

A copy of the canvass card will appear in the Daily Standard prior to Oct. 13. Residents of Sikeston may fill in the desired information on this facsimile and tape it to the door or mail box on that Sunday in order to facilitate the work of the canvessers.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If you think the Wallace driver for the presidency does not have the Democrats worried, you were not in attendance at the New Madrid County fish fry and barbecue Saturday afternoon.

It seems to us that the problem for the State ticket and for Tom Eagleton's success in November is to impress on the voters the need for them to fix an X in the Circle under the Statue of Liberty which heads the Democrats ticket and then go across to the American independent ticket and put an X in the square opposite the name of Wallace.

CHICAGO: A GREAT CITY

(Excerpts from a Chicago Tribune Editorial)

Into this orderly city was introduced an element youthful revolutionaries dedicated to what Staughton Lynd, the New Left professor, has called "the politics of confrontation." There may have been some harmless students among them, devoted to the causes of Sen. McCarthy or Sen. McGovern, or merely linked by common opposition to the war in Vietnam. But it was the professional agitators, attached to one form or another of the Marxian superstition and desirous of overthrowing the political and social order, who took charge, called the signals, and whipped up an emotional challenge to civil order.

The voices on the loudspeakers in the parks were those of Tom Hayden, a founder of the radical Students for a Democratic society, who reduced Columbia university to a shambles last spring; of David Dellinger, self-styled non-Soviet Communist, who organized the march on the Pentagon last October, and of Jerry Rubin, head of the Youth International party. These revolutionaries came to Chicago with the design of disrupting the Democratic convention and of taking over the streets.

The bearded, dirty, lawless rabble that followed them used every sort of provocation against police and national guardsmen - vile taunts, lye solutions, bricks, and rubble. They blocked street intersections, disrupted traffic in Michigan avenue, and tried to charge into hotels.

The police and guardsmen used such force as was necessary to repel them and to prevent them from interfering with the proceedings of the convention and promoting general rioting. Although it was manifestly part of the design to involve black Chicagoans, if possible, we are glad that these citizens did not lend themselves to the radical purpose.

For enforcing law and order, Mayor Daley and the police deserve congratulations rather than criticism. The mayor's statement yesterday said correctly that the revolutionaries had openly paraded their intentions for months, that they had carefully coordinated plans of action, and that they deliberately baited the police in the hope of producing a revolutionary ferment. Because the police would not yield the streets or surrender the city to them, Mr. Daley said, there has been much unjustified criticism, particularly from disgruntled elements which could not prevail on the convention floor.

Chicago did not invite these street fighters to come here in the hope of disgracing the city. The movements they represent did not originate here, but in Berkeley and New York. A sick cause mustered by sick people. The police have disclosed that 170 of the 436 persons arrested did not live in Illinois. If some of the protesters were hurt, so were 51 Chicago policemen. The attacks were by no means one-sided.

SYMINGTON HAS SENSIBLE WAY OF HELPING

At Washington the last of July, Senator Stuart Symington introduced an amendment to provide more equitable tax treatment for landowners forced to sell their property for public works. This is a particularly urgent problem right now, in Monroe and Ralls counties, and in some others in south Missouri where lakes are being built and land bought.

The Symington amendment "would permit the taxpayer to defer capital gains taxation of condemnation awards when he reinvests in securities or a business if he establishes that to require him to reinvest in only comparable real property would work undue hardship on him," the Missouri Senator said. "The burden of proof would be placed on the taxpayer."

Under present law a landowner may have capital gains tax deferred only if he reinvests in real property of like kind.

As an example, Symington pointed out that in areas such as that at Cannon Reservoir comparable replacement property is often not available and landowners are either forced to move considerable distances or are pushed into early retirement.

And while we're on this subject, allow us to remind the people of this area that Senator Symington early took the lead, with the late Congressman Cannon, in urging the Cannon dam and reservoir project be approved. Today, he has worked longer and more on it than any other person at Washington, because he has been in on it from the start, and continues to work at it, while attempting, as indicated above, to help those concerned as much as possible.

If you're wondered where the money comes from for certain vociferous student groups, the Ford Foundation has awarded another $315,000 to the ultra-liberal National Students association.

EVEN BIGGER TRUCKS

The America.. Trucking Associations, Inc., hereinafter called the truck lobby, says that the truck size and weight bill pending before the House is being misrepresented. It says the legislation, which was approved by the Senate in April, "by itself would change nothing" but would "merely permit individual states to make modest increases" in size and weight limits.

There are two things wrong with this position. If the permissive legislation were enacted, the next step would be to lobby the state legislatures to bring state limits up to the maximum. The argument (we can hear it now) would be to the effect that state laws ought to be uniform so that a truck could cross state lines without violating any law. It would not take long.

The second point revolves around the phrase "modest increases." Any motorist who travels the nation'shighways is sure the trucks are plenty big enough right now; if anything, too big. The American Automobile Association says the legislation is a safety threat to 103 million motorists and would cause irreparable damage to bridges and highways. It is said that the legislation would permit "highway freight trains" with triple trailers stretching 100 feet along the road. Try passing one of those on an upgrade!

Truck sizes and loads have steadily increased over the years. The House ought to put an end to this escalation. What about a law stating that every truck built after a certain date must be smaller than at present? Is there any reason why the ordinary motorist should suffer so the truckers can make more money?

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you question haunts him: "Why do trust a man who wears a bow tie? you wear it anyway?

Many people don't.

There are several possible answers.

To find out how hidebound and conforming the world really is, you don't have to advocate a wild-eyed political theory, join a new sex cult, or become a hippie.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it weighs less than a millstone and scratches less than a beard.

All you have to do is to wear a simple bow tie. This is enough to make you suspect to some nosy characters and, for some inexplicable reason, a source of annoyance to others.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it saves him money. It costs him about half as much as a four-in-hand tie would—and it is also less likely to be ruined by dripping gravy and flying ketchup.

At the least these self-appointed critics think a bow tie man is an oddball with a "little boy complex." At the worst they resent him because they think he is probably leading a double life and there by having twice as much fun as they do. That thought infuriates them.

A grown man wears a bow tie, not because it makes him feel like a "little boy," but because it makes him feel like D'Artagnan, Cyrano de Bergerac, or Kit Carson. It is his flag flaunted against fate, his banner flung in the face of time.

The truth is, of course, that your typical bow tie man is reasonably normal, rarely robs a bank in public or beats his wife in private, and conscientiously tries to keep from overcooking the steaks during a backyard cookout. He customarily refrains from using brass knucks in a fight, pays his taxes regularly, and has even been known to grow roses as a hobby.

Wearing bow ties, it must be admitted, can be as habit-forming as cigarette smoking or drinking. At first a fellow can take them or leave them alone. Maybe he'll wear one only on Mondays or alternate Fridays.

If you were painting his portrait, you'd have to color him true blue—except for that polka dot bow tie, which makes him stand out from the herd.

But sooner or later he becomes an addict and starts donning them every day of the work week. If his wife doesn't watch him, he'll even try to sneak one on before squiring her to church on Sunday. Sometimes he'll even cache a spare one in his pocket—just in case. By then, naturally, he's hopelessly hooked for life, unless he can be brought to see the error of his ways and swears off forever.

Yet at two out of three cocktail parties he goes to, sooner or later some tipsy blonde in a miniskirt three sizes too small for a Barbee doll will waddle up to him and sneer:

"Don't you think it's rather silly for a man your age to go around in a bow tie? Why do you wear it anyway?

Wearing a bow tie, it is sometimes held, can handicap a man's business career, as it hints of a secret instability in his nature. In this respect it might be noted that a recent picture of J. C. Penney, the 93 year-old chain store magnate, showed him brazenly sporting a skimpy bow tie.

There is only one appropriate response for the bow tie man in such a situation. That is, to circle behind his tormenter in dignified silence and pour his martini down the back of her neck, saving only the olive for himself.

One can only wonder how many hundreds of more stores Penney might have founded it only, in his youth, someone had taken him aside and advised him to wear a more conventional necktie.

But still the recurrent

IN THE KNOW

The new office boy was an ambitious fellow, determined to get ahead quickly; so he applied himself to learning everything possible in order to impress his boss. One day he was called into the boss's office and was told to have the office manager book passage on the United States, sailing on the 19th.

"I beg your pardon, sir," replied the boy, "but the United States doesn't sail until the 20th."

The boss was impressed, and asked the boy to have the order department purchase a six months supply of copper.

The lad hesitated and then said, "Excuse me, sir, but all the market indications show that the price of copper is due to fall tomorrow and continue a downward trend for the next few months. Wouldn't it be wiser to wait and make our purchases on a month to month basis until the bottom is reached?"

"An excellent observation, young man. You are really on the ball," said the boss. "Oh, would you send Miss Smith in for some dictation."

"I'm sorry, sir, Miss Smith is out today," replied the boy.

"What's the matter. Is she sick?"

"No sir, not until the 23rd."

George was visiting a new golf club, paid his green fees and at the first tee, took a wild swing and missed the ball.

"By gosh!" he exclaimed,. "It's a good thing I found out right at the start. This course is at least two inches lower than the one I usually play on!"

UPSET DRIVERS

A North Carolina state senator has complained to the Senate Highway Safety Committee that it's "an upsetting thing" to many motorists to have to take written and road tests when they go to renew their driver's license.

Without knowing how many sensitive drivers the senator knows, you still have to suspect that the more of them who have to brush up on traffic rules and safe driving habits every four years to pass a license test, the fewer of them may be even more seriously upset on the highway.

PROBOSCIS PROBES POSSIBLE PERILS

Many signs of car trouble are signified by smells, the Catholic Digest warns. If your car is in top shape, the interior should be oderless. If you detect any of the following smells-and it's easier in the winter months-you've got a problem

Gasoline. There is a leak somewhere in the fuel system or the carburetor is not adjusted properly.

Exhaust fumes. These are noticeable when driving around town or at slow speeds. The cause is a leaky tailpipe or muffler. Fumes can make you drowsy while driving, so have the exhaust system checked out.

Burnt rags. Check brake linings. They don't have to be shot to cause odor. One that is adjusted too tight, so it comes in contact with the brake drum, will cause burning. Also, make sure your emergency brake is off.

Burnt rubber. You get this if you are driving a long distance with the tires at low pressure.

Hot asphalt. The ventilation system in your car is plugged up and oil is being blown back onto the engine and is burning. The vapors the oil gives off cause the odor.

STUDY OF SCHOLARSHIPS

The Rhodes scholarships, "grand-daddy" of the international indoctrination programs paid for out of Cecil Rhodes' diamond and mining fortune, and the Fulbright programs, paid for by the U.S. taxpayer, should be studied and evaluated. Considerable effort has been made to hide their real intent, and those in Congress and the news media have felt the pressures resulting in any disclosures of the subject, which has not been publicly aired since 1955.

This cunning effort to destroy our Republic should be exposed and considered by all citizens. The first class of Rhodes scholars entered Oxford in 1903, with six students from South Africa and five Germans selected by Kaiser Wilhelm as stipulated in Rhodes' will before his death in 1902. In 1904 the 72 Rhodes scholars included 42 Americans.

Rhodes left his plans in a series of wills, in which he expressed his intent to destroy society as it then existed and replace it with a centralized non-representative world government ruled from Britain. He thought it might take up to 100 years to fulfill his idea and Rhodes scholars and others drawn into this scheme have now been working on his plan for more than 60 years.

Rhodes is said to have thought of his first scholars as his "grandchildren" but Senator James William Fulbright, Rhodes scholar 1925-28, who instigated the U.S. - taxpayer - financed system, took that title for his own, saying, "The recipients of these (Fulbright) awards may be considered as the grandchildren of Cecil Rhodes, scattered throughout the world."

About 135 nations were participants in some phase of the Bulbright programs in 1968 when 5,840 academic grants were awarded. Average grants run about $2,500 but go as high as $16,000. Counting administrative "overhead" it cost U.S. taxpayers $5,300 per student in 1968. U.S. citizens should make a study of these scholarship plans designed to destroy Republic USA. HLH.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia leaves many questions unanswered; Russia may fear a break up of its empire; Even Russian people admired Czech freedom.

BUCHARREST, ROMANIA——The Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia has been the most mp,emtpis European event since Hitler invaded the country in 1938 in his prelude to World War II, or since Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assassinated at Sarajevo in 1914. It has raised vitally important questions which effect the United States such as:

1. Is the Soviet Union's vast empire of many different ethnic groups about to break up?

2. To prevent a breakup, will Russian troops be moved into other countries one year later and occupied Poland?

3. Should the United States drastically curtail its military operations in Southeast Asia or even end the Vietnam war altogether in order to strengthen NATO?

4. Should Lyndon Johnson persevere in his efforts to talk longrange peace with Moscow or drop his efforts altogether?

5. Is there a chance of change in Moscow either of policy or leadership?

NO EASY ANSWERS

To answer these questions I have visited most of the capitals immediately adjacent to Czechoslovakia, interviewed many leaders, some off the record. The answers are not easy. To reach conclusions, you must ascertain what was in the Soviet leaders' minds when they reached the drastic decision to use brute force against Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia was extremely friendly to Russia. Even as early as 1923, five years after the Czech republic was founded, Edouard Benes, then foreign minister, told me Czechoslovakia's policy must be intertwined with Russia's. Later the Soviet sided with Cechs at the time of Munich, when Neville Chamberlain took a runout powder. After that it was the Russian army which largrescued the Czechs from the Nazi occupation.

Despite all this, Soviet leaders took the drastic step of doing to the Czechs what they had fought Hitler for doing. Why? The basic reason undoubtedly was the domino theory which John Foster Dulles made famous in Southeast Asia. The Kremlin saw other Communist-bloc countries getting contaminated by the new Czech freedoms and figured that if Czechoslovakia got away with it, the entire bloc would fall, one by one.

Yugoslavia had left the Soviet orbit long before, but it was geographically more isolated and in recent years had been careful not to criticize the Soviet Union. Romania five years ago had bolted the warsaw alliance and conducted its independent foreign policy, but it had adhered tp right communist doctrine. It also maintained friendly, uncritical relations with Moscow.

Czechoslovakia, however, had substituted social democracy for Communism and was rapidly heading toward a parliamentary system.

Furthermore, Czechoslovakia occupies a key military corridor splitting communist nations in ktwo, which when occupied by Nazi troops led to the downfall of Poland and the invasion of Russia.

IDEA OF FREEDOM CONTAGIOUS

Finally and perhaps most importantly, the Russian intelligenzia is getting contaminated by Czech political ideas. Russian tourists were crossing the border to marvel at Czech freedoms and came home to spread the word. In Moscow, for instance, you cannot buy a single foreign newspaper ormagazine except communist publications. But in prague newsstands featured Life, look and all British and American journals. Furthermore they read news and criticism of the Soviet which they had never been able to read at home. So the word spread. It spread especially to the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia, where thousands of tourists crossed the border and which has long been restless under Soviet rule. In the final showdown, it was Ukrainian secretary General Pyotr Shelest who was most vigorous agains Czech leaders. He shouted, waved his fists and even threatened physical violence.

All these things led up to the first four-day showdown between Czech and Russian leaders at Cierna and Bratislava. As previously reported in this column, these talks were far less friendly than indicated by the final handshaing and bear hugs. At one time the arguments were so bitter that the Russians refused to drink Czech coffee and even started calling each other "mister" instead of "comrade."

HAWKS AND DOVES

Surprisingly, Premier Kosygin, who seemed mild-mannered at the Glassboro sessions, was one of the toughest. Brezhnev was more conciliatory, though somewhat changeable. Surprisingly, Mikyall Suslov, the stalinist hardliner, was more conciliatory than the others. He's in charge of the Communist parties in Italy, France, Austria and the rest of Europe, so knew what their reaction would be to any crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

One hardline Communist attending the final Bratislavia conference was Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany and a long bitter skeptic about any cooperation with West Germany, who had noted with concern Czechoslovakia's new tradeand tourist interchange and its generally friendly relations with the West German government. One week after Bratislava, he returned to Czechoslovakia for the conference at Karlovy vary Aug. 12, where he proposed conciliatory steps for economic and scientific cooperation and emphasized the importance of Czech-East German understanding. This was quite a change for Ulbricht and the Czechs frankly didn't believe him. They rebuffed his overtures.

This may have been their biggest mistake. Ulbricht flew to Moscow immediately with reports that the Czechs had no intention of carrying out their Bratislava pledges. This was one of the major factors in tipping the scales for a military invasion, as will be detailed in a later column.

Whirlwind Attack: Reuther's Challenge Side-Stepped by Labor Chiefs To Avoid Splitting Humphrey Campaign

New York: -- Word has come that auburn-haired Walter Reuther has decided to live dangerously. Next weekend he will lay a wreath at the shrine of American Socialists -- the Terre Haute, Ind., birthplace of the legendary World War I vintage Socialist leader, Eugene Victor Debs.

This startles many of us who have heard old-timers say of "Walter" that a "Comrade in power is a comrade lost."

Through the decades the auto union leader, mindful of the possibilities of high public office, or a UN ambassadorship, has avoided old Socialist friends and activities on the American mainland.

But he's darting around the nation now, weaving a new labor power structure. Some days after the wreath laying, Reuther will go more orthodox. He and that latter-day crusader, Teamsters' chief Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons, will be the stellar attractions at a city-wide truck drivers' rally in St. Louis.

This whirlwinding is prelude to the launching of a new labor federation next winter.

At the side of the auto and teamsters legions there will be leaders of some 90,000 chemical workers, some 450,000 meat cutters and packers, 200,000 rubber workers, and 90,000 members of the old and almost forgotten, United Electrical Workers (UE), the pro-Soviet new left of 1949. And probably their West Coast comrades, the 60,000-member Pacific longshoremen's union which in the '30s really demonstrated how to besiege a city, seize a waterfront, and haul off bloodily at the gendarmerie.

All this has been duly noted by labor's high command, the AFL-CIO 29-member Executive Council, now meeting stoically and uncommunicatively in the old 42nd Street hotel named after Commodore Vanderbilt, who did not get on so well with the public.

Not only is this duly noted, but it is duly distrurbing to the men who have gathered solely to plan strategy for the selection of Hubert Humphrey.

The men of labor, to whom infighting is instinctive, don't want a two-front war. They'll need all the time, energy and money they can whip up to defeat Richard Nixon and George Wallace. They don't want to waste a single minute of the next seven weeks battling the Reuther-Fitzsimmons Alliance for Labor Action (ALA), which already has some 3.7 million members.

The AFL-CIO chiefs are over their quota on serious political problems. There is the generation gap, the Wallace gap, the black gap, and the gap which is Hubert Humphrey himself.

They certainly are for him on the outside, but inside their closed conference rooms they don't love him in September as they did in May.

On foreign policy they find themselves in greater affinity with, of all people, Dick Nixon, than with, of all candidates, Hubert Humphrey.

These labor men are the world's most unbreakable anti-Communist phalanx. They are Lyndon Johnson's most undeviating supporters on Vietnam. For years, they have been exocriated in the Soviet press as hard-line, cold-war warriors.

They were sickened by the invasion of Czechoslovakia. So they don't relish hearing any "hardliner" or cold warrior denounced for a tough stand on international communism.

By implication -- possibly design -- Mr. Humphrey's attack on Dick Nixon undercuts President Johnson. Labor president George Meany doesn't like it privately, won't say so publicly, but is having a problem squeezing money and manpower out of some stone-hearted unions as a results of this and other Humphrey postures.

So today with November roaring down on them the union leaders have only two state-wide labor for Humphrey committees "in action" -- one in New York the other in California. By this time there should have been 17 major state-wide units in the hustings.

So, labor's top men just don't want to tangle with the Reuther-Fitzsimmons duo. AFL-CIO leaders know that the United Auto Workers' executive board "unanimously" endorsed the Humphrey-Muskie ticket last week. But somehow this became the best kept secret in Detroit.

Reuther now is putting his union through 10 regional democratic, secret ballot elections. Those who were delegates to the May convention and those who are chairmen of the union's Community Action Committees will vote for either Hubert Humphrey, Dick Nixon or George Wallace.

Finally the ballots will be taken to Detroit. They'll be counted by the American Arbitration Assn. on Sept. 24. By that time, as they say in the garment area here, it will be the fifth season. There will be mighty little time for campaigning.

All of this nettles the AFL-CIO high command here. They're not slugging back at "Walter" -- now. They first want to put their man in the White House.

Then this country will see the fiercest labor civil war since they used to go at each other with auto chains, baling hooks and brass knuckles. There will be strike and counterstrike. Raid and counterraid.

Obviously, Walter Reuther has decided to live dangerously

Three Community Concerts Selected

An exciting season is being lined up by the Delta Community Concert Association, and the whole city seems to be joining in the effort to make it the most outstanding and fun year yet.

Merchants and civic organizations are going all out in a drive to bring the concerts to the public's eye.

Girl Scout troops, under the leadership of Mrs. Handy Moore and Mrs. Benny Walker, are painting signs to be placed in the yards of all the CCA workers.

The Junior High School will be sponsoring a jingle contest among its students, and banners proclaiming the membership drive will be seen flying overhead.

Band director, Keith Collins, will be dedicating the half-time between the Charleston-Sikeston football game to the concert program, and Major Kendall Sikes has proclaimed this week of Oct. 7, to Oct. 11, officially as Community Concert Week.

The first concert, which will be held in the senior high cafetorium, will be given in the round, will be by Dolores Hodges and Samuel Howard, dual pianist. Their selections should appeal to lovers of both classical and modern piano, and will be followed by a catered reception held at the school.

The next program, which will be held in Charleston, will be given by the Colleen Corkre Dance Company, and will feature both ballet and jazz numbers. This troupe is noted not only for its varied dance arrangements, but also for the beauty and excitement of its costuming and lighting effects.

The third and last concert of the season is most unusual and should prove to be lots of fun for the audience as well as the entertainers. Eight troubadours who call themselves the Varel and Bailly Company, Chanteurs de Paris, appear in a festival of musical merriment. These eight young men sing, dance, and pantomine their way through some 26 songs each more fun and each a little more French than the other!

The membership drive for renewals will begin Sept. 30, and last through Oct. 7. This will actually be kicked off by a Kit Koffee, held at the home of Mrs. Howard Johnson Sept. 26, when the workers will receive their concert kits.

The Varel and Bailly Company

The membership drive for new members this year will be held Oct. 7 through Oct. 11th, and will be punctuated by a dinner held at the Sikeston Country Club Oct. 7. Attending this dinner will be Mrs. Isabel Campbell of New York, who will be here to finish setting the dates of the concerts and acquainting the members of the drive with this year's artists.

While here, Mrs. Campbell will be spending some time assisted by Gordon Beaver in arousing interest and in giving informative talks on the concerts among the students at senior high.

The campaign headquarters for this year will be in the First National Bank. Mrs. Howard Johnson is the concert chairman, and Mrs. Don Bohannon her co-chairman.

23-Year Drouth Ends for Detroit

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

America's Motor City still was turning itself inside out with jubilation today after a one-step backward title march turned out to be a champagne waltz after all.

"I've waited a long time for this," said Al Kaline after Detroit secured its first American League pennant in 23 years Tuesday night.

And, that just about summed up the feelings of thousands of the Tigers' long-destitute rooters, who touched off a wild, madcap demonstration when Don Wert's two-out bases loaded single in the ninth inning delivered a 2-1 victory over New York.

Thousands of joyful spectators, who had been chanting "Bring on the Cards" from the middle innings on, swarmed onto the field and into the Tiger dugout. It took a regiment of policemen to protect the heroes from their exuberant admirers.

But you couldn't blame them for being a little excited. It's been a long wait.

World War II had just ended and many of the present Tigers were still in diapers—or hadn't been born yet—when Detroit last played host to a World Series.

Actually, the wild outburst of appreciation was a little late. In reality, the Tigers backed into the championship when Boston thwarted second-place Baltimore's faint hopes 2-0 in a game that ended about 10 minutes before the Tiger-Yankee match.

But that score wasn't announced at Tiger Stadium, and most in the crowd of 46,512 were unaware Detroit had won the flag until Wert's game-winning blow.

In other AL games, Washington tripped Cleveland 4-2 and Chicago whipped Oakland 2-1 before losing the nightcap of a doubleheader 8-1. California's scheduled afternoon game at Minnesota was rained out.

Gaylord Perry hurled the fourth no-hitter in the major leagues this season as San Francisco blanked St. Louis' champions 1-0 in the National League. Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 7-5, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2, Houston stopped Atlanta 5-1 and Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 4-2 in other NL games.

It was a typical finish for the Tigers, who have made a habit of last-out victories this season, in a game marked with several dramatic twists.

Not only did Wert, who is having the worst season of his career, produce the winning run, but a last-minute substitute, Joe Sparma, was credited with the victory.

Sparma, 9-10, was called on to make his first appearance since Sept. 2 when Earl Wilson, who was scheduled to pitch, came up with a shoulder injury while warming up.

Sparma, who has been riding the bench because of a dispute with Tiger Manager Mayo Smith last month, scattered five hits and produced Detroit's first run with a single in the fifth that scored Bill Freehan.

The Yanks tied it in the ninth on Jake Gibbs' two-out single, but the Tigers loaded the bases with two out in the bottom of the inning on two walks and Freehan's single before Wert delivered against ace Yankee reliever Lindy McDaniel.

"I knew it was a hit right away," said Wert, on the losing end of a struggle for a .200 average. Don admitted he was worried that Manager Smith would life him for a pinch hitter, and "I sorta hoped he wouldn't."

Smith, given a champagne bath by the players after the game, apparently gave Sparma the starting nod in an effort to patch up their differences.

"I couldn't be happier for a guy than for Joe Sparma," he said.

Meanwhile, Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver congratulated the Tigers, but quickly issued a warning for next season.

"I think we have as much ability as Detroit," he said. "We'll be gunning for them next year."

The Red Sox' Ray Culp, a National League castoff, checked Baltimore on five hits and struck out 12 in winning a duel with 20-game winner Dave McNally.

Culp got all the runs he needed in the first inning when Carl Yastrzemski tripled in one run, then scored on a double by Ken Harrelson.

A two-run double by Frank Howard in the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie and gave Washington its victory over Cleveland.

Chicago won the opener with Oakland on rookie Bill Melton's two-run homer, but the Athletics snapped a four-game losing streak in the nightcap on John "Blue Moon" Odom six-hitter.

Lucius Allen Pleads Guilty In LA Court

LOS ANGELES AP — Lucius Allen, 20, former UCLA basketball player, pleaded guilty Tuesday to maintaining a place where narcotics are used.

Superior Judge William Munnel said he would determine at Allen's sentencing Oct. 17 whether the charge against him would be considered a felony.

Allen, a former Kansas City area high school basketball star, was arrested with four other persons May 23. He faces an additional charge of possessing marijuana.

Two persons arrested with Allen also pleaded guilty to charges of knowingly being in a place where narcotics are used.

Melanie Rose Martin, 20, and John Woolery Jr., 21, both of Los Angeles, drew 30- day suspended jail sentences and were fined $200 each.

Cowboys, Viks Shape Up As Top Offense

NEW YORK AP — The Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings shape up as the offensive powerhouses of the National Football League after the first week of play.

Minnesota scored 47 points against Atlanta, a total they didn't reach last year until half way through their fourth regular season game.

Cleveland showed the best opening day defense, holding the New Orleans Saints to 208 yards but once again Minnesota was in second place, yielding only 234 yards and but seven points to the Atlanta Falcons.

The Cowboys gave up the least yardage on the ground, 68 in their opener, and St. Louis shut down on the Los Angeles Rams' air game, permitting only 84 yards and nine completions in 22 attempts.

The Missouri Department of Conservation will hold its monthly meeting at the Holiday Inn Wednesday, starting at 9 a.m.

Robert G. Delaney of Charleston is a member of the commission.

The Conservation Department has stocked 60,000 striped bass fingerlings in Lake of the Ozarks.

It was the second lot of stripers stocked in the lake, although the first planting last year was of a very limited number of fish.

First attempts to raise striped bass in hatcheries in Missouri produced relatively few fish because of unforseen problems with the species, which biologists say is very sensitive.

Although last year's stocking was small, anglers have already reported catching a few of last year's stripers. The difficulties here last year were not limited to Missouri. Biologists say many states have had problems with striped bass.

The 70,000 fish planted this year were taken from the Union Electric Company's Glaize Hatchery, where they were raised to stocking size.

Striped bass are well known as a salt-water fish and a favorite of surf-casters. They reach weights of up to 60 pounds.

Missouri's 1968 deer hunting permits will go on sale at outlets throughout the state about September 18.

The deer tags this year will open the door to the longest firearms and archery deer seasons in recent Missouri history. The firearms season will total 12 days, Nov. 16 through 19 and Nov. 30 through Dec. 7. The archery season has been expanded to a full three months, Oct. 1 through Dec. 31.

Deer permit prices, not including a 30-cent service charge on each tag, are $5 for resident firearms and resident archers' tags, $25 for non-resident firearms tags, and $10 for non-resident archery permits which also allow the hunting of most small game.

The first, four-day, segment of the season in November will be open to hunting of deer of either sex except in 32 bucks-only counties. In the second, eight-day, part of the season only bucks may be taken statewide. Under the regulation, a buck is a male deer with at least one forked antler. Using the archery permit, bowhunters may take deer of either sex statewide throughout their season.

Under a regulation new this year, each deer killed must be checked by an agent of the Conservation Commission by 9 p.m. on the day it was killed and in the county where it was killed or in an adjacent county.

Permits are available in offices of county clerks, in sporting goods stores and similar businesses, and in the offices of the Conservation Department in St. Louis, Kansas City and Jefferson City.

The All-American rookie from UCLA, who ranked only No. 4 among Redskin quarterbacks, is unlikely to be reactivated this season.

Beban, who received an estimate $200,000 on a three-year contract with Washington, has pulled a muscle, permitting the Redskins to place him in the injured category rather than give rival teams a shot at him through waivers.

Beban was cut to make room for Walter Rock, a tackle acquired from San Francisco.

The Redskins kept former taxi squad member Harry Theofiledes and veteran Jim Ninowski to back up quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, still subpar as a result of an off-season elbow operation.

Beban had been less than impressive in his brief trail as a passer with the Redskins and they were planning to test him as a runner until he pulled a leg muscle two weeks ago.

Perry No-Hits NL Champs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

After what Gaylord Perry did to Bob Gibson Tuesday night what can Denny McLain do for an encore?

The St. Louis Cardinals, in their first game since clinching their second straight National League pennant, were supposed to be warming up for McLain and the Detroit Tigers in the World Series opener.

Instead, Perry did some cooling off. The 3-year old righthander hurled the fourth no-hitter of the 1968 season—two in each league—stopping the Cards and shutout king Gibson 1-0 on Ron Hunt's first-inning homer.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 7-5, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 32, Houston tripped Atlanta 5-1 and Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 4-2.

In the American League, Detroit clinched its first pennant in 23 years by nipping the New York Yankees 2-1, Boston whipped Baltimore 2-0, Washington topped Cleveland 4-2 and Oakland trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-1 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader after dropping the opener 2-1. The California-Minnesota game was rained out.

The 6-foot-4 Perry permitted only two baserunners and retired 18 batters in a row between walks to Mike Shannon in the second inning and Phil Gagliano in the eighth. He threw 101 pitches, getting 12 outs on grounders and striking out nine, including Curt Flood on a called third strike to end the game.

"Was it my best stuff:" Perry said in answer to a question. "You've got to say so when you pitch a no-hitter. The most important thing was my control. I was able to keep the ball down. I was hitting spots reall well and my slider was really working.

"This was my bigges. thrill. I started thinking about a no-hitter after the fifth inning. The last one I pitched was in high school in Williamston, N.C."

Perry said he bore down all the way, even though the Giants were eliminated from the pennant race Sunday.

"When your record is 14-14 you go out to win," he said.

Second baseman Hunt, the second batter in the first inning, hit Gibson's third pitch of the game over the left field fence. It was only his second home run of the season.

"It was an inside fast ball," said Gibson, 21-8.

Perry's closest call came in the sixth. Dal Maxvill led off with a smash up the middle, but Perry, falling off the mound toward first base, managed to snag it and threw him out.

"If that ball was to the third base side of the mound I wouldn't have had it," he said.

Other no-hitters this season was pitched by Cincinnati's George Culver against Philadelphia, Baltimore's Tom Phoebus against Boston and Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter against Minnesota. The last was a perfect game.

Bill Sudakis and Paul Popovich drove in two runs apiece and pitcher Claude Osteen delivered three key singles as the Dodgers won for the 11th time in 14 games.

Rookie Jim McAndrew pitched a two-hitter as the Mets edged Chicago on Ron Swoboda's steal of home in the fourth inning. Ed Charles hit a solo homer in the first for the Mets.

Gene Alley homered and doubled and scored twice to lead Pittsburgh past Philadelphia as the Pirates won their fourth straight game and moved to within a half-game of fifth-place Atlanta.

BRANTFORD, Ont. AP — The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League said Tuesday that center Lou Angotti, who left camp Monday after a mild rhubarb with Coach Red Sullivan, has returned.

Angotti met with Sullivan and General Manager Jack Riley behind closed doors. There was no comment after the meeting.

DENVER AP — The Denver Broncos of the American Football League have switched a couple of quarterbacks.

The Broncos asked waivers Tuesday on former University of Massachusetts signal-caller John McCormick, 31. Then they brought up rookie Joe Di Vito of Boston College from the taxi squad.

New Features for '69 Plymouth GTX

BIG MOVER — GTX, top of the Plymouth Belvedere intermediate line for 1969, comes ready for action with an all-new, cool-air induction system, fed through stylish functional hood scoops. Plymouth intermediates, with 18 models for 1969, offer even more liveliness and dependability. The Plymouth line also includes the compact Valiant, sports Barracuda and full-size Fury.

THE NEW 1969 PLYMOUTH LINE

The 44 models in the 1969 Plymouth line, led by the all-new Plymouth Fury, go on sale September 19.

Substantial improvements have been made in the appearance and operation in each of four Plymouth series: the standard-size Fury, the intermediate Belvedere, the compact Valiant and the specialty sports Barracuda.

"In the past two years, three-quarters of a million competitive owners were won over to Plymouth," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "Our 1969 line has been designed to continue to attract competitive owners and to intensify loyalty to Plymouth among current owners."

NEW PLYMOUTH FURY

The Fury, Plymouth's volume leader, has 17 models, all new, cleaner, leaner and larger. It is 1.5 inches longer than last year's models, nearly two inches wider, and the wheelbase has been increased to 120 inches from 119 inches.

In station wagon models, Fury introduces a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing vision obstruction by blowing clean air over the window and preventing rain, dust and grit from accumulating on it.

Six engines are available in the Fury line, from the economical six-cylinder 225-cubic- inch engine to the high-performance 440-cubic-inch V-8.

ADDED INTERMEDIATE MODELS

There are two models in the Belvedere line -- a Sport Satellite four-door sedan and a Road Runner convertible - and a complete series of performance cars.

New options in the 18-model series, which includes Belvedere, Satellite, Sport Satellite, Road Runner and GTX models, include everything from flower to power.

POWER: GTX and Road runner performance models introduce a new cool-air induction system -- called Air Grabber on the GTX, Coyote Duster on the Road Runner -- which pulls air through functional air scoops into the engine for increased powerplant efficiency.

Two new performance axle ratios - 3.91:1 and 4.10:1 -- help beef up a new set of performance packs that give broad choice of equipment and power.

BARRACUDA

A new high - performance series called the 'Cuda 340 has been added to the Plymouth Barracuda line. All models in the new line have new equipment and ornamentation, new front and rear styling and an impressive list of sports options.

The new 'Cuda 340 has a high-winding 340-cubic-inch V-8 engine standard and an improved 383 V-8 as optional. Inspired by the popularity of Plymouth's Road Runner, the new models offer go, stop and handling with no extra performance options required. The 'Cuda 340 is available in fastback and hardtop models. The convertible is Barracuda's third body style.

For V-8 power, the 383, 340 and 318-cubic-inch engines are offered with greater flexibility of accompanying equipment. The 340 is available with or without Barracuda's Formula S performanc package, the 383 with power steering. A 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder [illegible] the 318 V-8 are standard.

The hardtop is available with a new yellow flowered Mod Top vinyl roof, and the fastback offers an optional vinyl roof with four colors available.

VALIANT

Valiant offers even more economy potential than in previous years in its Signet and 100 series, each of which has two models. It is available with improved standard 170-cubic-inch and optional 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder engines and long-life, mileage-building fiberglass tires, also available in other Plymouth lines.

In styling, Valiant has a new grille, new taillights and trim, and a straight element rear window.

V-8 engines, at either the standard 273 or optional 318 cubic inches, are again available on the economy Valiant.

Mohammed's Horse

The animal that carried Mohammed to heaven was a horse named Al-Borak. This horse, according to legend, had a man's head, a horse's body, an eagle's wings and a human voice.

Corned Beef

Originally, a corn was any small substance, especially a seed or kernel. When beef was laid in brine to cure, it was sprinkled with corns of coarse salt. The process came to be known as "corning" the beef.

ASKED TO RESCIND ORDER

"Mayor Ilus Davis was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right To Work, to rescind his recent order banning the purchase of California table grapes," stated Gene Mittelberg, Executive Sectretary of Missourians For Right To Work, Inc.

Asserting that the AFL-CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Mittelberg told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city, would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California table grapes."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

Chicago Police Baiting--- A Classic Red Technique

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

What happened in Chicago was a classic operation in police baiting used extensively by followers of Hitler, Lenin, Mao, Ho and Castro.

It was 11 months in the planning.

The police fell for it.

There is no question but that the professional "youth" rioters will now use their Chicago techniques elsewhere.

It would seem reasonable now for the nation's major police departments to be better prepared than at Chicago, where the specially trained riot police were incited to react in precisely the way the rioters planned.

Yet there is little evidence that adequate official planning is under way in this country's 100 largest cities.

The Chicago techniques are documented in memoranda prepared by professionals over the past 40 years.

In these writings it is specified that well-trained agents can provoke almost any police, military or other security force by the use of certain standardized classes of action.

At Chicago, these included:

- Dropping human excrement in bags on police and others in the streets below.
- Hurling cola bottles filled with urine at police officers.
- Attacking with cement balls from which nails protruded.
- Throwing soap bars in which razor blades were embedded.
- Striking police with the jagged edges of broken bottles.

Eighty police were sent to hospitals.

The objective of these actions was fourfold:

To make the police seem bumbling and incapable of keeping order and control.

To make the police also seem like ruthless "fascist" sadists and to raise the thought in the public mind that anything would be better than such police law and order.

To make the rioters seem like modern day Robin Hoods, heroic, romantic, young martyrs, fighting against a powerful, heartless "establishment."

To discredit the United States internationally, to affect the Paris talks.

Though the rioters were poorly co-ordinated at Chicago, they did their job well. They were not able to disrupt the convention or damage any important people. They did discredit the police; they gained some nationwide sympathy.

Very few groups have such strong discipline. The Chicago police obviously do not.

Yet this reporter has seen this type of discipline in the United States and in some countries overseas. He has seen security troops hold steady and not react though they were publicly reviled, struck, their feet stomped and though they were made to look like villains.

In the case mentioned above, as a result of the courageous restraint of these security men, public sympathy shifted from the rioters to the beleaguered security troops.

This is what could have happened at Chicago.

TAX DATA SWAPPED

CHICAGO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service now has agreements with 43 states and the District of Columbia to swap information to help track down and collect taxes. These pacts allow the exchange of all types of tax information.

It includes names and addresses of workers covered by state employment security programs, state motor vehicle registration lists, and data about licensing and sales.

Commerce Clearing House said automatic data processing systems check on information relating to income, sales, use, estate and gift as well as motor fuel and highway use taxes.

The data is put on high-speed magnetic tapes which can be used in each of the systems employed by the states and the federal government.

Alaska is the latest to join the list. Only Alabama, Connecticut, Georgia, Louisiana, Nevada, Rhode Island and Texas have no agreements.

Humphrey Adviser Says LBJ Endorsement Should End Gossip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's endorsement should dispel gossip about whether he wants Hubert H. Humphrey to win the presidency, says a top Humphrey adviser.

"It puts to rest the gossip and it never was anything more than that," and Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., Tuesday after Johnson ended a public silence on his vice president's campaign for the White House.

In a message to the Texas Democratic convention, Johnson said that he will support Humphrey and "work as hard for him as he has worked for America."

Harris and other top Democrats predictably welcomed Johnson's message and Harris added that "it will be especially helpful to us in our need to carry Texas."

Republicans also were predictable in their reaction. Several said Johnson's praise will only tie Humphrey closer to the Johnson record, something the GOP sees as a plus for its side.

Harris said that insofar as the statement ties Humphrey to the Johnson record, "there was never any way he could escape that record, nor did he want to."

"This doesn't diminish the vice president's ability to talk about the future and about building on the Johnson administration programs. He can talk about the future and what he would do as president."

The Oklahoma senator said that if there is an anti-Johnson vote, as the Republicans contend, "there is nothing the vice president can do to lessen that vote."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., running for re-election, said the President's statement "only emphasizes the identification of Humphrey with the administration and its policies."

"In my judgment, that is the biggest political load the vice president is carrying," Javits said. "The endorsement will work in reverse."

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., a vice presidential candidate in 1952, said he thinks the President's action "takes away some of the sting of the charges that there is a division between the President and the vice president on the issues."

"It is always helpful to have the man who holds the office endorse you," Sparkman said. "I don't think the President's statement necessarily ties Humphrey to the Johnson policies."

Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., whose state has become a three-cornered battleground between Humphrey, GOP nominee Richard M. Nixon and third party contender George C. Wallace, said it was a "tossup" whether the President's endorsement would help or hurt Humphrey in the South.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he doesn't think the statement will have much effect.

"Humphrey is tied to the Johnson administration record in any event," Hickenlooper said. "But Humphrey has to stand or fall on Humphrey and not the President's record."

Court Impounds Hippie Colony Sponsor's Financial Holdings

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) — The financial angel of a 45-member hippie colony seems unperturbed that a court temporarily impounded what's left of his $500,000.

"God will provide," said Donald B. McCoy, 37, who quit a real estate investment career with the announcement that "I finally realized that if you are unhappy, you are a failure, no matter how much money you have."

The colony is on a 690-acre estate that McCoy leased for $1,000 a month in this suburban area about 25 miles from San Francisco.

Clad only in a shirt, McCoy, in a full beard, was reading to several of his followers from a book about Jesus Christ when a reporter asked about the suit for control of his remaining fortune — estimated in court at $200,000.

"Some of the folks here are worried," he said, "but even if they take all the money away, we will continue to exist."

Arthur E. Lang of Mill Valley, McCoy's former father-in-law, brought the suit in behalf of McCoy's three daughters, aged 6 to 12. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin County named Lang temporary conservator last week and set Sept. 30 for a hearing in San Rafael on whether to make Lang permanent conservator.

McCoy's former wife, Lang's daughter, now lives, according to testimony, in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, regarded by many as the hippie capital. McCoy's daughters have been living with him on the ranch. The other residents — both male and female — live in communal fashion, apparently at McCoy's expense, in a 19-room mansion and 14-room dormitory.

Lang, in his legal complaint, said McCoy had allowed his estate to dwindle from $500,000 to $200,000 and "is giving away or spending money as fast as he can do it." McCoy said he felt Lang was "up tight" in not appreciating how the money is spent and expressed confidence of a satisfactory outcome of the case.

If you lose, he was asked, would the group possibly become self-sustaining? He said someday he expects the group to be self-supporting, but the thought of any of his followers taking a paying job off the estate — known as Rancho Olompali — was horrifying.

"That would be joining the Establishment — an impossibility for us," he said. "You cannot serve God and mammon."

As McCoy switched the conversation to love and philosophy, his 9-year-old daughter, Dana, curled up against him. "We have a lot of fun here," she volunteered.

A young man constructing a bongo drum from a barrel and a hide agreed with her. Why, he said, when the girls first arrived, they were so "up tight" they didn't want to take their clothes off for nude swimming in the pool.

New Medical School Cheaper Than Expansion

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — It would cost less to establish a medical school at Kansas City than it would to expand the University of Missouri medical school in Columbia, the Missouri Commission on Higher Education reported Sunday night.

The report, prepared by the university, showed that it would cost $13,214,100 to establish a medical school in Kansas City and would cost about $3,630 a student a year to operate.

The present school in Columbia has a class of 100 students each year. To double that to 200 students would cost $6,605,000 for expansion of buildings, and the operating cost would be $3,560 for each additional student, the report stated.

The commission had received results of a survey showing that Missouri needs to educate at least 100 more doctors each year to avoid a doctor shortage.

Another method has been suggested by the state's four private medical schools. They propose that the state contract with them to train the additional doctors.

Presidential Panel Opens Violence Probe Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential panel set up in Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's dying hours opens formal hearings today in its sweeping probe of violence in America.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover were listed as leadoff witnesses at the closed-door session in the same building where the assassinated New York senator had his Capitol Hill offices.

Eight weeks of hearings have been scheduled by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence to hear testimony and task force reports on such subjects as firearms, disorderly demonstrations, law enforcement and the influence of the news media.

The panel plans a preliminary report to President Johnson before he leaves the White House in January. Its final report is due next June.

A commission aide said the panel has had problems recruiting enough top-notch personnel for the study because the commission will go out of existence after a year.

Johnson created the 13-member commission June 5 as Kennedy lay dying in Los Angeles where he was shot as he celebrated his California Democratic primary election triumph.

Unlike the Warren Commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the new panel will not limit itself to the specific slaying but will delve instead into a wide area of violence and its causes.

The commission is headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, 68, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and retired president of Johns Hopkins University.

The commission gave no reason for closing its initial round of hearings, but said later sessions might be open.

The panel will take up the specific subject of assassinations, presumably including the slayings of Sen. Kennedy and civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., at its Oct. 2-3 session.

The commission members in addition to Eisenhower are Roman Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York, attorney Labert Jenner of Chicago, former Ambassador Patricia Harris, philosopher Eric Hoffer; Sens. Philip Hart, D-Mich., and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, and federal Judge Leon Higginbotham.

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Editor:

For those who like to solve puzzles and love mysteries, there is a unique one for them. It was started in 1946 and has continued until now. Rhodes Scholar, U. S. Senator J. W. Fulbright (D-ARK), ADA 39, inspired by the Rhodes idea, tapped the U. S. Treasury to finance "Fulbright Scholarship". The U. S. taxpayers are footing the bill which reached $53 million per year in 1966. The brightest boys from high schools and prep schools are sought and given scholarships whereby they are sent to chosen English Universities such as Oxford for Fabian-socialist endoctrination. Thepuzzles, not jigsaws, are the motive of Rhodes, of Fulbright, and the ease with which hard-headed taxpayers, their agents, and bureaus can be bilked out of vast funds to destroy the profit motive system, individual initiative, Republic U.S.A., and the Church. The mysteries are myriad; the rewards how, why, when, and what.

Constructively,
H. L. Hunt

13 Die in August Accidents

POPLAR BLUFF — Capt. E. F. Dampf, commanding Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol, reports that 311 accidents were investigated by members of Troop E during August, 1968.

In these accidents 13 were killed, 205 were injured, and damage to vehicles involved was estimated at more than $213,000.

During the same period in 1967, the patrol investigated 239 accidents. In these accidents, seven were killed and 147 injured.

The Department of Transportation of the United States had reported to Congress on the role of alcohol in traffic accidents. The study contains these findings:

More than half of adults use the highways at least occasionally after drinking. However, the scientific evidence is irrefutable that the problem is primarily one of the persons, predominantly men, who have been drinking heavily...."

Alcoholics and other problem drinkers, while constituting a small minority of the general population, account for a very large part of the accident problem.

In the past 35 years, in every area of the nation, alcohol has been found to be "the largest single factor leading to fatal crashes." For example, almost half of the drivers in fatal crashes of all types have been found to have blood alcohol concentrations of 10 per cent by weight or more. In single vehicle crashes, up to 57 per cent of drivers killed had blood alcohol contents of that level.

Most crashes involving alcohol occur in late afternoon, evening, and night time hours. The worst day of the week is Saturday.

The behavior of many drinkers, including very heavy drinkers, begin to be adversely affected by blood alcohol before they outwardly appear to be intoxicated.

The report indicated that more scientific research on this problem is needed, especially in the realm of taking meaningful remedial actions.

Accidents in area counties:

Bollinger: 15 accidents, one fatality, nine injuries, $7,205 property damage in August; 63 accidents, one fatality, 28 injuries, $30,950 property damage for year.

'69 Chrysler is Bigger, All New

ALL-NEW CHRYSLER—Completely new for 1969, Chrysler is in every way a bigger car than last year's models. On the outside, it is five inches longer. On the inside, nearly every dimension has been increased for driver and passenger comfort. Available in 15 models, Chrysler offers a host of engines, options and accessories. Pictured is the Chrysler Newport Custom four-door hardtop.

NEW CHRYSLER LINE FOR 1969

The 1969 line of Chrysler cars introduces a new concept of design called fuselage styling which substantially increases interior room and gives the cars a totally different appearance.

"The new styling is another giant step forward for the Chrysler line," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "In every respect, it embodies the contemporary styling and solid engineering that has made Chrysler synonomous with quality in the automotive world."

The lines of the new cars are sleek and flowing. Over-all length is 224.7 inches, five inches longer than the 1968 models. The 15 models in five series -- Newport, Newport Custom, 300, New Yorker and Town & Country wagons -- go on sale September 19.

Nearly every interior dimension has been increased from last year for optimum comfort and roominess: more than three more inches of added legroom in the rear seats of four-door sedans and even more in most four-door hardtops; greater rear-seat knee room, and shoulder room increased more than three inches in both front and rear.

The rear compartment in wagons has been expanded to 48.5 inches between wheel housings, and the housings themselves incorporate three storage compartments.

Standard engine in the Newport and Newport Custom is the strong 383-cubic-inch V-8, with a big 440 optional. In the 300 and New Yorker, the 440 is standard, with a high-per 440 option.

Chrysler styling for 1969 integrates aerodynamic smoothness into every component of the car, from a big wrap-around or looped front bumper to new concealed windshield wipers to the sleek hardtop roofline on the two-door models. Articulated wipers extend by some four inches the wiped area on the windshield lower corner of the driver's side. On two-door models equipped with air-conditioning, vent windows have been eliminated.

Concealed headlights on the 300 have "fail-safe" device allowing emergency manual operation of the headlight doors.

Among the features in the Town & Country lines is an air deflector which deflects air over the rear window, keeping it clean and preventing fumes and dust from entering the rear window when it is open.

Wagons also are equipped with dual action tailgates, which can be opened as a door otao?gate;

An optional driver aid accessory package is available, offering a fasten seat belt reminder light, a door lock reminder light and a new warning buzzer to remind a driver leaving his car that he has left his headlights on.

Other refinements and new options on Chrysler line include: fullwidth rear seats in convertible models; repositioned door locking button on two-door models for greater ease of operation; floating caliper disc brakes and improved automatic brake adjusters; improvements in Sure-Grip differential, the cleaner air system and power steering pump; suspene differential, the cleaner air system and power steering pump; suspended accelerator pedal to facilitate cleaning the front floor.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK WARNS AGAINST RED CHINA

Those who have personally fought the communists and seen them destroy freedom are well-qualified to speak on the dangers of any compromise with this tyranny. Chiang Kai-shek has done battle directly with the forces of communism and knows the futility of seeking "accommodations" with them.

Recently Chiang granted an interview to the Japanese press mission, on the subject of possible Japanese diplomatic recognition of Red China. He warned that such a step would be a dangerous mistake.

Chiang pointed out that the Peking and Formosa governments are unalterably opposed. Recognition of Red China implies that the communists represent the legitimate government of the mainland and ignores all of the atrocities committed by the Peking government.

Chiang stated: "The direction of the international tides of today is toward freedom and democracy, for which everyone is longing." The Chinese communist regime represents slavery and tyranny. If the people on the mainland were allowed to express their views they would undoubtedly call for the immediate removal of Mao Tse-tung's government.

Chiang urged the Japanese government to forthrightly oppose communist China and refuse to grant diplomatic or economic recognition.

Many of the members of our own State Department should pay close attention to the words of Chiang Kai-shek. The officials urge closer diplomatic and economic ties between the United States and Red China. But any steps taken to bring this about would be a real blow against freedom in the Far East.

Our government should reaffirm its support of the Republic of China and its hostility to the illegitimate communist regime on the Chinese mainland.

Shirts for the Petite Gal

The best of both possible fashion worlds—haberdasher fabric combined with feminine frills (left) in white with blue stripings has a fetching Victorian banded collar and soft ruffles on the bosom and cuffs. The shirt (right), complete with a stand-up Mao collar, has contrasting stitching over pockets, placket and cuffs. These are proportioned for the junior shape from the Van Heusen '417 collection.

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK, (NEA)—The junior league has graduated tc big league fashion this fall. For whether it's back-to-campus or career, the more diminutive damsel will certainly have her fair share of glamor goodies now specifically designed to enhance those petite and pretty proportions.

Tailoring is one of the keys in junior designing. Shirts are slick-fit and tapered, zingy and clingy, tuck-in, body-fitting perfect. No make-dos from regular miss styles.

Beguiling styling dominates this season's offerings. Tailored and classic shirts in shirtsail checks and stripes have been given the charming oomph of ascot stock ties, ruffled bosoms and cuffs. A flattering combination of haberdasher fabrics and feminine frills is the result.

Sporty oxfords boast of Zhivago collars, Nehru necklines, safari pockets, up-to-the-elbow cuff treatments and thoroughly delighful and snappy contrasting stitching—dark against white as well as the reverse. And the sky's the limit in colorings from wispy whites to reds, navies and blacks.

For after-hours the now-look in junior shirts, according to junior designers, is nostalgic-Victorian. Perfect for any dress-up time, these shirts are beruffled with frilly jabots (some removable for suits), stand-up lacy collars, delicate cuffs, fragile and fetching.

The junior miss has a senior part in the shirt scene for fall. And it's only fitting.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

East Africa's ancient history is the basis of a remarkable set of new stamps which depict scenes of that area's archeological heritage. The stamps were issued by the East African Posts and Telecommunications and reported by the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau.

The 30 cents shows a pillar tomb, one of the most unusual tombs found on the East African coast. Although the tombs are Moslem, they are found in no other Moslem country, as they were an architectural invention of the East African coastal culture.

The 50 cents depicts a vivid rock painting of a man attacking an elephant. The stamp is a reminder that Tanzania is the East African country with the greatest number of sites where early man painted on the walls of caves and rock shelters.

The 1/30 shilling stamp illustrates a terra cotta clay head, possibly dating from 1000-1500 AD, which was dug up at Luzira, near Kampala, and is now in the British Museum in London.

The 250 shillings features the Proconsul Skull. It was in 1948 that Mrs. Mary Leakey, wife of Sweden. The issue will commemorate the centenary of Scandinavian cooperation.

The previous similar issue was the Flying Swans design by Viggo Bang of Denmark, released Oct. 30, 1956. The winner and designer of the new set is Ake Gustafsson of Stockholm, Sweden. It represents five ships reproduced from a coin found on the Island of Bjorko in Lake Malaren, Sweden, the site of the ancient town of Birka.

Attention: Letters to the Editor

If the Pueblo did violate the territorial rights of North Korea, let's apologize and get our men back. If it did not, let's go to North Korea and take our men back.

Whatever really happened, it was not the fault of the men on the ship. There is no reason for 82 Americans to suffer in Communist prisons while officials debate.

Respectfully submitted,

Ann Landers

Big Sister Has Problem With Rat-Fink Brother

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who has a problem in the form of a brother. I will be standing there minding my own business and my six-year-old brother Normie will come up and start making a pest of himself. Last night after I told him eight or 10 times to leave me alone he still pesterd me so I gave him a light tap on the head. Normie screamed like I was killing him. He ran to my mother and said, "Ruthie hit me."

My mother came at me like I was a monster and called me a terrible kid. She said, "Just for thatyou can't have any dessert or watch TV and you have to go straight to bed right after supper."

Now that my rat-fink brother knows how to get me into trouble I am helpless. I can't leave home until I am 18 which means I am doomed to put up with this torture for six more years. Please tell me what to do. —— SUFFERING GIRL

Dear girl: Pray for a new baby brother. Normie will then be so busy defending himself against HIS brother that he will leave you alone. When your mother reads this she will probalbly tell me to drop dead.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife hates housework and anyone who steps inside our place knows it immediately. We have had some arguments over this and I always seem to lose. Liz tells me that any dumbbell can clean a house and she would rather spend her time on more creative things, like sewing or painting or pruning the hedges.

Once in a while you print something in your column about sloppy housekeepers. When you do I hand the pape to Liz and ask her if she recognizes anyone she knows. Yesterday you published such a letter and she got mad and yelled, "Ann Landers can tell women to scrub floors and sweat over the kitchen stove because she doesn't have to do it! I'll bet that dame has hired help all over the place."

Do you have the courage to print this letter and your answer? --- MR. OHIO

Dear Mr.: Your wife is right. I don't do housework, but I did plenty of it for the first 10 years of my marriage. And I didn't hate it or feel that it was beneath my dignity. My house looked fairly presentable and so did my husband's shirts, which I ironed. And nobody ever died from my cooking. Any more questions?

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting plenty fed up with reading that worn out line in your column --- "When you marry a divorced man you'd better be prepared to put up with the whole pack --- his kids, his ex-wife, her relatives, old friends---bla bla" and more stuff and nonesense.

I married a divorced man and I made it plain in advance that I was not going to be bothered with any of the aforementioned kooks. My husband's ex-wife is a religious fanatic who belts down martinis with one hand and reads the New Testament with the other. Her children look just like her and they act like her, too. Sometimes I think they do not even belong to my husband.

Kids belong with their mother, even if she is crazy and I say let her paddle her own canoe. --- NO TIES

Dear No: That canoe has your husband's children in it --- even if they don't look like him. If the waters get choppy, and it sounds as if they might, the children are going to need rescuing from time to time and if your husband is halfway decent he will do it. So get ready, Madame.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and you -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you wit your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

No Room on Force for Politicking Policeman

THE CASE OF THE POLITICKING POLICEMAN
By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wilbur decided to become a policeman despite the fact that a city ordinance prohibited policemen from engaging in politics. An idealist, however, he believed that politics could be kept out of politics. Consequently, one election year, he saw no harm in taking it upon himself to raise funds for a promising candidate whose promises appealed to him.

Unfortunately, while the candidate got in, Wilbur was let out. He was fired from the police force for engagingin politics contrary to the ordinance prohibiting same. Claiming the ordinance was illegal, Wilbur took the matter to court.

"I can't be fired!" Wilbur protested. "As an American citizen, I not only have a constitutional right to engage in politics. I have a duty to participate in it also. Therefore, the city has to give me back my job."

"That's not so," was the city's answer. "Politics is a game in which people engage in public affairs for private gain. Since it's not in the city's interests to have policemen with conflicting public interests, the ordinance was perfectly legal and Wilbur's being fired was perfectly justified."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put Wilbur back on the beat?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a man may have a constitutional right to talk politics, he has no constitutional right to be a policeman. If Wilbur didn't like the conditions of his job, concludedthe judge, which were reasonable, he didn't have to be a policeman.

Matthews Buys Land Near Lilbourn

50 years ago
September 18, 1918

A. J. Matthews of Sikeston has recently bought 640 acres of cut-over land near Lilbourn from Z. H. Travis of the latter town, paying $73 per acre for it. This is said to be a very fine body of land and the price paid would indicate that Mr. Matthews values it highly.

The Sikeston Masonic lodge and Rebekah members were guests at a party Wednesday evening in the lodge hall in honor of W. H. Sikes and James Kevil, the two Past Masters of the local Masonic lodge, who will leave soon to join the big brother-hood of boys in Khaki.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Matthews have received notice that their son, Ben, has arrived safely overseas.

Joe Zadow and family attended the funeral of the former's brother, Sam Zadow, in St. Louis last Friday.

Tuesday, W. R. Binford of Matthews brought the first load of cotton to market that has been sold in Sikeston this season. The load, approximately 1,600 pounds, was bought by the Van Horne Cotton Co. It sold for seven cents.

A portion of the rooms occupied by the Dempster Furniture and Undertaking Co., on Kingshighway is being arranged as a modern funeral parlor.

Charles Gardner, son of T. W. Gardner, re-enrolled last week in the Chillicicothe, Mo., to finish his course of business training.

Miss Peggy Donnell left Tuesday for Hackettstown, N. J., where she will attend the Centenary Junior College.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Baptist Church for Mrs. Hattie Caulk, 52, wife of George Caulk, who died Sunday in St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Hubert Boyer, former proprietor of the Boyer Garage here, states that he will leave in two or three days for Honduras, Central America, to accept a position with a mining company as airplane pilot and mechanic.

Earl Allen of the Southeast Missouri Elevator Co., was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at its meeting Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Cloud are parents of a son born Thursday morning at St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau. This is the second child and second son.

John Boardman, a student at Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boardman of Sikeston, and his wife took most of the prizes in the art contests at the district fair in Cape Girardeau.

Charles H. Denton, 18, Lilbourn, was instantly killed and Patsy A. Celantano, Oakland City, Ind., was slightly injured when two trucks collided on Highway 60 two miles west of Sikeston on the afternoon of the 16th.

THE BEST OF EVERYTHING is coupled in these two models in the 1969 Dodge Coronet line. The Coronet 500 (top) brings posh luxury to the intermediate car-sized field. The Coronet R/T (below) growls with performance features: 440-magnum power, rallye suspension.

DODGE CORONET FOR '69 TO DEBUT DETROIT.....

A sleek and sporty fourth generation Dodge Coronet series will be introduced to the public on September 19, 1968, according to Robert B. McCurry, Dodge's general manager.

Classified as an "intermediate size car", the 1969 Coronet will boast of being the largest of its class in the industry.

The biggest seller of Dodge's automobile line, Coronet will again be offered in the widest variety of body styles and power train options.

The five series will have a total of 17 choices in body style.

TIRES AND BRAKES

Safety foremost has brought new innovations to the automatic brake adjusting system; improved disc brakes; wide tread tires, as well as a new fiberglass belted tire that provides not only additional safety, but added tread life. Improvements in power steering pumps, a new design in Sure-Grip differentials, automatic speed control, changes in transmissions, all contribute to making the Coronet a tailor-made or buyers' choice vehicle.

The summary of the 1969 Dodge Coronet will be a family size car that is still not too big for urban traffic problems and versatile enough to fit any new car buyer's pocket book.

NEW FEATURES

Emphasis by Dodge stylists and engineers on driver-passenger comfort and convenience will be highlighted by an optional manually operated driver bucket seats which will offer a choice of 160 different positions: Tilt, fore, aft, up and down. On two door models, door locks are repositioned for easier access. Power operated tailgate windows will be standard equipment. Eleven different colors of vinyl, or vinyl and cloth, trim will grace the interiors of the 1969 Dodge

Following buyer trends, the 1969 Coronet will have more vinyl roofs, interior wood-grain combinations, air conditioning, AM-FM radios, Am radio and stereo-tape combinations, and rear radio speaker.

POWERPLANTS

The multiple choice of engines provides a range from stingy economy to high performance.

- 170 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 225 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 318 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8
- 426 cubic-inch, four barrel, Hemi V8
- 440 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8

The least expensive Coronet, the Deluxe series, will be available in a two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two-seat wagon.

Although a late year introduction, the Super Bee was a surprise winner, being third in total Coronet sales in 1968. For 1969, the Super Bee will compete with its more powerful counterpart, the Coronet R/T, as leaders of the Scat Pack quintet.

MODEL LINEUP

The Coronet 440 series, number one volume seller in the Dodge line, has five models: two-door coupe, two-door hardtop, four-door sedan, two-seat (six passenger) and three seat (nine passenger) wagons.

The next step up is the Coronet 500, which brings the luxury touches to the model. Five models again, a two-door hard top, convertible, four-door sedan, and two and three seat wagons.

The Bumble Bee-striped Coronet R/T rounds out the Coronet series with a two-door hardtop and convertible, complete with the 440 Magnum engine, rallye-type suspension, brakes and tires to match, making it a well balanced, well handling performance machine.

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The Leflore County board of supervisors has had its fill of Billie Joe McAllister.

A new ordinance makes it illegal to jump from the Tallahatchie Bridge — or any other bridge in the county — in imitation of the character in the song, "Ode to Billie Joe." Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of up to $180.

An estimated 40 to 50 youngsters have leaped from the bridge 20 feet above the Tallahatchie River since the song by former Mississippian Bobbie Gentry came out. But unlike Billie Joe, none of the youngsters has met death.

23 Enroll in Water Treatment Course Here

Among the widely diversified adult program now in progress, 23 men are enrolled in a class in a wastewater treatment program, attended by treatment plant operators from throughout Southeast Missouri.

Enrollment classes Friday in a variety of subjects open to the public.

Courses include clothing construction, communication skills, beginning and advanced traning in typing and shorthand, high school equivalency, business math and a number of technical courses, reports Richard "Dick" Downey, supervisor of adult education.

Unusual in this year's course is that a number of men have enrolled in commercial courses to add additional skills to present employment.

The water treatment class, which ends in March, outlines a complete study of waste treatment, and is now being taught by Richard Lucy, superintendent of the Sikeston treatment plant.

The class was featured in an article in the Missouri Municipal Review magazine in the August issue.

Three Treated

Three persons were admitted to the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital Tuesday:

Janet Lee Nations, Sikeston, turned left ankle while running; Carolyn Gean Steel, Sikeston, fell, injuring right arm, and Jean Hubbard, East Prairie, injured in car accident.

Heavy Oil Traffic

Because of the vast Middle East sources of petroleum, about 85 per cent of the total northbound traffic in the Suez Canal toward European ports consists of oil or oil products.

THE FOX

I like the fox. He mates for life
This makes it easy for his wife.
She doesn't fuss about her looks
Or read the latest "How-to-books."
She doesn't worry if he's fixin'
To run off with a younger vixen.
It isn't that he will or won't
He just don't.

And when she greets him with a litter
Mr. Fox is never bitter.
He simles and says, "Vulpes Velox,"
Which means "Hello there, little fox."
He steals a hen not to be rude
He's simply low on baby food.
He moves through life with silent tact
I like the fox and that's a fact.

QUESTION OF LOYALTY

Yesterday I held the world in my hands, and my hands were outstretched to share with you.

My words were warm sunshine, my laughter was echoing wind, and you were always there to hear.

My steps were strong and certain, leading me towards tomorrow, and you were always there beside me.

Today, I have lost the world, and I hold out empty hands.

My words are few; there is no laughter,

My steps are stumbling, and I often fall.

I reach out for you, but no one is there.

Where are you now, my dear "friends?"

UNDERSTANDING HEART

She heard loud voice as she passed her neighbor's house
Cursing, crying, abusive language,
Sounds as if a chair were being knocked over,
Then a loud scream and silence.
She heard it all.
But she was not disturbed;
She understood;
You see, she has a television too.

MRS. ART PROVINCE, Charleston, stands in front of display cases containing her husband's gun collection and her carnival glassware.

Mrs. Province Collects Glassware, Traces Her Family's Genealogy

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 103rd in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

BY RUTH DILLENDER

CHARLESTON—Mrs. Elaine Province, 207 Danforth, says if there's one recipe she is known for, it's her hush puppies.

Mrs. Province's husband, Art, is a conservation agent supervisor in district 14 comprised of Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

Mrs. Province is a case analyst of the division of welfare. She works out of Jefferson City.

Mrs. Province has a son, Marine Lt. Jim Acreback, who is a helicopter pilot stationed at Pensacola, Fla. He will receive his wings Monday.

Tracing her family's genealogy, collecting carnival and cut glass and reading are Mrs. Province's hobbies. Her husband hunts, collects guns, rocks and artifacts. He is a trustee of the Missouri Archaeological Society.

The couple attends the First Christian Church.

HUSH PUPPIES

4 cups of self-rising corn meal
2 or 3 eggs well beaten
1 cup of finely chopped onions
2 cups of milk

Combine the above ingredients, and drop from a teaspoon into preheated deep fry shortening, about 365 degrees to 370 degrees. Cook until golden brown, drain on paper towel and serve.

FRENCH-FRIED ONION RINGS

4 large sweet onion, sliced ¼ inch-thick, separated into rings
1 cup of self-rising flour
1 well beaten egg
1 cup of milk

Combine ingredients and beat until smooth. With a long-handled fork, dip onion rings in batter so that each ring is completely coated. Let drain a second. Drop a few rings at a time into oil or shortening heated to 375 degrees. Brown, turn only once. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt and serve piping hot. May be kept hot in a moderate oven. Makes five servings.

COLESLAW

3 cups of shredded cabbage
¼ cup of chopped green pepper
¼ cup of minced onion
1 cup of grated carrot

Combine all the ingredients.

COLESLAW DRESSING

½ cup of salad dressing or mayonnaise
1 tablespoon of vinegar
2 teaspoons of sugar
2 teaspoons of sugar 1 ½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon of celery seed or salt

Combine all ingredients and stir until sugar is dissolved. Pour over slaw and toss gently.

FRIED BIRD (DOVE)

Clean dove breast; wash well. Place dove breast in sauce pan with salt and pepper. Add a small whole onion, if desired. Add enough water to cover doves and cook until the birds are tender. Pour off broth and roll in flour. Place breast in skillet preheated with shortening and brown on both sides.

Vandalism at Community Center

MATTHEWS — The Matthews school calendar for 1968-69 includes:

Nov. 28-29. Thanksgiving, no school; Dec. 20, dismiss at close of day, return Jan. 2, 1969; Jan. 7, end of first semester, school in session; March 13-14, district teachers' meeting at Cape Girardeau, no school; March 24-28, no school (unless needed for snow days); May 18, baccalaureate services, 7:30 p.m.; May 23, commencement exercises, 7:30 p.m.; May 24, last day of school.

Members of the Community Club met for a business meeting at the Community Center last Monday evening. Committee members reported on plans for the Fall Festival and work sheets were distributed.

An attempt was made at assessing damage done and steps to be taken in preventing a reoccurence of destruction of the property for which many people have worked to provide and maintain for use of the community.

When the Girl Scout troops resumed meetings at the center last week it was discovered to be in a state of disrepair caused by vandals who had gained access by breaking a window. New draperies had been slashed near the hems and weights removed. The locks on cabinets and drawers had been broken. Silverware was scattered over the floor. Water glasses had been broken on the floor and commodes in the rest rooms were filled with broken glass. Deteriorated water melon rinds and cigarette stubs were strewn on the floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Givens of Sikeston, Mrs. Pearl Green, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore attended the Banana Festival at Fulton, Ky. While there they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Cox.

The Rev. Bruce Harding of Chohola, Pa., has accepted a call from the local Christian Church to serve as minister. He received his training at Phillips University at Enid, Okla. Mrs. Harding is a registered nurse. The couple visited here the weekend of Aug. 25. He will begin his services on Sept. 22.

Mrs. Annie Lee Sells underwent an emergency appendectomy Wednesday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston.

SCARE ON CAT

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — What do you do when the family cat wants to have the family parakeet for lunch?

Buy a scare crow. That's what Andy Savage did when his cat kept eye-balling the new parakeet.

Savage said two fake crows and a plastic owl did a great job of scaring off the cat.

Hearnes Hails Clinic Opening

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Gov. Warren E. Hearnes dedicated one of Missouri's nine new mental health diagnostic clinics Saturday as "a beginning as well as a goal."

The governor said the clinic is part of a plan to bring mental health treatment closer to the people.

In a speech prepared for the dedication ceremony he said:

"You may recall that when our plan for nine regional clinics was approved by the Legislature, the Missouri plan was widely hailed as being a model for the nation. And I say to you now that our overall progress in mental health in recent years has moved Missouri from the dark ages to a period of enlightenment."

As community treatment centers are developed from state and federal funds, he said mental treatment will be brought even closer to the people.

He called it a period of remarkable improvement.

Symington Urges Democrats to Remember '48

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The victory by Harry S. Truman in the presidential campaign of 1948 was held before Democratic party workers Saturday as something to remember "even though things don't look too good at this time."

The speaker was Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who urged his listeners at the Jackson County campaign headquarters to "just remember 1948."

Symington said that primary fights should not sidetrack the Democrats in their push for victory in the general election.

Bumper stickers also got attention in the general election.

Bumper stickers also got attention at the meeting. William S. Morris, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, without mentioning George C. Wallace by name, said the third party's presidential candidate sticker campaign shows good results in all parts of the state. Morris asked his hearers to counter the Wallace effort by using bumper strips bearing the name of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Referring to Wallace, Morris said "if you vote for him, you're wasting your vote."

Thomas Shepard Receives Degree

COLUMBIA — Thomas L. Shepard, Route 3, Sikeston, was among August graduates at the University of Missouri.

He received a master of science degree.

LUCKY SEVEN

RANSOM, Kan. (AP) — Perhaps the number "7" will be lucky for Chad Robert Strickler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strickler.

He was born on the seventh day of the seventh month of 1967 and weighed seven pounds, seven ounces.

MU Construction Approved

COLUMBIA — Contracts for construction, key personnel appointments and establishment of a Center for International Studies were among major items approved by the University of Missouri Board of Curators.

The board approved construction contracts totaling $1,418,318 for a new social sciences building a compressible flow laboratory for the Rolla campus.

The board also authorized $50,000 for construction improvements at the King site, located 10 miles south of Columbia, where the environmental health studies facility is planned. The facility will provide a central area for research dealing with effects of environment on health in both rural and urban Missouri.

Regarding other construction work, the board discussed but took no action on bids received for multi-purpose auditoriums for Columbia and St. Louis campuses.

A Center for International, Foreign, Area and Comparative Studies was approved with headquarters in St. Louis and offices on each of four campuses of the university. Paul R. Schratz, a member of the Department of Political Affairs at the National War College, was named director of the center.

The center's purpose is three-fold: to expand and improve teaching of international studies at all educational levels, to undertake and make available results of research and to aid the American public in understanding world affairs.

The board approved plans to establish a "named" professorship in electrical power systems engineering in the department of electrical engineering at Columbia. The professorship and support staff will be financed with gifts from nine Missouri electrical power firms. A faculty committee will recommend an eminent person for the new position at a later meeting.

In other action the board:

Approved the appointment of Dr. Charles E. Mengel, a member of the Ohio State University Medical Center faculty, as professor of medicine at Columbia. He will assume full-time duties Jan. 1 and will become chairman of the department of medicine.

MU Curators Make Up Athletic Deficit

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Board of Curators at the Unversity of Missouri Friday made up a deficit of $41,483 incurred by the athletic department for the year which ended June 30.

William C. Myers Jr., board president, said the deficit was made up with money from a $50,000 athletic department reserve fund established several years ago.

The president said the university is studying the long-range financial situation of the department and noted that no public funds are used for inter-collegiate athletics.

To improve the financial situation Myers said complimentary tickets to M.U. athletic events which are given to state officials and others will no longer be charged to the athletic department, but would be charged to the university groups involved which would pay for the tickets with non-appropriated funds.

DELHI'S DETECTIVE DOGS

NEW DELHI (AP) — The country's first nighttime canine police patrol is soon to be started in New Delhi, in areas of the highest crime incidence.

Police officials said the patrols will have 18 dogs initially.

The city also plans to establish the country's first Mobile Scientific Aid Unit, enabling fingerprint experts and other technicians to move to the scene of a crime.

THE TIES THAT BIND

TOKYO (AP) — The president of JapanUniformCenter says people who wear neckties don't like to work. He says they wear them to conform to society.

A major Japanese newspaper, the Yomiuri Shombun, interviewed Wajiro Kon on neckties and their introduction to Japan from the west.

Kon was quoted as explaining: "The necktie is worn by people who have no desire to work. The necktie is a yoke that restricts freedom of movement and causes labor efficiency to drop."

He did not elaborate how a dislike for work was linked to the tie.

Earl Jarvis

Earl Jarvis at Dealer Meeting

E. R. Jarvis of Jarvis Motor Co. participated in the most unique dealer new car meeting in American Motors' history.

He was one of more than 2,100 American Motors dealers "airlifted" to Los Angeles International Airport in a single day to meet with company officials and to view AM's 1969 car line.

Nineteen giant jets carriedthe entire American Motorsdealer force from all parts of the country to Los Angeles in the morning, and returned them to their starting points late the same day. Some dealers traveled more than 6,000 miles roundtrip to attend the meeting.

The meeting began even before the dealers arrived in Los Angeles. While on route, they watched a 45minute product film on AA's Astrocolor, in the first auto sales meeting in the sky.

Upon arrival at the airport, they were taken to the American Airlines hangar area to see the 1969 Ambassador, Rebel, Rambler, AMX and Javelin cars, and to learn about AM's 1969 sales objectives from Roy D. Chapin, Jr., board chairman, and William V. Luneburg, president.

Dealers had lunch at the airport, saw a performance exhibition by Craig Breedlove, world land-speed record holder, who drove the company's AMX sports car, and then reboarded the jets to return home.

Penney Ready For 93rd Birthday, 24th Election

One of the few who can make this claim is James Cash Penney, founder of the department store chain, who is getting ready to observe his 93rd brithday on Monday, Sept. 16.

Mr. Penney seems less excited about the observance than most other associates in the Penney Company. Says Mr. Penney, "When you've had as many birthdays as I have, they become a matter of course. However, you can be sure that I'll be good and ready for No. 100."

Regardless of Mr. Penney's feelings about No. 93 associates at the Penney store here are looking forward to the birthday and plan to celebrate with a cake, according to manager S. T. Bush.

Mr. Penney's role with the Company is somewhat like that of an ex-president of the U. S. Although he has not been involved in direct management of the Company for a number of years, Mr. Penney continues to have special meaning for associates and is viewed as an elder statesman of retailing. On a formal basis, he makes his feelings about the Company known through continued service on the board of directors.

A lot of history has taken place during Mr. Penney's lifetime. When he was born in 1875, Ulysses S. Grant, 18th president, was in his second term, having first been elected in 1868.

The Republican slogan for Grant in his first campaign was "Match him!" On the other hand, one of the most wistfully appealing slogans of all time was the one used by Grant's forgotten opponent, Horatio Seymour: "Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us."

Theodore Roosevelt was president in 1902, when Mr. Penney, then 26 years old, opened his first store in Kemmerer, Wyo.

Roosevelt is remembered today for popularizing the adage, "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." It was used to underline Roosevelt's belief that the U. S. should exercise restraint in its pronouncements, but at the same time maintain a strong navy in order to support the Monroe Doctrine.

The 500th Penney store was opened in 1924 in Hamilton, Mo., Mr. Penney's hometown. It was the same store where Mr. Penney had started his retailing career in 1895 when the sotre was operated as J. M. Hale & Brother. Mr. Penney bought out the store when Mr. Hale decided to retire. President when the Company opened No. 500 was Calvin Coolidge, who had moved up from the vice presidency when Warren G. Harding died in 1923. Coolidge was elected in his own right in 1924 on the slogan, "Keep cool with Coolidge."

Harry S. Truman was president in 1951, when Mr. Penney saw the Company reach a significant milestone--its first billion dollar sales year.

Will Hubert H. Humphrey or Richard M. Nixon succeed Lyndon B. Johnson and become the 37th president? Mr. Penney is following the campaign with the same interest as other Americans.

One reason Mr. Penny is interested in politicis is he feels it is a lot like retailing.

First, a good politician, like a good retailer, must have a basic interest in people. Mr. Penney advises, "Don't go into retailing unless you like people."

Second, both politics and retailing require a certain amount of showmanship. A retailer can have quality merchandise, but unless he lets the consumer know, he might as well close his doors. By the same token, a politician also must dramatize his assets.

Fishermen on the Sea of Galilee used torches to attract fish to their boats at night back in Biblical days. Today commercial herring fishermen on Puget Sound employ the same technique using mercury lamps – the type that illuminates many American streets.

Because herring sleep on the bottom of the sea in daylight, commercial fishing is done after dark when they rise to the surface to feed. One fisherman increased his catch ten-fold.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

The enclosed article might give a few Post rejected subscribers a lift.

We unsophisticated readers of the computer age can console ourselves - we certainly aren't alone!

standard
saturday evening post
trims some millionaires
in effort to 'upgrade'
subscriber list

By FREDERICK C. KLEIN

Like a Saturday Evening Post subscription.

Winthrop Rockefeller made this ego-demolishing discovery recently when the Post rejected him as a reader. As a resident of Arkansas—he's the governor—Mr. Rockefeller is part of the rural audience the Post wants to shed.

The Post, which helped its publisher lose $55 million between 1961 and 1967, has a plan. It intends to get in the black by discarding more than half its 6.3 million mail circulation—people like Mr. Rockefeller-and concentrating on those who appreciate "more sophisticated" editorial matter.

According to the get-well script, the Post will drop out of its costly and losing circulation battle with Life and Look, print more articles aimed at a mostly metropolitan readership and start making money. The Post hopes for an 80% metropolitan circulation. But in cutting back, some city subscribers have to go, too.

Those who already have failed to meet the new Post subscriber standards include Mrs. William A. Emerson of Atlanta, mother of the magazine's editor, and Mrs. William Kerby, a Brooklyn resident whose husband is president of Dow Jones & Co., which published this newspaper.

Crushing the Readers

A Post spokesman says all who flunk should be consoled to learn that a similar cancellation was received by Martin S. Ackerman, who dreamed up the scheme. He is president of Curtis Publishing Co., which published the Post.

Mr. Ackerman and the other rejects mentioned above have requested, and been granted, a continuation of their present Post subscriptions. They apparently were victims of an unfeeling computer that was ordered to knock out 70% of the Post's rural subscribers and 50% of its metropolitan-suburban readership—and it went about the job without making nice distinctions, the Post explains.

Some readers go into shock when they realize the Post considers them too square for the magazine. A suburbanite said she was "definitely disgruntled, deeply shocked and abysmally crushed" to get the form rejection letter.

One castoff pointed out to the Post that his wife once was invited to a party given by Sen. Edward Kennedy's wife. And, he added, she "prepares succulent repasts strictly following the rules of French cuisine."

A Pennsylvania woman said she and her husband had "attained middle class affluence" and qualified as Post people. "We spend most of what we take in," she said.

A number of readers show bad form when dropped. A Los Angeles engineer flaunted his Ph.D., said he made "in excess" of $40,000 a year and described his as "The very model of your target subscriber family." He stuffily concluded his notice was mailed in error.

Circulation Man a
Knuckle-Head?

A sarcastic subscriber wrote to Benjamin Franklin, Editor—he founded the Post's predecessor in 1728 - and sent a copy to "your knuckle-headed circulation director." Signing himself Thomas Jefferson, the writer complained he was cancelled out because his Monticello residence wasn't "on the sophisticated side of Charlottesville."

Post expendables have several options. They can demand a cash refund or continuation of the Post or some other Curtis magazine. Or, thanks to a deal between publishers, they can substitute arch-rival Life for the remainder of their Post subscription.

"We know you'll love Life," says the Post's letter. "However, if your attachment to the Post is absolutely unbreakable, we could continue your subscription but only if you notify us within the next 10 days."

Life isn't the alternative say some. "Much of our mail has been from people who say that if they wanted Life, they'd already be subscribing to it," says a Post spokesman who seems unable to resist a needle even though the circulation war is over.

To be sure, not everyone is fighting mad at being switched. A life circulation man says that 75% of Post readers being offered Life are happy to get his magazine. "The response is better than we expected," he says.

And a Chicago-area man says he is "not particularly concerned" whether the Post continues arriving in his mailbox or he just gets a refund on his three-year subscription.

Mr. Rockefeller, Mrs. Kerby and any others the Post tries to drop could go on reading the magazine without a subscription, of course, simply by paying the newsstand price.

But soon, only the most free-spending sophisticates might be able to afford the Post. Starting with the Sept. 7 issue, the newsstand price is jumping from 35 cents to 50 cents, and a year's subscription will go from the present $3.95 to $8 or $10, according to Mr. Ackerman.

HOMEGROWN UFO'S

While warm weather is still with us it is smart to remember that unidentified flying objects – such as candy wrappers, for example – can be highly dangerous when whirling around inside moving automobiles. Loose papers suddenly caught in the wind when a window is open will obscure the driver's vision and cause accidents, an auto authority says.

Don't clutter up the back shelf with candy wrappers, unpaid bills, credit card receipts or paper saucers. They could fly.

Prison Stabbing Involves Madrid County Convict

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Charles Cherry, 33, serving a life term for a Carter county murder conviction, suffered a series of stab wounds in the chest and left arm Sunday night in an altercation with another prisoner at Missouri Penitentiary, Warden Harold R. Swenson reported today.

Swenson said none of the wound entered the chest cavity and the wound in the arm was more serious. He said the knife used was fashioned from a file with a whittled handle affixed to it.

Investigators from the state highway patrol questioned Billy Joe Garrett, 37, serving a 50-year sentence for an armed robbery conviction in New Madrid county.

Swenson said the fight eruptted when a tier of cells was opened to allow the men to take showers.

STILL IN SCHOOL

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Herbert White, Huguenot High School's 68-year-old custodian, is retiring from that job, but it doesn't mean he's through with schools.

White, who left school in the third grade, has decided to complete his elementary and high school education and will attend night school to get a diploma.

Fun and Excitement 50 Years Ago At County Seat

in The Kansas City Times
By Harold Calvert

CARROLLTON, Mo. - Farms and most small villages in the Mid-West have steadily lost citizens to the large urban centers over the last 40 years. County seat towns, provided they have been able to attract an industry or two to offset their farm trade loss, have nevertheless enjoyed some growth during these years of shifting population.

"Crazy Day" promotion held annually in Carrollton is reminiscent of county seat street scenes common before World War I. During "Crazy Day" the merchants dress in corny, outlandish costumes, pile bargains on the sidewalk outside their stores and in general promote a carnival atmosphere for shoppers.

Early-day merchants and all their customers were definitely not "rubes" but Saturday was the day when most farm families made their weekly visit to the county seat. A festive atmosphere on that day was the custom and the farm people seemed to enjoy it. The present burlesque of those days is equally enjoyed.

Buildings Little Changed

Most of the store buildings around the square facing the courthouse and a block or so each way, save for face liftings, are still the same as they were when the present courthouse was built in 1902. Fire took the old Wilcoxson Opera House at the southwest corner of the square and the Baum and David building at the northeast corner. Both buildings were replaced with more modern structures.

One thing around the square that is decidedly dissimilar to, say, 1910 -- is the vehicular traffic. Sleek automobiles of various makes, models and shapes constantly circle the square. The stream of cars, almost any week day, seems to never slacken, as anyone trying to back out of a parking slot will verify. How different from the traffic of 50 or 60 years ago.

True, a few automobiles of early vintage were seen occasionally on the streets in those days, their owners and drivers forming a small group of daring and , adventure some citizens. Most of those old cars were gasoline propelled, such as Stoddard-Dayton and Pierce-Arrow. A few were electrically (battery) driven and at least one steamer puffed gently around the city.

Let's picture a typical scene around the square during the early years of the century. If the day happened to be in the summer and on a Saturday, the streets and sidewalks were crowded with vehicles and pedestrians.

Produce Comes to Market

Farm families arrived in town usually about 9:30 or 10:00 in the morning. After depositing fresh produce at their favorite grocery, the horse or team of horses was tethered at one of the public hitchracks or quartered out of the weather in one of the livery stables. Farm horses were a little skittish in town. The strange noises, such as automobiles made, and the clanging and squeaking of an electric street car as it progressed across the square on its winding trip from the depots, did little to calm their nerves. A runaway team sometime during the day wasn't uncommon.

By mid-morning the town was a beehive of activity. Storekeepers walked to work but the streets were full of commercial delivery wagons, carts and farm vehicles. Mr. Sid Appleby's dray wagons were unloading their freight at the various stores. Mr. Will Sturgis and his grocery delivery wagons were busily picking up the morning's grocery orders from the 13 to 15 grocery stores.

The big ice delivery teams, Mr. Oberlag's beer delivery wagons, the laundry cart, perhaps Ralph Rice and his meat delivery cart, Otto Schmidt's telephone repair cart and many other commercial vehicles of the day all added to the clutter and hubbub of a busy Saturday morning. The air was tantalizing pleasing with many alluring odors, especially those from the sidewalk popcorn and peanut roasting machines. By noon everyone was ready for lunch.

A Variety of Lunches

Some farm people brought their lunch with them; others munched cheese and crackers in a grocery while many unencumbered fellows partook of a sandwich at Dad Offit's or Shorty Baldwin's lunch stand. Some even gave the free lunch at the saloons a working over. Many visitors, however, took their families to Jackson's restaurant for the day's eating highlight. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were Negroes and hired Negro help. The Jacksons operated one of the best restaurants in that part of the state and drew patrons from far and near. Food was served family style by white-jacketed men waiters.

Street crowds were fairly orderly during the day but frequently a visiting farm hand or a local "goodtime Charlie" some time during the day would get a little too much of the cup that cheers but alas also blears. When two quick taps sounded on the courthouse bell, it wasn't necessarily 2 o'clock. It was the signal for the town marshal to "come quick" and quiet a disturbance, usually on "battle-row" just off the square. Most of the saloons were located there and things sometimes got a little out of order.

Marshal on the Job

Bob White was a noted marshal of his day. Tall and arrow straight, with his dark blue suit and large light colored hat, his was more the appearance of a prosperous cattleman than of a town marshal. But have no doubt, he was always equal to the occasion. Within a few minutes after the alarm was sounded, he could usually be seen with a rubbery legged individual by the arm and headed across the courthouse yard toward the calaboose. The rubbery-legged one was usually somewhat argumentative but Bob White's stony countenance never seemed to suggest that he heard his prisoner's protestations - until they became overly abusive. Then a huge fist landed flush on the protester's mouth and the argument suddenly ceased.

His Life Never Dull

The county sheriff, the town marshal and the night policeman along with a part-time sheriff's deputy constituted about the entire law enforcement team. Automobiles now have complicated the law enforcement picture and many more peace officers are needed. Even in those days, however, occasional murder, miscellaneous thefts and quarrels kept an officer's life anything but dull.

In the afternoon while the women folks shopped the millinery and dress shops and the young people, shyly in some cases, boldly in others, got together socially, the men talked farming, visiting over a soft drink and many time a drink not so soft. Some days, free entertainment of a sort was furnished on the courthouse walk by a traveling group of ballad singers with appropriate accompaniment. If a member of the group was blind (or allegedly so) contributions came all the easier.

Perhaps the afternoon's routine might be broken by a long mournful blast of the steam whistle at the waterworks signifying a fire somewhere in town. The long blast was followed by a number of short ones which denoted the ward where the fire was supposed to be raging.

Show by Fire Wagons

Before the whistle had ceased, people were rushing toward the fire barn. They weren't interested so much in the fire as they were in seeing the fire wagon driver bring his vehicle, pulled by the two city-trained firehorses, out of the barn and with bell clanging and sparks flying head them in a ponderous gallop toward the scene of the blaze. Ol' Joe and Ol' Dan, the firehorses, like all well-trained such animals, seemed to enjoy their work as much as we youngsters envied the driver his job. "Indian Tom" Finley was the early driver that I remember best. I thought he had the most romantic job imaginable.

Then, along in the late afternoon, it came time for most of the farm families to start home. The surrey, buggy, wagon or whatever conveyance the [illegible] brought to the grocery store to load the week's supply of staples -- probably a 50 pound sack of locally milled Queen of the Southwest or Rose of Carroll flour, a pound or two of Peaberry coffee, sugar, salt and other items not produced on the farm. The grocery balanced the purchases against credit for the produce brought to town and a settlement was made.

Many of the younger sports stayed on into the evening to enjoy themselves bowling, playing pool and occasionally visiting a saloon. Some families stayed to enjoy the latest play at the Wilcoxson opera house. Stores stayed open until nearly midnight and the overworked merchants had some legitimate excuse for arriving late at church services the next day. The big day came to a close but would be repeated in varying degree the following Saturday.

Quaint days those. But have no illusions. The present ones, may soon seem equally quaint.

Locals and Personals

Miss Barth, the new teacher, conducted chapel exercises this week.

The Commercial department of the High School received three or four new typewriters this week.

This is the second week of high school and prospects were never brighter for a successful years work.

Willet Lockhart was absent part of this week on account of a sprained ankle received while playing football.

The total number of students attending the public school are 684; 133 enrolled in the High School. A grand total of 817.

John Donanew furnished the school with a great deal of amusement Tuesday when, in attempting to take a seat, he slipped and fell sprawling on the floor.

Owing to increased number of tardies the past few mornings effective steps have been taken by Supt. Lee to lessen this parctice, which is most always unnecessary.

What is the public school? A W.C.T.U. lecturer this week said: "It is an accommodation for the mother, a living for the teacher and a punishment for the students."

Since the High Schools of serveral towns have been writing to us wanting a game of football, Coach Van Horne has addressed a number of the schools in Southeast Missouri to have coaches from each school in question meet in Sikeston Saturday, September 25 to arrange a schedule of games.

The faculty has been trying to convince the young ladies that the excessive use of powder is very injurious to their complexion. However, they continue to spread it on profusely. The teachers are hoping the girl pupils will see the error of their way and cease the obnoxious practicing of doping "their" face. The fair, natural complexion of a maiden is more beautiful to look upon than a girl who seeks to hid her attractive contenance with a false face.

Miss Anna Zentmyer, of Higginsville, president of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., gave a lecture Thursday afternoon to the student body of the Sikeston High School. It was on the use of alcohol and tabacco. After the talk, which was very much appreciated, we called on her for a reading, which she gave. We have had some splendid lectures from the ladies attending the State W.C.T.U. Convention this week. Miss Zentmyer is a fine speaker and the student body is always eager to listen to a woman who can present such strong truths with force and earnestness.

On Monday afternoon of this week the agriculture class took their first field trip. They went by the Scott County Farm Bureau and asked Mr. Derr to go with them. They first studied the corredt method of pruning shade trees and at the same time called attention to improper methods of pruning. Excellent samples of tree surgery were seen and contrasted with some poor ones in which the cement was not put in correctly. Mr. Deer explained a number of orchard diseases and insect pests and how to eradicate them. The class greatly appreciated his explanations and hope to go on another trip soon.

Lectures to High School

The greatest and most appreciated lecture ever delivered to the high school was that of Mrs. Lora S. LaMance Thursday morning. Instead of the regular chapel exercise Mrs. LaMance addressed the high school. Her subject was Alaska. Mrs. LaMance has spent quite a bit of time the last few years in Alaska and is well qualified to speak on this subject.

"It is a wonderful country," says Mrs. LaMance, "in many ways. The United States bought it for less than one-half cent per acre. She paid $7,200,000 fot it, and has received twenty five dollars and fifty cents in return for every dollar put into it. And this great gain comes from four things - fish, fur, gold, and cooper. She has wonderful coal mines, some forty feet thick, that have been opened.

"Alaska has no roads. It has vast territory, a little larger than one fifth of the United States, there is less than one hundred miles of roads, and less than a thousand miles of trail. This is caused by the southern part of the country being bog from inches to twenty feet deep. Consequently, farming is not extended because to much must be expected to drain these bogs. When a boy can make thirty-seven dollars a day catching fish, it is reasonable to suppose that he will not expend a great amount of money to drain a garden spot.

"Alaska has the greatest dead volcano in the world. It is near the seacoast, and the sea fairly boils thru the crater.

"People frequently ask me," says Mrs. LaMance, "whether or not horses are used in Alaska?" There are very few because they cannot endure the severe climate. Reindeer and dogs are much more easily cared for, because they can take care of themselves.

"Alaska is the land of opportunity. There is wealth, walth, wealth. But the person who goes there must be physically and morally strong, or he will take the downward path; and if he starts down, it seems that in Alaska he can never turn back.

"The people can readily acquire the habits of civilization. Fifty-six years ago the first missionary who went there saw them eating human beings. Now they have their own schools, splendid churches and public buildings, their own water and light system. Alaska is indeed, a wonderful land, for those who are able to withstand the evils there. I would like to tell you more about Alaska; about the people and the land; about the gold mines and fox-farms there and many other things that I am sure you would enjoy hearing."

Several other lectures were delivered, all of which were interesting and to the point They were highly appreciated by us.

Two of the important lecturers were those of Mrs. Winters, of St. Joseph, who lectured to the girls on the public school system of today, and Mrs. Emmons, of Mexico, who lectured to the boys on the use of alcohol and tabacco.

The Sikeston public school had quite an honor conferred upon it when James Matthews, of the 6th grade, and Lyman Fox, of the First Primary, won the State prizes offered by the W.C.T.U. for the essay work in the school. This essay work has been in the Sikeston school for four years and during that time the school has won three State prizes. James and Lyman were introduced to the W.C.T.U. Convention Thursday morning and will be presented with books by Mrs. L. O. Middleton, State Superintendent of L. T. L. work in Missouri. This work should be in the High school as well. There were 17 medals given last year, from the first primary, down through the eighth grade, and this next year there should be 18 awarded.

The people of Sikeston, as well as the High School, are proud of having the champion W.C.T.U. medal contestant in the State. This is our Freshman, Dallas Beauchamp, who is only 13 years old, but was awarded the diamond medal over five competitors, all women and older than himself. They were worthy competitors, too, but were not able to compete against this youth of the Sikeston District. This makes the fourth medal Dallas has won since July. A silver and gold medal were received incompetition with children, after which the district medal at Blodgett, and Thursday night he competed against the best talent in the State, grown young ladies and married women, one of the girls being a High School teacher in a neighboring town, and was declared winner of the Diamond Medal over all. This gives young Dallas the state-wide reputation that he deserves.

The above news was reported from the Sikeston Herald of September 18, 1915.

CORRECTS MAYOR

"Mayor Alfonso J. Cervantes was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right to Work, to rescind his recent order banning purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Government," stated Gene Mittelberg.

Asserting that the AFL—CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians For Right To Work, told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Purchasing Department."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

QUICK QUIZ

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED - Findings in the joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the national recreation area potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of GreaterSt. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS - This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor. Foreign Aid Needs A Sanity Clause

Let's take a look at what recently came out of Santa's bag of goodies. A breakdown of U.S. aid spending for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962, showed that of 107 recipients, India accounted for nearly twice as much as any other nation. Pakistan, which received almost $404 million, was second, followed by Turkey, Korea, Vietnam, Brazil, Chile, the United Arab Republic, the Republic of China and Mexico, in that order.

The European nation receiving the most U.S. aid was Yugoslavia, which ranked 13th among all recipients. Altogether, more than $2 billion in U.S. aid has gone to hat nation. Apparently Tito doesn't think he has to be a good boy in order to have a visit from Santa Claus. The acting chairman of the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee has stated that there is a "planned campaign of physical violence" directed from the capital of Yugoslavia to oust American Serb religious leaders.

One American taxpayer, retired businessman R. J. Ausfahl of Dallas, decided to learn first hand what happens to U.S. foreign aid money after it leaves this country. His findings were:

"Among the objectives of our foreign aid programs is to give assistance to the less-fortunate peoples of the world...Few of us would deny assistance to the sick, miserably-housed and poverty-stricken in Asia and Africa. The sorry part is that, with all the billions of tax dollars that have been contributed to these areas, the less fortunate have benefited only to the extent of wages received from work on some of our idiotic and ridiculous projects.

"My criticism of foreign aid is based entirely on personal, on-the-spot observations of many of our projects in 14 countries of Asia and Africa, plus 8 years' residence in South America. No accusations are made of graft or thievery.

"Space limits me to descriptions of a few projects. There are dozens more, equally as ridiculous as the following examples.

The following paragraph sets the stage for a comparison.

"Illinois Route 74, a recently constructed highway I have watched progress, is a four-lane concrete artery that passes through high-priced farmland. Millions of yards of earth were moved in construction of overpasses. Average wages paid were roughly $3 per hour. The cost was $700,000 per milee.

"Contrast this with the cost of a foreign-aid road in Saigon, South Vietnam. American contractors and engineers using identically the same equipment as was used on Illinois No. 74 were completing the first 18-mile leg of a proposed 250-mile road. This road was largely of 2-lane, concrete construction that originated in the city but terminated in the flat virgin jungle. There was one short piece of overpass over the railroad tracks. Wages paid were from 6 to 32 cents per hour, with an average of 12 cents.

"The cost was about $4 million per mile.

"I questioned local people as to why such a road had been built and got this answer: "So the fat Chinaman with the automobile can take his wife out riding on Sunday afternoon.'

"Kosichang, Thailand, is a small town, built on a mountainside. The cobblestone surface on a street in the outer edge of town had been replaced with a concrete street complete with gutters. The oddity of this project we supplied was that there wasn't a car, truck, or even a bicycle in the town. But they did have a street for an occasional two-wheel oxcart.

"Djibouti, French Somaliland, had another example of American generosity. Fifty assorted sizes of trucks were stored on a vacant lot ajoining the dock. They had never been uncrated and had stood there so long that the red in the clasped-hands insignia of foreign aid had faded to pink. "A search through he city and surrounding area disclosed no construction projects.

"Inquiry as to why the trucks were not being used brought the answer, "Nobody knows now to drive or service them.'

"Rougly 95 percent of the peoples of Asia and Africa are illiterate and have insufficient income for the bare necessities of life.

"In my travels I found there was little evidence the foreign aid was being used for educational purposes. The general attitude of the 5 percent toward the 95 percent seemde to be that the latter are dumb and that it is better to keep them that way. Communism thrives on ignorance, yet (foreign aid) give-away ignores, education and embarks on ridiculous grandiose projects to demonstrate how we do it in the U.S.A."

Mail Box

To The Editor:
Sikeston, Mo.

Sir:

I write this letter to you with a certain amount of anxiety and misgivings, but a strong sense of conscience and devotion to the profession and vocation that God has lain upon me, compells me to speak out. I am speaking of the large number of "George Wallace for President" stickers that I have seen in our county.

Now I recognize that a man's politics is a personal matter and that it should not be tampered with, but as one of those men set aside by God to be a leader, in guiding the consciences and hearts of men, thru love and understanding, I feel the need to turn on the "Lamp of Understanding."

One of our great leaders said that; "We have nothing to Fear but Fear itself," and this is appropriate advice for today. The unrealistic candidacy and campaign of governor Wallace is based on fear and superstition. He calls for law and order, suppression of the anarchists and the stopping of the intellectual, all, of whom, he feels are a threat to our way of life.

Now let us, through honesty and objectivity, look at the facts, Governor Wallace calls for law and order but this is the same man that was conspicously silent when an unruly crowd of white persons were in evidence around central high school, Little Rock, Ark., during the attempt of law abiding Negro families to integrate it; when ministers, nuns and dedicated laymen marched in Montgomery, Alabama's freedom march, and state and local policemen attacked them; when the dogs and water hoses, in Birmingham, stopped the efforts of peaceful assembly by loyal citizens; when a bomb was tossed into a Birmingham church, on that Sunday morning, killing three innocent children; when the unruly crowd of people, led by former U.S. Army General Walker of Dallas, Texas, attempted to disrupt the integration of the university of Mississippi by battling U.S. marshalls and this is the same man who thumbed his nose at his own people, when they voted that a man could not serve more than two terms as governor, by running his wife as a stand-in for himself.

Governor Wallace calls for suppression of the anarchist but this is the same man who defied the entire country by physically standing in the door of the university of Alabama to stop integration, decreed by the Federal Government; this is the same man that advocates dissolving the the supreme court and the Federal Government. He derides the intellectual, while riding from state to state, in an airplane designed and conceived by them, he runs his state with computors and methods brought on by the intellectual, he is living in a country, blessed with an advanced technology, thanks to our intellectuals, therefore his thesis is not logical.

I therefore submit to you that the remark of the governor, that; "All Lawbreakers should be shot," could turn out to be fatal to him, as the first funeral held, would be his.

Investigate the number of "United Methodist" ministers who have been forced to leave the state of Alabama, because of the Wallace regime.

I admonish your readers, Sir, to refrain from being led by patrotic sounding phrases and emotionalism but by honest soul searching and by God. I believe, then, if God leads them they will be led in another direction pointing to decency rather then to density.

Thank you Sir, and may God's richest blessings be on you and all who read this honest thought.

To the Editor,
Daily Sikeston Standard
Dear Sir,

I am enclosing the editoral section which was recently published in The Daily Dunklin Democrat, in Kennett, Mo., which I have just received. This plea by Publisher Jack Stapleton, Jr., I feel should be read by every American Citizen, and acted on if for no reason than to pay a Tribute to her husband who gave his life for each and everyone of us.

To take time to write a card or letter is the lest we can do to say "Thank You" to this young widow, who gave us her husband. Echo is a very nice young girl, whom I know personally as a member of her family.

It is very difficult for us to understand why this is happing to a person who has been of no trouble to anyone. When we stop to think how much trouble we have with our own people. Really, I can't help wonder why she would want to stay with so much turmoil in our land. Don't get me wrong I love my Country more with each passing day. But each day also, I ask myself why must it be this way.

So I am asking each of you to send a card or letter today. To show Echo and the rest of the world that we are truly Americans who have the right to stand up and be counted when it comes to what we believe in. And to say "Thank You" to all the boys, and families, who have died for you and I.

Mrs. Glenda Wasson,
Sikeston, Mo.

Please find an self-addressed envelope enclosed, as I would like to have the writing returned to me as soon as you are finished.

Drew Pearson Special

EDITORS: For your information and publication if desired most congressmen honestbut cut corners, Pearson contends

Drew Pearson, interviewed by Mike Wallace on the CBS radio show "dimension," declared that while an overwhelming majority of congressmen are honest but that many of them "cut corners."

Asked about the new book, "The Case Against Congress," he wrote with Jack Anderson, Pearson told Wallace that most congressmen are good men. He added:

"There's a lot of cutting corners, such as relatives on the payroll, such as junkets abroad. There's nothing illegal about this, but still the public gets pretty fed up with things such as taking your office allowance and spending it on your own law office.

"We point out in this book that there 300 congressmen have law firms, and it's pretty hard to differentiate, draw the line, as between when they're practicingfortheir law firms, and when they're practicing for the government, sometimes on the floor of the congress."

Wallace then wondered if alcoholism is much of a problem in Washington. Pearson said:

"Not with a majority, but with a minority it is. This is one of the problems of Adam Clayton Powell and one of theproblems of Tom Dodd. I've publicly called attention to the fact that Senator Long of Louisiana, who's a very fine senator, I think, he has problem late in the afternoon and he's told me, 'Drew, you're.wrong about my like of bourbon. You're absolutely wrong – it's scotch!'

"Mendel Rivers has said several times, 'Drew Pearson's got me on the wagon.' That is correct, and he has been on the wagon interminably, but he has fallen off on occasion.

Wallace asked Pearson how he started to specialize in Washington exposes. Pearson explained:

"I think it goes back to the Hoover administration when Bob Allen and I wrote a book, 'The WAshington Merrygoround,' because there was so much news that we saw not being published. Those were the rather complacent days of Herbert Hoover and you have a big majority of the newspapers, then and now, which are Republican and they glanceover a lot of things. So we wrote a book, and it was a best seller and we were both fired from our jobs as a result of that book. So we started writing a column daily to write the same kind of exposes."

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Do you think there might be any chance of at least getting myself as far as the Golden Gates with my "good intentions"? I'm one of these good thinkers that never makes it around to the good doings bit, you know sort of thoughtful and thoughtless all at the same time. For example, I'll hear someone's been taken to the hospital for major surgery and immediately I'm all contrite, heartsick, and running down a list of a dozen different things to do -- send them flowers, or would they prefer a book, or a card with a personal note in it, or perhaps it would be better to cook a meal for their family at home, or maybe offer to take the children off their hands for an evening, or and so on, and on, and on, and meanwhile, I get busy on one of the courtless tasks I have to do at home and the next time I think about what I should have done is when I'm walking down the street and came face to face with the patient herself, (the whole problem being that the doctors don't keep anyone in the hospital long enough these days for me to get around to getting my good deeds one!).

And it's not only the ill I neglect, it's even my own family and myself. I'm always full of good intentions when school first starts as to how I will arise early, put on a lovely robe (the first thing I'd better do there is go out and buy one, mine looks like I've just been through the battle of Gettysburg in them), and makeup, and sally forth to the kitchen to prepare a lovely breakfast, served with a clean cloth, and flowers on the table to start the day of my three fellas off right. Hasn't happened yet! Instead, they've had no flowers, a dirty cloth, cold cereal with peanut butter toast, and a mother to serve it who not only looked like she'd been through that famous battle, but that she had been on the Confederate side as well!

And now that Brete is off to kindergarten for the morning do I get myself bathed, perfumed, heeled and madeup to spend a glamourous day mopping, washing, and sweeping like Doris Day does in all her movies? Nah, I still do my chores dressed worse than any maid, and if I have to go to the store for something I just put on my sunglasses and pray I pass incognito -- that intention usually fails too, cause never am I hailed and greeted by so many friends as when I look like a slob, but just let me finally get the house and myself clean at the same time, and you guessed it, no company until both are good and dirty again. I'd just like to know how come dirt attracts friends? Oh well, such is life, and at least my thoughts are good ones even if my actions aren't and from what I read in the papers these days even that in itself is unusual!!

5,000 Turn out for Wallace Rally at Cape

By JERRY OBERMARK

CAPE GIRARDEAU—Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, third party presidential candidate, criticized the Republican and Democratic parties in a speech here this morning.

A crowd estimated at more than 5,000 persons cheered enthusiastically as Wallace spoke out for states rights and criticized the two major parties on major issues.

Wallace told the crowd that he expects to win the presidency in November.

"Yes, we can win. It's not just a Wallace phenomenon, it's you the people and people like you all over the country.

"We're talking about phisosophy of government, not one man. We have the masses of people for us. They feel that they have lost any say in how the government is run.

"This is a people's movement," Wallace said.

Wallace appealed to all voters in Missouri to cast their ballot for him because property ownership and the free enterprise system are under attack.

He charged that the federal government has taken over control of schools and businesses and is destroying the people's right to control domestic institutions.

"When I'm president, I'm going to turn back absolute control of your public schools to the individual states," he exclaimed.

He blamed the Republicans for taking away states rights in education, noting that U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren was appointed to the court during the Eisenhower Administration.

"Don't let the Republicans tell you they will give back states rights. They're the ones who took them away," Wallace said.

He pointed out that both Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon have supported the opening housing law, adding that he would have the law repealed when he is president.

On farm policy Wallace advocated the parity be raised from 70 per cent to 85 or 90 per cent. He charged that neither major party has done much for farmers in recent years and advocated better use of existing farm laws.

Referring to law and order, Wallace blasted "anarchists" and said that some newspapers in praising demonstrators "have created a Frankenstein and now the chickens are coming home to roost."

He said that as president he would give more support to the police and firemen, adding that he thought the Chicago police acted "mighty restrained" in dealing with the demonstrators at the Democratic convention last month.

He criticized the pending gun control legislation, saying that if it passed it would give the "thugs" and advantage over private citizens.

The candidate said that as president he would have the attorney general remove every Communist from defense plants.

Answering charges from Republican and Democratic leaders that he knows nothing about foreign policy, Wallace remarked:

"What do the Republicans and Democrats know about it? They spend $122 billion . . . and now we have less friends than we ever had."

He said that as president he would tell the European allies that they would have to help the United States with munitions, money and manpower and to stop trading with the North Vietnamese.

If the allies would not do this, he continued, then "I would cut off their foreign aid and make them pay their debts since World War I."

He reiterated his stand on the Paris peace talks, expressing hopes that they will succeed, but adding that he did not think they would.

As president, should the talks fail to bring peace in Vietnam, he would confer with the Joint Chiefs of Staff on whether the war could be won by use of conventional weapons, and if it could be won, would push for victory.

He called the raising of the Viet Cong flag on college campuses and advocation by some colleges professors for a Viet Cong victory in the name of academic freedom "are nothing short of treason."

"We're going to shake the eye teeth of the liberals in both parties and return sanity to the American government," Wallace said.

Wallace has completed an eight-month effort to meet the qualifications as a third-party candidate for the ballots of all 50 states.

He talked by telephone Tuesday night to 700 of his followers at a state convention in Seattle, Wash., the final state in which he met the ballot requirement.

Wallace has been certified on the ballots of only 45 states but has met the qualifications in all, an accomplishment that required the signatures of nearly three million persons.

In Ohio, however, his certification awaits a ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court, expected Oct. 7.

Pilot Knob to Relive Battle

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The famed Civil War battle of Pilot Knob in which an estimated 1,400 troops were killed will be re-enacted at the Iron County town Sept. 28.

The Missouri Tourism Commission announced today more than 100 men wearing Civil War uniforms and using Civil War cannon will stage the re-enactment.

The same day Will W. Davis, director of the State Tourism Commission, will dedicate a marker commemorating the unidentified soldiers who lost their lives there.

Federal troops led by Gen. Thomas Ewing are credited with staving off an attack by Confederate Gen. Sterling Price which headed off his march on St. Louis.

In a bloody 15 minutes, Gen. Price lost about 1,200 of his men in a headon charge against the entrenched federal troops, who lost about 200 men.

Sheppard Faces 2 Suits

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) - Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard and the Youngstown Osteopathic Hospital have been named in two wrongful death suits totaling over $1 million. The suits were filed within 10 days of each other.

Martin L.Duffy filed suit in Mahoning County Common Pleas Court Tuesday for $685,000, claiming negligence in the death of his wife, Mary, last May 16, Duffy is fire chief in nearby Liberty Township.

Duffy contends Sheppard failed to perform proper post-operative care for his wife, who died 16 hours after the operation. He said the hospital was negligent in selecting Sheppard for its staff since he had not practiced in 10 years.

On Sept. 7, Mrs. Marcia Lepez filed a $530,000 suit against Sheppard and the hospital. She said her husband, Samuel died following a spinal operation performed by Sheppard on Aug. 7.

Sheppard, who spent nearly 10 years in the Ohio Penitentiary, joined the hospital staff this summer. He was convicted in 1954 of the bludgeon death of his first wife, Marilyn, in their suburban Cleveland home.

A federal court ruled that Sheppard did not get a fair trial. He was acquitted in a second trial.

A State Department spokesman made this statement Tuesday in reply to a Soviet note to West Germany last July in which it raised the possibility that under two articles of the U.N. charter the Soviet Union could use force against the Bonn government.

Robert J. McCloskey, State Department spokesman, issued the statement, but offered no explanation as to why it was being made more than two months after the original Soviet message.

Neither of the two articles, "nor the Soviet Union or other Warsaw Pact members any right to intervene by force unilaterally in the Federal Republic of Germany," the statement said.

Urges Caution On Siding Sale By Telephone

Richard Pinkerton, executive vice president and general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, today warned local residents to use caution concerning the sale by telephone of aluminum siding.

The Chamber office has received reports from residents who have been contracted by telephone about buying the siding. The calls have originated from Memphis, Pinkerton said.

The caller tells the resident that the firm is interested in using the person's house as a model for future siding sales in the area.

Pinkerton said residents should contact local siding merchants to compare prices before signing a contract with the Memphis firm, whose prices are expensive.

A car driven by Olin Friant, 41, Short Hill, N. J., went out of control on wet pavement at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 61, five miles south of Hayti, the highway patrol reported.

The car struck a concrete culvert. Sustaining a broken neck to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital at Hayti and transferred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis

A three-car collision at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 84, four miles west of Hayti, resulted in facial cuts and minor injuries to Linda Shelby, 16, Caruthersville. She was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital.

Reed received internal injuries, scratches and bruises and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape Girardeau.

Revisions Expected for Tax Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who is president or which party controls the House, the complicated and much amended tax code is due for a searching study and possible revision next year.

Both Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., who is in line to be chairman if the Republicans take over the House, say they favor a full-scale review of the Internal Revenue Code.

In separate interviews, both said they would put the review high on the committee's order of business and were prepared to schedule weeks, possibly months, of hearings.

Although some minor modifications were made in the code in connection with the 1964 tax reductions, there has been no extensive review of the tax laws since 1954.

Over the years a host of special provisions have been attached to the code, many of which are said by critics to be loopholes for the well-to-do and the well-advised.

Demands were made in Congress earlier this year in connection with passage of the 10 per cent income surtax for revisions to allow for additional revenue without a general tax increase.

But the Treasury pleaded against what promised to be controversial and drawn-out study of the code at the time because of what it said was the urgent need for immediate passage of the surtax.

The Treasury did promise to recommend to Congress possible changes in the law. Congressional leaders don't expect the recommendations until after the November elections.

There has been no official disclosure of what the Treasury may recommend, but it is not expected to call for abolition or drastic reduction of the controversial 27½ per cent oi depletion allowance.

Other likely subjects for review include:

—Revisions in the capital gains tax, including possible changes in when it would be imposed and on the length of time assets can be held before straight income tax is applied in place of the capital gains tax.

—Limitations on income splitting within a family. Revision of estate and gift taxes so as to make it less attractive to give away property during lifetime in order to lower the estate tax ultimate heirs will pay.

—Tightening the regulations on tax-exempt foundations, which have already been the subject of extensive congressional studies.

—In general, changes designed to lighten the tax burden at the lowest end of the income scale. A precedent of sorts may have been set this year when the lowest brackets were exempted from the surtax.

Church Census Oct. 13

The Sikeston Ministerial Alliance has finalized plans for a city-wide church census to be taken on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13, by members of the participating churches.

The church census committee is headed by the Rev. Durward Penry, of the First Christian Church. The Rev. Wade Paris of the Murray Lane Baptist Church, and Dr. Robert Lively of the Trinity Baptist Church, also are on the committee.

This committee has selected a format for the recording of information and plotted the various areas in which the canvessers will work.

A copy of the canvass card will appear in the Daily Standard prior to Oct. 13. Residents of Sikeston may fill in the desired information on this facsimile and tape it to the door or mail box on that Sunday in order to facilitate the work of the canvessers.

Muskie Cancels Rally Appearance

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Democratic vice presidential candidate, has been forced to cancel plans to appear here Sept. 28 as the featured speaker at the annual Bootheel Democratic Rally.

The cancellation announcement was made by State Sen. J. F. Patterson of Caruthersville, chairman of the Bootheel Democratic Club.

Sen. Muskie was forced to cancel his appearance here because of a misunderstanding of the time of the rally, Patterson said.

The vice presidential candidate had previously been scheduled to appear at an evening meeting in Iowa on Sept. 28 and had accepted the invitation to appear here Sept. 28, thinking the rally was scheduled in the afternoon, Patterson explained.

Replacing Sen. Muskie as keynote speaker will be Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who had previously been scheduled to introduce the vice presidential candidate.

Democratic candidates for state offices and incumbent state officials are expected to attend the rally.

Patterson stated that a large attendance is expected this year since the 10th Congressional District has been expanded. More than 1,000 persons have attended rallies in the past.

Tickets for the rally have been printed and state that Sen. Muskie will be the featured speaker. Tickets may be obtained from the chairmen of the Democratic committees of each county in the 10th District.

Sikeston and Scott County residents may buy tickets at the Ferrell Coal Co., 326 East Malone, or from Bill Lewis.

Mississippi County residents should contact Bob Hearnes of Charleston.

Other chairman in neighboring counties are:

Senate Rejects Gun Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected today an amendment to the firearms control bill to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., calling the proposal an anticrime and not an antigun measure, offered it as an amendment to a bill barring interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns.

But it was defeated 55 to 31.

Registration and licensing were strongly urged by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as part of the firearms control legislation he submitted to Congress.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., made his first appearance in the Senate chamber since his brother was slain last June to vote for the Tydings amendment.

He came in as the debate over the controversial proposal was nearing an end. He took no part in it and sat with his chin in his hand.

But the Senate did tack onto the bill an amendment that would make a person using a gun in a federal crime of violence liable to a sentence ranging up to life in prison.

This was adopted Tuesday prior to the opening of debate today on the most controversial issue over the control bill: whether to amend it to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

The registration proposal by Tydings was rejected by the House and the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier in the year when those bodies generally limited the measure to barring the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns.

The life sentence would be possible for people convicted of carrying a gun while committing such crimes as rape, arson, murder, kidnaping, burglary, theft, racketeering and extortion in a federal jurisdiction.

Assassination of a president also was specified.

The amendment was proposed by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., and was passed by voice vote after Sen. Thomas J. Dodd., D-Conn., said he knew of no opposition.

Another amendment, also adopted Tuesday by voice vote, would prohibit the confiscation by a government agency of any legally held and used firearm.

Sen. Daniel Brewster, D-Md., said there was nothing in the current bill that would allow confiscations but there is widespread concern among gun owners that stricter firearms controls could lead to that.

The Senate also accepted a provision making an exception to an over-all ban on over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns to residents of another state.

The exception, written into the bill by the Senate Judiciary Committee, permits sales to residents of adjoining states if they comply with the laws of both states.

Rejected 45 to 42 was an amendment by Dodd to tighten a requirement for dealers.

Muskie Cancels Rally Appearance

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Democratic vice presidential candidate, has been forced to cancel plans to appear here Sept. 28 as the featured speaker at the annual Bootheel Democratic Rally.

The cancellation announcement was made by State Sen. J. F. Patterson of Caruthersville, chairman of the Bootheel Democratic Club.

Sen. Muskie was forced to cancel his appearance here because of a misunderstanding of the time of the rally, Patterson said.

The vice presidential candidate had previously been scheduled to appear at an evening meeting in Iowa on Sept. 28 and had accepted the invitation to appear here Sept. 28, thinking the rally was scheduled in the afternoon, Patterson explained.

Replacing Sen. Muskie as keynote speaker will be Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who had previously been scheduled to introduce the vice presidential candidate.

Democratic candidates for state offices and incumbent state officials are expected to attend the rally.

Patterson stated that a large attendance is expected this year since the 10th Congressional District has been expanded. More than 1,000 persons have attended rallies in the past.

Tickets for the rally have been printed and state that Sen. Muskie will be the featured speaker. Tickets may be obtained from the chairmen of the Democratic committees of each county in the 10th District.

Sikeston and Scott County residents may buy tickets at the Ferrell Coal Co., 326 East Malone, or from Bill Lewis.

Mississippi County residents should contact Bob Hearnes of Charleston.

Other chairman in neighboring counties are:

Urges Caution On Siding Sale By Telephone

Richard Pinkerton, executive vice president and general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, today warned local residents to use caution concerning the sale by telephone of aluminum siding.

The Chamber office has received reports from residents who have been contracted by telephone about buying the siding. The calls have originated from Memphis, Pinkerton said.

The caller tells the resident that the firm is interested in using the person's house as a model for future siding sales in the area.

Pinkerton said residents should contact local siding merchants to compare prices before signing a contract with the Memphis firm, whose prices are expensive.

Three Injured in Highway Accidents

Two single-vehicle accidents and a three-car accident on area highways resulted in three persons being hospitalized, one with a broken neck.

A car driven by Olin Friant, 41, Short Hill, N. J., went out of control on wet pavement at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 61, five miles south of Hayti, the highway patrol reported.

The car struck a concrete culvert. Sustaining a broken neck to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital at Hayti and transferred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis

A three-car collision at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 84, four miles west of Hayti, resulted in facial cuts and minor injuries to Linda Shelby, 16, Caruthersville. She was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital.

A car owned by Maudean Bradford, Bragg City, was parked on the shoulder, when a car driven by Morris Fisher, 17, Wardell, stopped beside it, troopers said. Miss Shelby attempted to stop her car, which skidded into the parked vehicle and knocked it into the side of the Fisher car, troopers said.

In a one-vehicle accident today at 12:15 a.m., two miles south of Old Appleton on Highway 61, a truck driven by Melvin Reed, 30, Sullivan, went out of control on the wet pavement, troopers said.

The truck was passing another vehicle and skidded off the road into a creek bed and overturned, the patrol reported.

Senate Rejects Gun Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected today an amendment to the firearms control bill to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., calling the proposal an anticrime and not an antigun measure, offered it as an amendment to a bill barring interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns.

But it was defeated 55 to 31.

Registration and licensing were strongly urged by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as part of the firearms control legislation he submitted to Congress.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., made his first appearance in the Senate chamber since his brother was slain last June to vote for the Tydings amendment.

He came in as the debate over the controversial proposal was nearing an end. He took no part in it and sat with his chin in his hand.

But the Senate did tack onto the bill an amendment that would make a person using a gun in a federal crime of violence liable to a sentence ranging up to life in prison.

This was adopted Tuesday prior to the opening of debate today on the most controversial issue over the control bill: whether to amend it to require the registration of all firearms and the licensing of their owners.

The registration proposal by Tydings was rejected by the House and the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier in the year when those bodies generally limited the measure to barring the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns.

The life sentence would be possible for people convicted of carrying a gun while committing such crimes as rape, arson, murder, kidnaping, burglary, theft, racketeering and extortion in a federal jurisdiction.

Assassination of a president also was specified.

The amendment was proposed by Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., and was passed by voice vote after Sen. Thomas J. Dodd., D-Conn., said he knew of no opposition.

Another amendment, also adopted Tuesday by voice vote, would prohibit the confiscation by a government agency of any legally held and used firearm.

Sen. Daniel Brewster, D-Md., said there was nothing in the current bill that would allow confiscations but there is widespread concern among gun owners that stricter firearms controls could lead to that.

The Senate also accepted a provision making an exception to an over-all ban on over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns to residents of another state.

The exception, written into the bill by the Senate Judiciary Committee, permits sales to residents of adjoining states if they comply with the laws of both states.

Rejected 45 to 42 was an amendment by Dodd to tighten a requirement for dealers.

Shrimp, Ice Cream Taken

F. L. Cowan of Pharr, Tex., driver of a tractor - trailer truck, reported today to police that last night someone had taken 12 boxes of shrimp from his truck parked near the Sikeston Diesel Shop, 105 Roberts.

The truck had broken down and was awaiting repairs.

Revisions Expected for Tax Code

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who is president or which party controls the House, the complicated and much amended tax code is due for a searching study and possible revision next year.

Both Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., who is in line to be chairman if the Republicans take over the House, say they favor a full-scale review of the Internal Revenue Code.

In separate interviews, both said they would put the review high on the committee's order of business and were prepared to schedule weeks, possibly months, of hearings.

Although some minor modifications were made in the code in connection with the 1964 tax reductions, there has been no extensive review of the tax laws since 1954.

Over the years a host of special provisions have been attached to the code, many of which are said by critics to be loopholes for the well-to-do and the well-advised.

Demands were made in Congress earlier this year in connection with passage of the 10 per cent income surtax for revisions to allow for additional revenue without a general tax increase.

But the Treasury pleaded against what promised to be controversial and drawn-out study of the code at the time because of what it said was the urgent need for immediate passage of the surtax.

The Treasury did promise to recommend to Congress possible changes in the law. Congressional leaders don't expect the recommendations until after the November elections.

There has been no official disclosure of what the Treasury may recommend, but it is not expected to call for abolition or drastic reduction of the controversial 27½ per cent oi depletion allowance.

Other likely subjects for review include:

—Revisions in the capital gains tax, including possible changes in when it would be imposed and on the length of time assets can be held before straight income tax is applied in place of the capital gains tax.

—Limitations on income splitting within a family. Revision of estate and gift taxes so as to make it less attractive to give away property during lifetime in order to lower the estate tax ultimate heirs will pay.

—Tightening the regulations on tax-exempt foundations, which have already been the subject of extensive congressional studies.

—In general, changes designed to lighten the tax burden at the lowest end of the income scale. A precedent of sorts may have been set this year when the lowest brackets were exempted from the surtax.

Church Census Oct. 13

The Sikeston Ministerial Alliance has finalized plans for a city-wide church census to be taken on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13, by members of the participating churches.

The church census committee is headed by the Rev. Durward Penry, of the First Christian Church. The Rev. Wade Paris of the Murray Lane Baptist Church, and Dr. Robert Lively of the Trinity Baptist Church, also are on the committee.

This committee has selected a format for the recording of information and plotted the various areas in which the canvessers will work.

A copy of the canvass card will appear in the Daily Standard prior to Oct. 13. Residents of Sikeston may fill in the desired information on this facsimile and tape it to the door or mail box on that Sunday in order to facilitate the work of the canvessers.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If you think the Wallace driver for the presidency does not have the Democrats worried, you were not in attendance at the New Madrid County fish fry and barbecue Saturday afternoon.

It seems to us that the problem for the State ticket and for Tom Eagleton's success in November is to impress on the voters the need for them to fix an X in the Circle under the Statue of Liberty which heads the Democrats ticket and then go across to the American independent ticket and put an X in the square opposite the name of Wallace.

CHICAGO: A GREAT CITY

(Excerpts from a Chicago Tribune Editorial)

Into this orderly city was introduced an element youthful revolutionaries dedicated to what Staughton Lynd, the New Left professor, has called "the politics of confrontation." There may have been some harmless students among them, devoted to the causes of Sen. McCarthy or Sen. McGovern, or merely linked by common opposition to the war in Vietnam. But it was the professional agitators, attached to one form or another of the Marxian superstition and desirous of overthrowing the political and social order, who took charge, called the signals, and whipped up an emotional challenge to civil order.

The voices on the loudspeakers in the parks were those of Tom Hayden, a founder of the radical Students for a Democratic society, who reduced Columbia university to a shambles last spring; of David Dellinger, self-styled non-Soviet Communist, who organized the march on the Pentagon last October, and of Jerry Rubin, head of the Youth International party. These revolutionaries came to Chicago with the design of disrupting the Democratic convention and of taking over the streets.

The bearded, dirty, lawless rabble that followed them used every sort of provocation against police and national guardsmen - vile taunts, lye solutions, bricks, and rubble. They blocked street intersections, disrupted traffic in Michigan avenue, and tried to charge into hotels.

The police and guardsmen used such force as was necessary to repel them and to prevent them from interfering with the proceedings of the convention and promoting general rioting. Although it was manifestly part of the design to involve black Chicagoans, if possible, we are glad that these citizens did not lend themselves to the radical purpose.

For enforcing law and order, Mayor Daley and the police deserve congratulations rather than criticism. The mayor's statement yesterday said correctly that the revolutionaries had openly paraded their intentions for months, that they had carefully coordinated plans of action, and that they deliberately baited the police in the hope of producing a revolutionary ferment. Because the police would not yield the streets or surrender the city to them, Mr. Daley said, there has been much unjustified criticism, particularly from disgruntled elements which could not prevail on the convention floor.

Chicago did not invite these street fighters to come here in the hope of disgracing the city. The movements they represent did not originate here, but in Berkeley and New York. A sick cause mustered by sick people. The police have disclosed that 170 of the 436 persons arrested did not live in Illinois. If some of the protesters were hurt, so were 51 Chicago policemen. The attacks were by no means one-sided.

SYMINGTON HAS SENSIBLE WAY OF HELPING

At Washington the last of July, Senator Stuart Symington introduced an amendment to provide more equitable tax treatment for landowners forced to sell their property for public works. This is a particularly urgent problem right now, in Monroe and Ralls counties, and in some others in south Missouri where lakes are being built and land bought.

The Symington amendment "would permit the taxpayer to defer capital gains taxation of condemnation awards when he reinvests in securities or a business if he establishes that to require him to reinvest in only comparable real property would work undue hardship on him," the Missouri Senator said. "The burden of proof would be placed on the taxpayer."

Under present law a landowner may have capital gains tax deferred only if he reinvests in real property of like kind.

As an example, Symington pointed out that in areas such as that at Cannon Reservoir comparable replacement property is often not available and landowners are either forced to move considerable distances or are pushed into early retirement.

And while we're on this subject, allow us to remind the people of this area that Senator Symington early took the lead, with the late Congressman Cannon, in urging the Cannon dam and reservoir project be approved. Today, he has worked longer and more on it than any other person at Washington, because he has been in on it from the start, and continues to work at it, while attempting, as indicated above, to help those concerned as much as possible.

EVEN BIGGER TRUCKS

The America.. Trucking Associations, Inc., hereinafter called the truck lobby, says that the truck size and weight bill pending before the House is being misrepresented. It says the legislation, which was approved by the Senate in April, "by itself would change nothing" but would "merely permit individual states to make modest increases" in size and weight limits.

There are two things wrong with this position. If the permissive legislation were enacted, the next step would be to lobby the state legislatures to bring state limits up to the maximum. The argument (we can hear it now) would be to the effect that state laws ought to be uniform so that a truck could cross state lines without violating any law. It would not take long.

The second point revolves around the phrase "modest increases." Any motorist who travels the nation'shighways is sure the trucks are plenty big enough right now; if anything, too big. The American Automobile Association says the legislation is a safety threat to 103 million motorists and would cause irreparable damage to bridges and highways. It is said that the legislation would permit "highway freight trains" with triple trailers stretching 100 feet along the road. Try passing one of those on an upgrade!

Truck sizes and loads have steadily increased over the years. The House ought to put an end to this escalation. What about a law stating that every truck built after a certain date must be smaller than at present? Is there any reason why the ordinary motorist should suffer so the truckers can make more money?

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you trust a man who wears a bow tie?

Many people don't.

To find out how hidebound and conforming the world really is, you don't have to advocate a wild-eyed political theory, join a new sex cult, or become a hippie.

All you have to do is to wear a simple bow tie. This is enough to make you suspect to some nosy characters and, for some inexplicable reason, a source of annoyance to others.

At the least these self-appointed critics think a bow tie man is an oddball with a "little boy complex." At the worst they resent him because they think he is probably leading a double life and there by having twice as much fun as they do. That thought infuriates them.

The truth is, of course, that your typical bow tie man is reasonably normal, rarely robs a bank in public or beats his wife in private, and conscientiously tries to keep from overcooking the steaks during a backyard cookout. He customarily refrains from using brass knucks in a fight, pays his taxes regularly, and has even been known to grow roses as a hobby.

If you were painting his portrait, you'd have to color him true blue—except for that polka dot bow tie, which makes him stand out from the herd.

Yet at two out of three cocktail parties he goes to, sooner or later some tipsy blonde in a miniskirt three sizes too small for a Barbee doll will waddle up to him and sneer:

"Don't you think it's rather silly for a man your age to go around in a bow tie? Why do you wear it anyway?

There is only one appropriate response for the bow tie man in such a situation. That is, to circle behind his tormenter in dignified silence and pour his martini down the back of her neck, saving only the olive for himself.

But still the recurrent question haunts him: "Why do you wear it anyway?

There are several possible answers.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it weighs less than a millstone and scratches less than a beard.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it saves him money. It costs him about half as much as a four-in-hand tie would—and it is also less likely to be ruined by dripping gravy and flying ketchup.

A grown man wears a bow tie, not because it makes him feel like a "little boy," but because it makes him feel like D'Artagnan, Cyrano de Bergerac, or Kit Carson. It is his flag flaunted against fate, his banner flung in the face of time.

Wearing bow ties, it must be admitted, can be as habit-forming as cigarette smoking or drinking. At first a fellow can take them or leave them alone. Maybe he'll wear one only on Mondays or alternate Fridays.

But sooner or later he becomes an addict and starts donning them every day of the work week. If his wife doesn't watch him, he'll even try to sneak one on before squiring her to church on Sunday. Sometimes he'll even cache a spare one in his pocket—just in case. By then, naturally, he's hopelessly hooked for life, unless he can be brought to see the error of his ways and swears off forever.

Wearing a bow tie, it is sometimes held, can handicap a man's business career, as it hints of a secret instability in his nature. In this respect it might be noted that a recent picture of J. C. Penney, the 93 year-old chain store magnate, showed him brazenly sporting a skimpy bow tie.

One can only wonder how many hundreds of more stores Penney might have founded it only, in his youth, someone had taken him aside and advised him to wear a more conventional necktie.

"I beg your pardon, sir," replied the boy, "but the United States doesn't sail until the 20th."

The boss was impressed, and asked the boy to have the order department purchase a six months supply of copper.

The lad hesitated and then said, "Excuse me, sir, but all the market indications show that the price of copper is due to fall tomorrow and continue a downward trend for the next few months. Wouldn't it be wiser to wait and make our purchases on a month to month basis until the bottom is reached?"

"An excellent observation, young man. You are really on the ball," said the boss. "Oh, would you send Miss Smith in for some dictation."

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia leaves many questions unanswered; Russia may fear a break up of its empire; Even Russian people admired Czech freedom.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA—The Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia has been the most mp,emtpis European event since Hitler invaded the country in 1938 in his prelude to World War II, or since Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assassinated at Sarajevo in 1914. It has raised vitally important questions which effect the United States such as:

1. Is the Soviet Union's vast empire of many different ethnic groups about to break up?

2. To prevent a breakup, will Russian troops be moved into other countries one year later and occupied Poland?

3. Should the United States drastically curtail its military operations in Southeast Asia or even end the Vietnam war altogether in order to strengthen NATO?

4. Should Lyndon Johnson persevere in his efforts to talk longrange peace with Moscow or drop his efforts altogether?

5. Is there a chance of change in Moscow either of policy or leadership?

NO EASY ANSWERS

To answer these questions I have visited most of the capitals immediately adjacent to Czechoslovakia, interviewed many leaders, some off the record. The answers are not easy. To reach conclusions, you must ascertain what was in the Soviet leaders' minds when they reached the drastic decision to use brute force against Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia was extremely friendly to Russia. Even as early as 1923, five years after the Czech republic was founded, Edouard Benes, then foreign minister, told me Czechoslovakia's policy must be intertwined with Russia's. Later the Soviet sided with Cechs at the time of Munich, when Neville Chamberlain took a runout powder. After that it was the Russian army which largrescued the Czechs from the Nazi occupation.

Despite all this, Soviet leaders took the drastic step of doing to the Czechs what they had fought Hitler for doing. Why? The basic reason undoubtedly was the domino theory which John Foster Dulles made famous in Southeast Asia. The Kremlin saw other Communist-bloc countries getting contaminated by the new Czech freedoms and figured that if Czechoslovakia got away with it, the entire bloc would fall, one by one.

Yugoslavia had left the Soviet orbit long before, but it was geographically more isolated and in recent years had been careful not to criticize the Soviet Union. Romania five years ago had bolted the warsaw alliance and conducted its independent foreign policy, but it had adhered tp right communist doctrine. It also maintained friendly, uncritical relations with Moscow.

Czechoslovakia, however, had substituted social democracy for Communism and was rapidly heading toward a parliamentary system.

Furthermore, Czechoslovakia occupies a key military corridor splitting communist nations in ktwo, which when occupied by Nazi troops led to the downfall of Poland and the invasion of Russia.

IDEA OF FREEDOM CONTAGIOUS

Finally and perhaps most importantly, the Russian intelligenzia is getting contaminated by Czech political ideas. Russian tourists were crossing the border to marvel at Czech freedoms and came home to spread the word. In Moscow, for instance, you cannot buy a single foreign newspaper ormagazine except communist publications. But in prague newsstands featured Life, look and all British and American journals. Furthermore they read news and criticism of the Soviet which they had never been able to read at home. So the word spread. It spread especially to the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia, where thousands of tourists crossed the border and which has long been restless under Soviet rule. In the final showdown, it was Ukrainian secretary General Pyotr Shelest who was most vigorous agains Czech leaders. He shouted, waved his fists and even threatened physical violence.

All these things led up to the first four-day showdown between Czech and Russian leaders at Cierna and Bratislava. As previously reported in this column, these talks were far less friendly than indicated by the final handshaing and bear hugs. At one time the arguments were so bitter that the Russians refused to drink Czech coffee and even started calling each other "mister" instead of "comrade."

HAWKS AND DOVES

Surprisingly, Premier Kosygin, who seemed mild-mannered at the Glassboro sessions, was one of the toughest. Brezhnev was more conciliatory, though somewhat changeable. Surprisingly, Mikyail Suslov, the stalinist hardliner, was more conciliatory than the others. He's in charge of the Communist parties in Italy, France, Austria and the rest of Europe, so knew what their reaction would be to any crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

One hardline Communist attending the final Bratislavia conference was Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany and a long bitter skeptic about any cooperation with West Germany, who had noted with concern Czechoslovakia's new tradeand tourist interchange and its generally friendly relations with the West German government. One week after Bratislava, he returned to Czechoslovakia for the conference at Karlovy vary Aug. 12, where he proposed conciliatory steps for economic and scientific cooperation and emphasized the importance of Czech-East German understanding. This was quite a change for Ulbricht and the Czechs frankly didn't believe him. They rebuffed his overtures.

This may have been their biggest mistake. Ulbricht flew to Moscow immediately with reports that the Czechs had no intention of carrying out their Bratislava pledges. This was one of the major factors in tipping the scales for a military invasion, as will be detailed in a later column.

UPSET DRIVERS

A North Carolina state senator has complained to the Senate Highway Safety Committee that it's "an upsetting thing" to many motorists to have to take written and road tests when they go to renew their driver's license.

Without knowing how many sensitive drivers the senator knows, you still have to suspect that the more of them who have to brush up on traffic rules and safe driving habits every four years to pass a license test, the fewer of them may be even more seriously upset on the highway.

Many signs of car trouble are signified by smells, the Catholic Digest warns. If your car is in top shape, the interior should be oderless. If you detect any of the following smells-and it's easier in the winter months-you've got a problem

Gasoline. There is a leak somewhere in the fuel system or the carburetor is not adjusted properly.

Exhaust fumes. These are noticeable when driving around town or at slow speeds. The cause is a leaky tailpipe or muffler. Fumes can make you drowsy while driving, so have the exhaust system checked out.

Burnt rags. Check brake linings. They don't have to be shot to cause odor. One that is adjusted too tight, so it comes in contact with the brake drum, will cause burning. Also, make sure your emergency brake is off.

Burnt rubber. You get this if you are driving a long distance with the tires at low pressure.

Hot asphalt. The ventilation system in your car is plugged up and oil is being blown back onto the engine and is burning. The vapors the oil gives off cause the odor.

STUDY OF SCHOLARSHIPS

The Rhodes scholarships, "grand-daddy" of the international indoctrination programs paid for out of Cecil Rhodes' diamond and mining fortune, and the Fulbright programs, paid for by the U.S. taxpayer, should be studied and evaluated. Considerable effort has been made to hide their real intent, and those in Congress and the news media have felt the pressures resulting in any disclosures of the subject, which has not been publicly aired since 1955.

This cunning effort to destroy our Republic should be exposed and considered by all citizens. The first class of Rhodes scholars entered Oxford in 1903, with six students from South Africa and five Germans, selected by Kaiser Wilhelm as stipulated in Rhodes' will before his death in 1902. In 1904 the 72 Rhodes scholars included 43 Americans.

Rhodes left his plans in a series of wills, in which he expressed his intent to destroy society as it then existed and replace it with a centralized non-representative world government ruled from Britain. He thought it might take up to 100 years to fulfill his idea and Rhodes scholars and others drawn into this scheme have now been working on his plan for more than 60 years.

Rhodes is said to have thought of his first scholars as his "grandchildren" but Senator James William Fulbright, Rhodes scholar 1925-28, who instigated the U.S. - taxpayer - financed system, took that title for his own, saying, "The recipients of these (Fulbright) awards may be considered as the grandchildren of Cecil Rhodes, scattered throughout the world."

About 135 nations were participants in some phase of the Bulbright programs in 1968 when 5,840 academic grants were awarded. Average grants run about $2,500 but go as high as $16,000. Counting administrative "overhead" it cost U.S. taxpayers $5,300 per student in 1968. U.S. citizens should make a study of these scholarship plans designed to destroy Republic USA. HLH.

Whirlwind Attack: Reuther's Challenge Side-Stepped by Labor Chiefs To Avoid Splitting Humphrey Campaign

New York: -- Word has come that auburn-haired Walter Reuther has decided to live dangerously. Next weekend he will lay a wreath at the shrine of American Socialists -- the Terre Haute, Ind., birthplace of the legendary World War I vintage Socialist leader, Eugene Victor Debs.

This startles many of us who have heard old-timers say of "Walter" that a "Comrade in power is a comrade lost."

Through the decades the auto union leader, mindful of the possibilities of high public office, or a UN ambassadorship, has avoided old Socialist friends and activities on the American mainland.

But he's darting around the nation now, weaving a new labor power structure. Some days after the wreath laying, Reuther will go more orthodox. He and that latter-day crusader, Teamsters' chief Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons, will be the stellar attractions at a city-wide truck drivers' rally in St. Louis.

This whirlwinding is prelude to the launching of a new labor federation next winter.

At the side of the auto and teamsters legions there will be leaders of some 90,000 chemical workers, some 450,000 meat cutters and packers, 200,000 rubber workers, and 90,000 members of the old and almost forgotten, United Electrical Workers (UE), the pro-Soviet new left of 1949. And probably their West Coast comrades, the 60,000-member Pacific longshoremen's union which in the '30s really demonstrated how to besiege a city, seize a waterfront, and haul off bloodily at the gendarmerie.

All this has been duly noted by labor's high command, the AFL-CIO 29-member Executive Council, now meeting stoically and uncommunicatively in the old 42nd Street hotel named after Commodore Vanderbilt, who did not get on so well with the public.

Not only is this duly noted, but it is duly distrurbing to the men who have gathered solely to plan strategy for the selection of Hubert Humphrey.

The men of labor, to whom infighting is instinctive, don't want a two-front war. They'll need all the time, energy and money they can whip up to defeat Richard Nixon and George Wallace. They don't want to waste a single minute of the next seven weeks battling the Reuther-Fitzsimmons Alliance for Labor Action (ALA), which already has some 3.7 million members.

The AFL-CIO chiefs are over their quota on serious political problems. There is the generation gap, the Wallace gap, the black gap, and the gap which is Hubert Humphrey himself.

They certainly are for him on the outside, but inside their closed conference rooms they don't love him in September as they did in May.

On foreign policy they find themselves in greater affinity with, of all people, Dick Nixon, than with, of all candidates, Hubert Humphrey.

These labor men are the world's most unbreakable anti-Communist phalanx. They are Lyndon Johnson's most undeviating supporters on Vietnam. For years, they have been excoriated in the Soviet press as hard-line, cold-war warriors.

They were sickened by the invasion of Czechoslovakia. So they don't relish hearing any "hardliner" or cold warrior denounced for a tough stand on international communism.

By implication -- possibly design -- Mr. Humphrey's attack on Dick Nixon undercuts President Johnson. Labor president George Meany doesn't like it privately, won't say so publicly, but is having a problem squeezing money and manpower out of some stone-hearted unions as a results of this and other Humphrey postures.

So today with November roaring down on them the union leaders have only two state-wide labor for Humphrey committees "in action" -- one in New York the other in California. By this time there should have been 17 major state-wide units in the hustings.

So, labor's top men just don't want to tangle with the Reuther-Fitzsimmons duo. AFL-CIO leaders know that the United Auto Workers' executive board "unanimously" endorsed the Humphrey-Muskie ticket last week. But somehow this became the best kept secret in Detroit.

Reuther now is putting his union through 10 regional democratic, secret ballot elections. Those who were delegates to the May convention and those who are chairmen of the union's Community Action Committees will vote for either Hubert Humphrey, Dick Nixon or George Wallace.

Finally the ballots will be taken to Detroit. They'll be counted by the American Arbitration Assn. on Sept. 24. By that time, as they say in the garment area here, it will be the fifth season. There will be mighty little time for campaigning.

All of this nettles the AFL-CIO high command here. They're not slugging back at "Walter" -- now. They first want to put their man in the White House.

Then this country will see the fiercest labor civil war since they used to go at each other with auto chains, baling hooks and brass knuckles. There will be strike and counterstrike. Raid and counterraid.

Obviously, Walter Reuther has decided to live dangerously

If you think the Wallace driver for the presidency does not have the Democrats worried, you were not in attendance at the New Madrid County fish fry and barbecue Saturday afternoon.

It seems to us that the problem for the State ticket and for Tom Eagleton's success in November is to impress on the voters the need for them to fix an X in the Circle under the Statue of Liberty which heads the Democrats ticket and then go across to the American independent ticket and put an X in the square opposite the name of Wallace.

CHICAGO: A GREAT CITY

(Excerpts from a Chicago Tribune Editorial)

Into this orderly city was introduced an element youthful revolutionaries dedicated to what Staughton Lynd, the New Left professor, has called "the politics of confrontation." There may have been some harmless students among them, devoted to the causes of Sen. McCarthy or Sen. McGovern, or merely linked by common opposition to the war in Vietnam. But it was the professional agitators, attached to one form or another of the Marxian superstition and desirous of overthrowing the political and social order, who took charge, called the signals, and whipped up an emotional challenge to civil order.

The voices on the loudspeakers in the parks were those of Tom Hayden, a founder of the radical Students for a Democratic society, who reduced Columbia university to a shambles last spring; of David Dellinger, self-styled non-Soviet Communist, who organized the march on the Pentagon last October, and of Jerry Rubin, head of the Youth International party. These revolutionaries came to Chicago with the design of disrupting the Democratic convention and of taking over the streets.

The bearded, dirty, lawless rabble that followed them used every sort of provocation against police and national guardsmen - vile taunts, lye solutions, bricks, and rubble. They blocked street intersections, disrupted traffic in Michigan avenue, and tried to charge into hotels.

The police and guardsmen used such force as was necessary to repel them and to prevent them from interfering with the proceedings of the convention and promoting general rioting. Although it was manifestly part of the design to involve black Chicagoans, if possible, we are glad that these citizens did not lend themselves to the radical purpose.

For enforcing law and order, Mayor Daley and the police deserve congratulations rather than criticism. The mayor's statement yesterday said correctly that the revolutionaries had openly paraded their intentions for months, that they had carefully coordinated plans of action, and that they deliberately baited the police in the hope of producing a revolutionary ferment. Because the police would not yield the streets or surrender the city to them, Mr. Daley said, there has been much unjustified criticism, particularly from disgruntled elements which could not prevail on the convention floor.

Chicago did not invite these street fighters to come here in the hope of disgracing the city. The movements they represent did not originate here, but in Berkeley and New York. A sick cause mustered by sick people. The police have disclosed that 170 of the 436 persons arrested did not live in Illinois. If some of the protesters were hurt, so were 51 Chicago policemen. The attacks were by no means one-sided.

SYMINGTON HAS SENSIBLE WAY OF HELPING

At Washington the last of July, Senator Stuart Symington introduced an amendment to provide more equitable tax treatment for landowners forced to sell their property for public works. This is a particularly urgent problem right now, in Monroe and Ralls counties, and in some others in south Missouri where lakes are being built and land bought.

The Symington amendment "would permit the taxpayer to defer capital gains taxation of condemnation awards when he reinvests in securities or a business if he establishes that to require him to reinvest in only comparable real property would work undue hardship on him," the Missouri Senator said. "The burden of proof would be placed on the taxpayer."

Under present law a landowner may have capital gains tax deferred only if he reinvests in real property of like kind.

As an example, Symington pointed out that in areas such as that at Cannon Reservoir comparable replacement property is often not available and landowners are either forced to move considerable distances or are pushed into early retirement.

And while we're on this subject, allow us to remind the people of this area that Senator Symington early took the lead, with the late Congressman Cannon, in urging the Cannon dam and reservoir project be approved. Today, he has worked longer and more on it than any other person at Washington, because he has been in on it from the start, and continues to work at it, while attempting, as indicated above, to help those concerned as much as possible.

EVEN BIGGER TRUCKS

The America.. Trucking Associations, Inc., hereinafter called the truck lobby, says that the truck size and weight bill pending before the House is being misrepresented. It says the legislation, which was approved by the Senate in April, "by itself would change nothing" but would "merely permit individual states to make modest increases" in size and weight limits.

There are two things wrong with this position. If the permissive legislation were enacted, the next step would be to lobby the state legislatures to bring state limits up to the maximum. The argument (we can hear it now) would be to the effect that state laws ought to be uniform so that a truck could cross state lines without violating any law. It would not take long.

The second point revolves around the phrase "modest increases." Any motorist who travels the nation'shighways is sure the trucks are plenty big enough right now; if anything, too big. The American Automobile Association says the legislation is a safety threat to 103 million motorists and would cause irreparable damage to bridges and highways. It is said that the legislation would permit "highway freight trains" with triple trailers stretching 100 feet along the road. Try passing one of those on an upgrade!

Truck sizes and loads have steadily increased over the years. The House ought to put an end to this escalation. What about a law stating that every truck built after a certain date must be smaller than at present? Is there any reason why the ordinary motorist should suffer so the truckers can make more money?

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you trust a man who wears a bow tie?

Many people don't.

To find out how hidebound and conforming the world really is, you don't have to advocate a wild-eyed political theory, join a new sex cult, or become a hippie.

All you have to do is to wear a simple bow tie. This is enough to make you suspect to some nosy characters and, for some inexplicable reason, a source of annoyance to others.

At the least these self-appointed critics think a bow tie man is an oddball with a "little boy complex." At the worst they resent him because they think he is probably leading a double life and there by having twice as much fun as they do. That thought infuriates them.

The truth is, of course, that your typical bow tie man is reasonably normal, rarely robs a bank in public or beats his wife in private, and conscientiously tries to keep from overcooking the steaks during a backyard cookout. He customarily refrains from using brass knucks in a fight, pays his taxes regularly, and has even been known to grow roses as a hobby.

If you were painting his portrait, you'd have to color him true blue—except for that polka dot bow tie, which makes him stand out from the herd.

Yet at two out of three cocktail parties he goes to, sooner or later some tipsy blonde in a miniskirt three sizes too small for a Barbee doll will waddle up to him and sneer:

"Don't you think it's rather silly for a man your age to go around in a bow tie? Why do you wear it anyway?

There is only one appropriate response for the bow tie man in such a situation. That is, to circle behind his tormenter in dignified silence and pour his martini down the back of her neck, saving only the olive for himself.

But still the recurrent question haunts him: "Why do you wear it anyway?

There are several possible answers.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it weighs less than a millstone and scratches less than a beard.

A grown man wears a bow tie because it saves him money. It costs him about half as much as a four-in-hand tie would—and it is also less likely to be ruined by dripping gravy and flying ketchup.

A grown man wears a bow tie, not because it makes him feel like a "little boy," but because it makes him feel like D'Artagnan, Cyrano de Bergerac, or Kit Carson. It is his flag flaunted against fate, his banner flung in the face of time.

Wearing bow ties, it must be admitted, can be as habit-forming as cigarette smoking or drinking. At first a fellow can take them or leave them alone. Maybe he'll wear one only on Mondays or alternate Fridays.

But sooner or later he becomes an addict and starts donning them every day of the work week. If his wife doesn't watch him, he'll even try to sneak one on before squiring her to church on Sunday. Sometimes he'll even cache a spare one in his pocket—just in case. By then, naturally, he's hopelessly hooked for life, unless he can be brought to see the error of his ways and swears off forever.

Wearing a bow tie, it is sometimes held, can handicap a man's business career, as it hints of a secret instability in his nature. In this respect it might be noted that a recent picture of J. C. Penney, the 93 year-old chain store magnate, showed him brazenly sporting a skimpy bow tie.

One can only wonder how many hundreds of more stores Penney might have founded it only, in his youth, someone had taken him aside and advised him to wear a more conventional necktie.

"I beg your pardon, sir," replied the boy, "but the United States doesn't sail until the 20th."

The boss was impressed, and asked the boy to have the order department purchase a six months supply of copper.

The lad hesitated and then said, "Excuse me, sir, but all the market indications show that the price of copper is due to fall tomorrow and continue a downward trend for the next few months. Wouldn't it be wiser to wait and make our purchases on a month to month basis until the bottom is reached?"

"An excellent observation, young man. You are really on the ball," said the boss. "Oh, would you send Miss Smith in for some dictation."

"I'm sorry, sir, Miss Smith is out today," replied the boy.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia leaves many questions unanswered; Russia may fear a break up of its empire; Even Russian people admired Czech freedom.

BUCHARREST, ROMANIA—The Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia has been the most mp,emtpis European event since Hitler invaded the country in 1938 in his prelude to World War II, or since Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assassinated at Sarajevo in 1914. It has raised vitally important questions which effect the United States such as:

1. Is the Soviet Union's vast empire of many different ethnic groups about to break up?

2. To prevent a breakup, will Russian troops be moved into other countries one year later and occupied Poland?

3. Should the United States drastically curtail its military operations in Southeast Asia or even end the Vietnam war altogether in order to strengthen NATO?

4. Should Lyndon Johnson persevere in his efforts to talk longrange peace with Moscow or drop his efforts altogether?

5. Is there a chance of change in Moscow either of policy or leadership?

NO EASY ANSWERS

To answer these questions I have visited most of the capitals immediately adjacent to Czechoslovakia, interviewed many leaders, some off the record. The answers are not easy. To reach conclusions, you must ascertain what was in the Soviet leaders' minds when they reached the drastic decision to use brute force against Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia was extremely friendly to Russia. Even as early as 1923, five years after the Czech republic was founded, Edouard Benes, then foreign minister, told me Czechoslovakia's policy must be intertwined with Russia's. Later the Soviet sided with Cechs at the time of Munich, when Neville Chamberlain took a runout powder. After that it was the Russian army which largrescued the Czechs from the Nazi occupation.

Despite all this, Soviet leaders took the drastic step of doing to the Czechs what they had fought Hitler for doing. Why? The basic reason undoubtedly was the domino theory which John Foster Dulles made famous in Southeast Asia. The Kremlin saw other Communist-bloc countries getting contaminated by the new Czech freedoms and figured that if Czechoslovakia got away with it, the entire bloc would fall, one by one.

Yugoslavia had left the Soviet orbit long before, but it was geographically more isolated and in recent years had been careful not to criticize the Soviet Union. Romania five years ago had bolted the warsaw alliance and conducted its independent foreign policy, but it had adhered tp right communist doctrine. It also maintained friendly, uncritical relations with Moscow.

Czechoslovakia, however, had substituted social democracy for Communism and was rapidly heading toward a parliamentary system.

Furthermore, Czechoslovakia occupies a key military corridor splitting communist nations in ktwo, which when occupied by Nazi troops led to the downfall of Poland and the invasion of Russia.

IDEA OF FREEDOM CONTAGIOUS

Finally and perhaps most importantly, the Russian intelligenzia is getting contaminated by Czech political ideas. Russian tourists were crossing the border to marvel at Czech freedoms and came home to spread the word. In Moscow, for instance, you cannot buy a single foreign newspaper ormagazine except communist publications. But in prague newsstands featured Life, look and all British and American journals. Furthermore they read news and criticism of the Soviet which they had never been able to read at home. So the word spread. It spread especially to the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia, where thousands of tourists crossed the border and which has long been restless under Soviet rule. In the final showdown, it was Ukrainian secretary General Pyotr Shelest who was most vigorous agains Czech leaders. He shouted, waved his fists and even threatened physical violence.

All these things led up to the first four-day showdown between Czech and Russian leaders at Cierna and Bratislava. As previously reported in this column, these talks were far less friendly than indicated by the final handshaing and bear hugs. At one time the arguments were so bitter that the Russians refused to drink Czech coffee and even started calling each other "mister" instead of "comrade."

HAWKS AND DOVES

Surprisingly, Premier Kosygin, who seemed mild-mannered at the Glassboro sessions, was one of the toughest. Brezhnev was more conciliatory, though somewhat changeable. Surprisingly, Mikyail Suslov, the stalinist hardliner, was more conciliatory than the others. He's in charge of the Communist parties in Italy, France, Austria and the rest of Europe, so knew what their reaction would be to any crackdown on Czechoslovakia.

One hardline Communist attending the final Bratislavia conference was Walter Ulbricht, leader of East Germany and a long bitter skeptic about any cooperation with West Germany, who had noted with concern Czechoslovakia's new tradeand tourist interchange and its generally friendly relations with the West German government. One week after Bratislava, he returned to Czechoslovakia for the conference at Karlovy vary Aug. 12, where he proposed conciliatory steps for economic and scientific cooperation and emphasized the importance of Czech-East German understanding. This was quite a change for Ulbricht and the Czechs frankly didn't believe him. They rebuffed his overtures.

This may have been their biggest mistake. Ulbricht flew to Moscow immediately with reports that the Czechs had no intention of carrying out their Bratislava pledges. This was one of the major factors in tipping the scales for a military invasion, as will be detailed in a later column.

This whirlwinding is prelude to the launching of a new labor federation next winter.

At the side of the auto and teamsters legions there will be leaders of some 90,000 chemical workers, some 450,000 meat cutters and packers, 200,000 rubber workers, and 90,000 members of the old and almost forgotten, United Electrical Workers (UE), the pro-Soviet new left of 1949. And probably their West Coast comrades, the 60,000-member Pacific longshoremen's union which in the '30s really demonstrated how to besiege a city, seize a waterfront, and haul off bloodily at the gendarmerie.

All this has been duly noted by labor's high command, the AFL-CIO 29-member Executive Council, now meeting stoically and uncommunicatively in the old 42nd Street hotel named after Commodore Vanderbilt, who did not get on so well with the public.

Not only is this duly noted, but it is duly distrurbing to the men who have gathered solely to plan strategy for the selection of Hubert Humphrey.

The men of labor, to whom infighting is instinctive, don't want a two-front war. They'll need all the time, energy and money they can whip up to defeat Richard Nixon and George Wallace. They don't want to waste a single minute of the next seven weeks battling the Reuther-Fitzsimmons Alliance for Labor Action (ALA), which already has some 3.7 million members.

The AFL-CIO chiefs are over their quota on serious political problems. There is the generation gap, the Wallace gap, the black gap, and the gap which is Hubert Humphrey himself.

They certainly are for him on the outside, but inside their closed conference rooms they don't love him in September as they did in May.

On foreign policy they find themselves in greater affinity with, of all people, Dick Nixon, than with, of all candidates, Hubert Humphrey.

These labor men are the world's most unbreakable anti-Communist phalanx. They are Lyndon Johnson's most undeviating supporters on Vietnam. For years, they have been exocriated in the Soviet press as hard-line, cold-war warriors.

They were sickened by the invasion of Czechoslovakia. So they don't relish hearing any "hardliner" or cold warrior denounced for a tough stand on international communism.

By implication -- possibly design -- Mr. Humphrey's attack on Dick Nixon undercuts President Johnson. Labor president George Meany doesn't like it privately, won't say so publicly, but is having a problem squeezing money and manpower out of some stone-hearted unions as a results of this and other Humphrey postures.

So today with November roaring down on them the union leaders have only two state-wide labor for Humphrey committees "in action" -- one in New York the other in California. By this time there should have been 17 major state-wide units in the hustings.

So, labor's top men just don't want to tangle with the Reuther-Fitzsimmons duo. AFL-CIO leaders know that the United Auto Workers' executive board "unanimously" endorsed the Humphrey-Muskie ticket last week. But somehow this became the best kept secret in Detroit.

Reuther now is putting his union through 10 regional democratic, secret ballot elections. Those who were delegates to the May convention and those who are chairmen of the union's Community Action Committees will vote for either Hubert Humphrey, Dick Nixon or George Wallace.

Finally the ballots will be taken to Detroit. They'll be counted by the American Arbitration Assn. on Sept. 24. By that time, as they say in the garment area here, it will be the fifth season. There will be mighty little time for campaigning.

All of this nettles the AFL-CIO high command here. They're not slugging back at "Walter" -- now. They first want to put their man in the White House.

Then this country will see the fiercest labor civil war since they used to go at each other with auto chains, baling hooks and brass knuckles. There will be strike and counterstrike. Raid and counterraid.

Obviously, Walter Reuther has decided to live dangerously

Three Community Concerts Selected

An exciting season is being lined up by the Delta Community Concert Association, and the whole city seems to be joining in the effort to make it the most outstanding and fun year yet.

Merchants and civic organizations are going all out in a drive to bring the concerts to the public's eye.

Girl Scout troops, under the leadership of Mrs. Handy Moore and Mrs. Benny Walker, are painting signs to be placed in the yards of all the CCA workers.

The Junior High School will be sponsoring a jingle contest among its students, and banners proclaiming the membership drive will be seen flying overhead.

Band director, Keith Collins, will be dedicating the half-time between the Charleston-Sikeston football game to the concert program, and Major Kendall Sikes has proclaimed this week of Oct. 7, to Oct. 11, officially as Community Concert Week.

The first concert, which will be held in the senior high cafetorium, will be given in the round, will be by Dolores Hodges and Samuel Howard, dual pianist. Their selections should appeal to lovers of both classical and modern piano, and will be followed by a catered reception held at the school.

The next program, which will be held in Charleston, will be given by the Colleen Corkre Dance Company, and will feature both ballet and jazz numbers. This troupe is noted not only for its varied dance arrangements, but also for the beauty and excitement of its costuming and lighting effects.

The third and last concert of the season is most unusual and should prove to be lots of fun for the audience as well as the entertainers. Eight troubadours who call themselves the Varel and Bailly Company, Chanteurs de Paris, appear in a festival of musical merriment. These eight young men sing, dance, and pantomine their way through some 26 songs each more fun and each a little more French than the other!

The membership drive for renewals will begin Sept. 30, and last through Oct. 7. This will actually be kicked off by a Kit Koffee, held at the home of Mrs. Howard Johnson Sept. 26, when the workers will receive their concert kits.

While here, Mrs. Campbell will be spending some time assisted by Gordon Beaver in arousing interest and in giving informative talks on the concerts among the students at senior high.

The campaign headquarters for this year will be in the First National Bank. Mrs. Howard Johnson is the concert chairman, and Mrs. Don Bohannon her co-chairman.

23-Year Drouth Ends for Detroit

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

America's Motor City still was turning itself inside out with jubilation today after a one-step backward title march turned out to be a champagne waltz after all.

"I've waited a long time for this," said Al Kaline after Detroit secured its first American League pennant in 23 years Tuesday night.

And, that just about summed up the feelings of thousands of the Tigers' long-destitute rooters, who touched off a wild, madcap demonstration when Don Wert's two-out bases loaded single in the ninth inning delivered a 2-1 victory over New York.

Thousands of joyful spectators, who had been chanting "Bring on the Cards" from the middle innings on, swarmed onto the field and into the Tiger dugout. It took a regiment of policemen to protect the heroes from their exuberant admirers.

But you couldn't blame them for being a little excited. It's been a long wait.

World War II had just ended and many of the present Tigers were still in diapers—or hadn't been born yet—when Detroit last played host to a World Series.

Actually, the wild outburst of appreciation was a little late. In reality, the Tigers backed into the championship when Boston thwarted second-place Baltimore's faint hopes 2-0 in a game that ended about 10 minutes before the Tiger-Yankee match.

But that score wasn't announced at Tiger Stadium, and most in the crowd of 46,512 were unaware Detroit had won the flag until Wert's game-winning blow.

In other AL games, Washington tripped Cleveland 4-2 and Chicago whipped Oakland 2-1 before losing the nightcap of a doubleheader 8-1. California's scheduled afternoon game at Minnesota was rained out.

Gaylord Perry hurled the fourth no-hitter in the major leagues this season as San Francisco blanked St. Louis' champions 1-0 in the National League. Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 7-5, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2, Houston stopped Atlanta 5-1 and Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 4-2 in other NL games.

It was a typical finish for the Tigers, who have made a habit of last-out victories this season, in a game marked with several dramatic twists.

Not only did Wert, who is having the worst season of his career, produce the winning run, but a last-minute substitute, Joe Sparma, was credited with the victory.

Sparma, 9-10, was called on to make his first appearance since Sept. 2 when Earl Wilson, who was scheduled to pitch, came up with a shoulder injury while warming up.

Sparma, who has been riding the bench because of a dispute with Tiger Manager Mayo Smith last month, scattered five hits and produced Detroit's first run with a single in the fifth that scored Bill Freehan.

The Yanks tied it in the ninth on Jake Gibbs' two-out single, but the Tigers loaded the bases with two out in the bottom of the inning on two walks and Freehan's single before Wert delivered against ace Yankee reliever Lindy McDaniel.

"I knew it was a hit right away," said Wert, on the losing end of a struggle for a .200 average. Don admitted he was worried that Manager Smith would life him for a pinch hitter, and "I sorta hoped he wouldn't."

Smith, given a champagne bath by the players after the game, apparently gave Sparma the starting nod in an effort to patch up their differences.

"I couldn't be happier for a guy than for Joe Sparma," he said.

Meanwhile, Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver congratulated the Tigers, but quickly issued a warning for next season.

"I think we have as much ability as Detroit," he said. "We'll be gunning for them next year."

The Red Sox' Ray Culp, a National League castoff, checked Baltimore on five hits and struck out 12 in winning a duel with 20-game winner Dave McNally.

Culp got all the runs he needed in the first inning when Carl Yastrzemski tripled in one run, then scored on a double by Ken Harrelson.

A two-run double by Frank Howard in the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie and gave Washington its victory over Cleveland.

Chicago won the opener with Oakland on rookie Bill Melton's two-run homer, but the Athletics snapped a four-game losing streak in the nightcap on John "Blue Moon" Odom six-hitter.

Lucius Allen Pleads Guilty In LA Court

LOS ANGELES AP — Lucius Allen, 20, former UCLA basketball player, pleaded guilty Tuesday to maintaining a place where narcotics are used.

Superior Judge William Munnel said he would determine at Allen's sentencing Oct. 17 whether the charge against him would be considered a felony.

Allen, a former Kansas City area high school basketball star, was arrested with four other persons May 23. He faces an additional charge of possessing marijuana.

Two persons arrested with Allen also pleaded guilty to charges of knowingly being in a place where narcotics are used.

Cowboys, Viks Shape Up As Top Offense

NEW YORK AP — The Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings shape up as the offensive powerhouses of the National Football League after the first week of play.

Minnesota scored 47 points against Atlanta, a total they didn't reach last year until half way through their fourth regular season game.

Cleveland showed the best opening day defense, holding the New Orleans Saints to 208 yards but once again Minnesota was in second place, yielding only 234 yards and but seven points to the Atlanta Falcons.

The Cowboys gave up the least yardage on the ground, 68 in their opener, and St. Louis shut down on the Los Angeles Rams' air game, permitting only 84 yards and nine completions in 22 attempts.

The Missouri Department of Conservation will hold its monthly meeting at the Holiday Inn Wednesday, starting at 9 a.m.

The Conservation Department has stocked 60,000 striped bass fingerlings in Lake of the Ozarks.

It was the second lot of stripers stocked in the lake, although the first planting last year was of a very limited number of fish.

First attempts to raise striped bass in hatcheries in Missouri produced relatively few fish because of unforseen problems with the species, which biologists say is very sensitive.

Although last year's stocking was small, anglers have already reported catching a few of last year's stripers. The difficulties here last year were not limited to Missouri. Biologists say many states have had problems with striped bass.

The 70,000 fish planted this year were taken from the Union Electric Company's Glaize Hatchery, where they were raised to stocking size.

Striped bass are well known as a salt-water fish and a favorite of surf-casters. They reach weights of up to 60 pounds.

Missouri's 1968 deer hunting permits will go on sale at outlets throughout the state about September 18.

The deer tags this year will open the door to the longest firearms and archery deer seasons in recent Missouri history. The firearms season will total 12 days, Nov. 16 through 19 and Nov. 30 through Dec. 7. The archery season has been expanded to a full three months, Oct. 1 through Dec. 31.

Deer permit prices, not including a 30-cent service charge on each tag, are $5 for resident firearms and resident archers' tags, $25 for non-resident firearms tags, and $10 for non-resident archery permits which also allow the hunting of most small game.

The first, four-day, segment of the season in November will be open to hunting of deer of either sex except in 32 bucks-only counties. In the second, eight-day, part of the season only bucks may be taken statewide. Under the regulation, a buck is a male deer with at least one forked antler. Using the archery permit, bowhunters may take deer of either sex statewide throughout their season.

Under a regulation new this year, each deer killed must be checked by an agent of the Conservation Commission by 9 p.m. on the day it was killed and in the county where it was killed or in an adjacent county.

Permits are available in offices of county clerks, in sporting goods stores and similar businesses, and in the offices of the Conservation Department in St. Louis, Kansas City and Jefferson City.

The new '1968-69 Winchester Hunting Compendium'' -- a hip-pocket answer aid for hunters -- is now available to sports writers and their readers throughout the country from the Winchester- Western Division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

This year's highly illustrated Compendium has a striking front cover, imprinted with the famous Winchester red and black plaid. It provides sportsmen 62 pages of valuable hunting information, covering legal game species for each state, condition of game populations, best hunting areas, seasons and legal limits.

It includes a 50-state survey compiled by Olin's Conservation Department with the cooperation of state fish and game departments. The annual survey conservation, and John B. Madson, assistant director.

Regional reports by well known outdoor writers also are part of the Compendium: Pete Czura for Mid-America, John Gartner for the West, Grits Gresham for the South and Pete Kuhlhoff for the Northeast.

Copies of the new ''1968-69 Hunting Compendium'' are available to the public for 25 cents to cover postage and handling. Requests should be directed to the Winchester News Bureau, 460 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Bulk prices available on request.

The All-American rookie from UCLA, who ranked only No. 4 among Redskin quarterbacks, is unlikely to be reactivated this season.

Beban, who received an estimate $200,000 on a three-year contract with Washington, has pulled a muscle, permitting the Redskins to place him in the injured category rather than give rival teams a shot at him through waivers.

Beban was cut to make room for Walter Rock, a tackle acquired from San Francisco.

The Redskins kept former taxi squad member Harry Theofiledes and veteran Jim Ninowski to back up quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, still subpar as a result of an off-season elbow operation.

Beban had been less than impressive in his brief trail as a passer with the Redskins and they were planning to test him as a runner until he pulled a leg muscle two weeks ago.

Perry No-Hits NL Champs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

After what Gaylord Perry did to Bob Gibson Tuesday night what can Denny McLain do for an encore?

The St. Louis Cardinals, in their first game since clinching their second straight National League pennant, were supposed to be warming up for McLain and the Detroit Tigers in the World Series opener.

Instead, Perry did some cooling off. The 3-year old righthander hurled the fourth no-hitter of the 1968 season—two in each league—stopping the Cards and shutout king Gibson 1-0 on Ron Hunt's first-inning homer.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 7-5, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 32, Houston tripped Atlanta 5-1 and Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 4-2.

In the American League, Detroit clinched its first pennant in 23 years by nipping the New York Yankees 2-1, Boston whipped Baltimore 2-0, Washington topped Cleveland 4-2 and Oakland trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-1 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader after dropping the opener 2-1. The California-Minnesota game was rained out.

The 6-foot-4 Perry permitted only two baserunners and retired 18 batters in a row between walks to Mike Shannon in the second inning and Phil Gagliano in the eighth. He threw 101 pitches, getting 12 outs on grounders and striking out nine, including Curt Flood on a called third strike to end the game.

"Was it my best stuff:" Perry said in answer to a question. "You've got to say so when you pitch a no-hitter. The most important thing was my control. I was able to keep the ball down. I was hitting spots reall well and my slider was really working.

"This was my bigges. thrill. I started thinking about a no-hitter after the fifth inning. The last one I pitched was in high school in Williamston, N.C."

Perry said he bore down all the way, even though the Giants were eliminated from the pennant race Sunday.

"When your record is 14-14 you go out to win," he said.

Second baseman Hunt, the second batter in the first inning, hit Gibson's third pitch of the game over the left field fence. It was only his second home run of the season.

"It was an inside fast ball," said Gibson, 21-8.

Perry's closest call came in the sixth. Dal Maxvill led off with a smash up the middle, but Perry, falling off the mound toward first base, managed to snag it and threw him out.

"If that ball was to the third base side of the mound I wouldn't have had it," he said.

Other no-hitters this season was pitched by Cincinnati's George Culver against Philadelphia, Baltimore's Tom Phoebus against Boston and Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter against Minnesota. The last was a perfect game.

Bill Sudakis and Paul Popovich drove in two runs apiece and pitcher Claude Osteen delivered three key singles as the Dodgers won for the 11th time in 14 games.

Rookie Jim McAndrew pitched a two-hitter as the Mets edged Chicago on Ron Swoboda's steal of home in the fourth inning. Ed Charles hit a solo homer in the first for the Mets.

Gene Alley homered and doubled and scored twice to lead Pittsburgh past Philadelphia as the Pirates won their fourth straight game and moved to within a half-game of fifth-place Atlanta.

Angotti met with Sullivan and General Manager Jack Riley behind closed doors. There was no comment after the meeting.

DENVER AP — The Denver Broncos of the American Football League have switched a couple of quarterbacks.

The Broncos asked waivers Tuesday on former University of Massachusetts signal-caller John McCormick, 31. Then they brought up rookie Joe Di Vito of Boston College from the taxi squad.

"I think we have as much ability as Detroit," he said. "We'll be gunning for them next year."

The Red Sox' Ray Culp, a National League castoff, checked Baltimore on five hits and struck out 12 in winning a duel with 20-game winner Dave McNally.

Culp got all the runs he needed in the first inning when Carl Yastrzemski tripled in one run, then scored on a double by Ken Harrelson.

A two-run double by Frank Howard in the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie and gave Washington its victory over Cleveland.

Chicago won the opener with Oakland on rookie Bill Melton's two-run homer, but the Athletics snapped a four-game losing streak in the nightcap on John "Blue Moon" Odom six-hitter.

Lucius Allen Pleads Guilty In LA Court

LOS ANGELES AP — Lucius Allen, 20, former UCLA basketball player, pleaded guilty Tuesday to maintaining a place where narcotics are used.

Superior Judge William Munnel said he would determine at Allen's sentencing Oct. 17 whether the charge against him would be considered a felony.

Allen, a former Kansas City area high school basketball star, was arrested with four other persons May 23. He faces an additional charge of possessing marijuana.

Two persons arrested with Allen also pleaded guilty to charges of knowingly being in a place where narcotics are used.

Melanie Rose Martin, 20, and John Woolery Jr., 21, both of Los Angeles, drew 30- day suspended jail sentences and were fined $200 each.

Cowboys, Viks Shape Up As Top Offense

NEW YORK AP — The Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings shape up as the offensive powerhouses of the National Football League after the first week of play.

Minnesota scored 47 points against Atlanta, a total they didn't reach last year until half way through their fourth regular season game.

Cleveland showed the best opening day defense, holding the New Orleans Saints to 208 yards but once again Minnesota was in second place, yielding only 234 yards and but seven points to the Atlanta Falcons.

The Cowboys gave up the least yardage on the ground, 68 in their opener, and St. Louis shut down on the Los Angeles Rams' air game, permitting only 84 yards and nine completions in 22 attempts.

The Missouri Department of Conservation will hold its monthly meeting at the Holiday Inn Wednesday, starting at 9 a.m.

The Conservation Department has stocked 60,000 striped bass fingerlings in Lake of the Ozarks.

It was the second lot of stripers stocked in the lake, although the first planting last year was of a very limited number of fish.

First attempts to raise striped bass in hatcheries in Missouri produced relatively few fish because of unforseen problems with the species, which biologists say is very sensitive.

Although last year's stocking was small, anglers have already reported catching a few of last year's stripers. The difficulties here last year were not limited to Missouri. Biologists say many states have had problems with striped bass.

The 70,000 fish planted this year were taken from the Union Electric Company's Glaize Hatchery, where they were raised to stocking size.

Striped bass are well known as a salt-water fish and a favorite of surf-casters. They reach weights of up to 60 pounds.

Missouri's 1968 deer hunting permits will go on sale at outlets throughout the state about September 18.

The deer tags this year will open the door to the longest firearms and archery deer seasons in recent Missouri history. The firearms season will total 12 days, Nov. 16 through 19 and Nov. 30 through Dec. 7. The archery season has been expanded to a full three months, Oct. 1 through Dec. 31.

Deer permit prices, not including a 30-cent service charge on each tag, are $5 for resident firearms and resident archers' tags, $25 for non-resident firearms tags, and $10 for non-resident archery permits which also allow the hunting of most small game.

The first, four-day, segment of the season in November will be open to hunting of deer of either sex except in 32 bucks-only counties. In the second, eight-day, part of the season only bucks may be taken statewide. Under the regulation, a buck is a male deer with at least one forked antler. Using the archery permit, bowhunters may take deer of either sex statewide throughout their season.

Under a regulation new this year, each deer killed must be checked by an agent of the Conservation Commission by 9 p.m. on the day it was killed and in the county where it was killed or in an adjacent county.

Permits are available in offices of county clerks, in sporting goods stores and similar businesses, and in the offices of the Conservation Department in St. Louis, Kansas City and Jefferson City.

The new '1968-69 Winchester Hunting Compendium'' -- a hip-pocket answer aid for hunters -- is now available to sports writers and their readers throughout the country from the Winchester- Western Division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

It includes a 50-state survey compiled by Olin's Conservation Department with the cooperation of state fish and game departments. The annual survey conservation, and John B. Madson, assistant director.

Regional reports by well known outdoor writers also are part of the Compendium: Pete Czura for Mid-America, John Gartner for the West, Grits Gresham for the South and Pete Kuhlhoff for the Northeast.

The All-American rookie from UCLA, who ranked only No. 4 among Redskin quarterbacks, is unlikely to be reactivated this season.

Beban, who received an estimate $200,000 on a three-year contract with Washington, has pulled a muscle, permitting the Redskins to place him in the injured category rather than give rival teams a shot at him through waivers.

Beban was cut to make room for Walter Rock, a tackle acquired from San Francisco.

The Redskins kept former taxi squad member Harry Theofiledes and veteran Jim Ninowski to back up quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, still subpar as a result of an off-season elbow operation.

Beban had been less than impressive in his brief trail as a passer with the Redskins and they were planning to test him as a runner until he pulled a leg muscle two weeks ago.

Perry No-Hits NL Champs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

After what Gaylord Perry did to Bob Gibson Tuesday night what can Denny McLain do for an encore?

The St. Louis Cardinals, in their first game since clinching their second straight National League pennant, were supposed to be warming up for McLain and the Detroit Tigers in the World Series opener.

Instead, Perry did some cooling off. The 3-year old righthander hurled the fourth no-hitter of the 1968 season—two in each league—stopping the Cards and shutout king Gibson 1-0 on Ron Hunt's first-inning homer.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 7-5, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 32, Houston tripped Atlanta 5-1 and Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 4-2.

In the American League, Detroit clinched its first pennant in 23 years by nipping the New York Yankees 2-1, Boston whipped Baltimore 2-0, Washington topped Cleveland 4-2 and Oakland trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-1 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader after dropping the opener 2-1. The California-Minnesota game was rained out.

The 6-foot-4 Perry permitted only two baserunners and retired 18 batters in a row between walks to Mike Shannon in the second inning and Phil Gagliano in the eighth. He threw 101 pitches, getting 12 outs on grounders and striking out nine, including Curt Flood on a called third strike to end the game.

"Was it my best stuff:" Perry said in answer to a question. "You've got to say so when you pitch a no-hitter. The most important thing was my control. I was able to keep the ball down. I was hitting spots reall well and my slider was really working.

"This was my bigges. thrill. I started thinking about a no-hitter after the fifth inning. The last one I pitched was in high school in Williamston, N.C.''

Perry said he bore down all the way, even though the Giants were eliminated from the pennant race Sunday.

"When your record is 14-14 you go out to win," he said.

Second baseman Hunt, the second batter in the first inning, hit Gibson's third pitch of the game over the left field fence. It was only his second home run of the season.

"It was an inside fast ball," said Gibson, 21-8.

Perry's closest call came in the sixth. Dal Maxvill led off with a smash up the middle, but Perry, falling off the mound toward first base, managed to snag it and threw him out.

"If that ball was to the third base side of the mound I wouldn't have had it," he said.

Other no-hitters this season was pitched by Cincinnati's George Culver against Philadelphia, Baltimore's Tom Phoebus against Boston and Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter against Minnesota. The last was a perfect game.

Bill Sudakis and Paul Popovich drove in two runs apiece and pitcher Claude Osteen delivered three key singles as the Dodgers won for the 11th time in 14 games.

Rookie Jim McAndrew pitched a two-hitter as the Mets edged Chicago on Ron Swoboda's steal of home in the fourth inning. Ed Charles hit a solo homer in the first for the Mets.

Gene Alley homered and doubled and scored twice to lead Pittsburgh past Philadelphia as the Pirates won their fourth straight game and moved to within a half-game of fifth-place Atlanta.

Angotti met with Sullivan and General Manager Jack Riley behind closed doors. There was no comment after the meeting.

DENVER AP — The Denver Broncos of the American Football League have switched a couple of quarterbacks.

The Broncos asked waivers Tuesday on former University of Massachusetts signal-caller John McCormick, 31. Then they brought up rookie Joe Di Vito of Boston College from the taxi squad.

New Features for '69 Plymouth GTX

BIG MOVER — GTX, top of the Plymouth Belvedere intermediate line for 1969, comes ready for action with an all-new, cool-air induction system, fed through stylish functional hood scoops. Plymouth intermediates, with 18 models for 1969, offer even more liveliness and dependability. The Plymouth line also includes the compact Valiant, sports Barracuda and full-size Fury.

THE NEW 1969 PLYMOUTH LINE

The 44 models in the 1969 Plymouth line, led by the all-new Plymouth Fury, go on sale September 19.

Substantial improvements have been made in the appearance and operation in each of four Plymouth series: the standard-size Fury, the intermediate Belvedere, the compact Valiant and specialty sports Barracuda.

"In the past two years, three-quarters of a million competitive owners were won over to Plymouth," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "Our 1969 line has been designed to continue to attract competitive owners and to intensify loyalty to Plymouth among current owners."

NEW PLYMOUTH FURY

The Fury, Plymouth's volume leader, has 17 models, all new, cleaner, leaner and larger. It is 1.5 inches longer than last year's models, nearly two inches wider, and the wheelbase has been increased to 120 inches from 119 inches.

In station wagon models, Fury introduces a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing vision obstruction by blowing clean air over the window and preventing rain, dust and grit from accumulating on it.

Six engines are available in the Fury line, from the economical six-cylinder 225-cubic- inch engine to the high-performance 440-cubic-inch V-8.

ADDED INTERMEDIATE MODELS

There are two models in the Belvedere line -- a Sport Satellite four-door sedan and a Road Runner convertible -- and a complete series of performance cars.

New options in the 18-model series, which includes Belvedere, Satellite, Sport Satellite, Road Runner and GTX models, include everything from flower to power.

POWER: GTX and Road runner performance models introduce a new cool-air induction system -- called Air Grabber on the GTX, Coyote Duster on the Road Runner -- which pulls air through functional air scoops into the engine for increased powerplant efficiency.

Two new performance axle ratios - 3.91:1 and 4.10:1 -- help beef up a new set of performance packs that give broad choice of equipment and power.

BARRACUDA

A new high - performance series called the 'Cuda 340 has been added to the Plymouth Barracuda line. All models in the new line have new equipment and ornamentation, new front and rear styling and an impressive list of sports options.

The new 'Cuda 340 has a high-winding 340-cubic-inch V-8 engine standard and an improved 383 V-8 as optional. Inspired by the popularity of Plymouth's Road Runner, the new models offer go, stop and handling with no extra performance options required. The 'Cuda 340 is available in fastback and hardtop models. The convertible is Barracuda's third body style.

For V-8 power, the 383, 340 and 318-cubic-inch engines are offered with greater flexibility of accompanying equipment. The 340 is available with or without Barracuda's Formula S performanc package, the 383 with power steering. A 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder engine and the 318 V-8 are standard.

The hardtop is available with a new yellow flowered Mod Top vinyl roof, and the fastback offers an optional vinyl roof with four colors available.

VALIANT

Valiant offers even more economy potential than in previous years in its Signet and 100 series, each of which has two models. It is available with improved standard 170-cubic-inch and optional 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder engines and long-life, mileage-building fiberglass tires, also available in other Plymouth lines.

In styling, Valiant has a new grille, new taillights and trim, and a straight element rear window.

V-8 engines, at either the standard 273 or optional 318 cubic inches, are again available on the economy Valiant.

Mohammed's Horse

The animal that carried Mohammed to heaven was a horse named Al-Borak. This horse, according to legend, had a man's head, a horse's body, an eagle's wings and a human voice.

Corned Beef

Originally, a corn was any small substance, especially a seed or kernel. When beef was laid in brine to cure, it was sprinkled with corns of coarse salt. The process came to be known as "corning" the beef.

ASKED TO RESCIND ORDER

"Mayor Ilus Davis was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right To Work, to rescind his recent order banning the purchase of California table grapes," stated Gene Mittelberg, Executive Sectretary of Missourians For Right To Work, Inc.

Asserting that the AFL-CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Mittelberg told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city, would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California table grapes."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

Chicago Police Baiting--- A Classic Red Technique

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

What happened in Chicago was a classic operation in police baiting used extensively by followers of Hitler, Lenin, Mao, Ho and Castro.

It was 11 months in the planning.

The police fell for it.

There is no question but that the professional "youth" rioters will now use their Chicago techniques elsewhere.

It would seem reasonable now for the nation's major police departments to be better prepared than at Chicago, where the specially trained riot police were incited to react in precisely the way the rioters planned.

Yet there is little evidence that adequate official planning is under way in this country's 100 largest cities.

The Chicago techniques are documented in memoranda prepared by professionals over the past 40 years.

In these writings it is specified that well-trained agents can provoke almost any police, military or other security force by the use of certain standardized classes of action.

At Chicago, these included:

- Dropping human excrement in bags on police and others in the streets below.
- Hurling cola bottles filled with urine at police officers.
- Attacking with cement balls from which nails protruded.
- Throwing soap bars in which razor blades were embedded.
- Striking police with the jagged edges of broken bottles.

Eighty police were sent to hospitals.

The objective of these actions was fourfold:

To make the police seem bumbling and incapable of keeping order and control.

To make the police also seem like ruthless "fascist" sadists and to raise the thought in the public mind that anything would be better than such police law and order.

To make the rioters seem like modern day Robin Hoods, heroic, romantic, young martyrs, fighting against a powerful, heartless "establishment."

To discredit the United States internationally, to affect the Paris talks.

Though the rioters were poorly co-ordinated at Chicago, they did their job well. They were not able to disrupt the convention or damage any important people. They did discredit the police; they gained some nationwide sympathy.

Very few groups have such strong discipline. The Chicago police obviously do not.

Yet this reporter has seen this type of discipline in the United States and in some countries overseas. He has seen security troops hold steady and not react though they were publicly reviled, struck, their feet stomped and though they were made to look like villains.

In the case mentioned above, as a result of the courageous restraint of these security men, public sympathy shifted from the rioters to the beleaguered security troops.

TAX DATA SWAPPED

CHICAGO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service now has agreements with 43 states and the District of Columbia to swap information to help track down and collect taxes. These pacts allow the exchange of all types of tax information.

It includes names and addresses of workers covered by state employment security programs, state motor vehicle registration lists, and data about licensing and sales.

Commerce Clearing House said automatic data processing systems check on information relating to income, sales, use, estate and gift as well as motor fuel and highway use taxes.

The data is put on high-speed magnetic tapes which can be used in each of the systems employed by the states and the federal government.

Alaska is the latest to join the list. Only Alabama, Connecticut, Georgia, Louisiana, Nevada, Rhode Island and Texas have no agreements.

New Features for '69 Plymouth GTX

BIG MOVER — GTX, top of the Plymouth Belvedere intermediate line for 1969, comes ready for action with an all-new, cool-air induction system, fed through stylish functional hood scoops. Plymouth intermediates, with 18 models for 1969, offer even more liveliness and dependability. The Plymouth line also includes the compact Valiant, sports Barracuda and full-size Fury.

THE NEW 1969 PLYMOUTH LINE

The 44 models in the 1969 Plymouth line, led by the all-new Plymouth Fury, go on sale September 19.

Substantial improvements have been made in the appearance and operation in each of four Plymouth series: the standard-size Fury, the intermediate Belvedere, the compact Valiant and the specialty sports Barracuda.

"In the past two years, three-quarters of a million competitive owners were won over to Plymouth," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "Our 1969 line has been designed to continue to attract competitive owners and to intensify loyalty to Plymouth among current owners."

NEW PLYMOUTH FURY

The Fury, Plymouth's volume leader, has 17 models, all new, cleaner, leaner and larger. It is 1.5 inches longer than last year's models, nearly two inches wider, and the wheelbase has been increased to 120 inches from 119 inches.

In station wagon models, Fury introduces a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing vision obstruction by blowing clean air over the window and preventing rain, dust and grit from accumulating on it.

Six engines are available in the Fury line, from the economical six-cylinder 225-cubic- inch engine to the high-performance 440-cubic-inch V-8.

ADDED INTERMEDIATE MODELS

There are two models in the Belvedere line -- a Sport Satellite four-door sedan and a Road Runner convertible -- and a complete series of performance cars.

New options in the 18-model series, which includes Belvedere, Satellite, Sport Satellite, Road Runner and GTX models, include everything from flower to power.

POWER: GTX and Road runner performance models introduce a new cool-air induction system -- called Air Grabber on the GTX, Coyote Duster on the Road Runner -- which pulls air through functional air scoops into the engine for increased powerplant efficiency.

Two new performance axle ratios - 3.91:1 and 4.10:1 -- help beef up a new set of performance packs that give broad choice of equipment and power.

BARRACUDA

A new high - performance series called the 'Cuda 340 has been added to the Plymouth Barracuda line. All models in the new line have new equipment and ornamentation, new front and rear styling and an impressive list of sports options.

The new 'Cuda 340 has a high-winding 340-cubic-inch V-8 engine standard and an improved 383 V-8 as optional. Inspired by the popularity of Plymouth's Road Runner, the new models offer go, stop and handling with no extra performance options required. The 'Cuda 340 is available in fastback and hardtop models. The convertible is Barracuda's third body style.

For V-8 power, the 383, 340 and 318-cubic-inch engines are offered with greater flexibility of accompanying equipment. The 340 is available with or without Barracuda's Formula S performanc package, the 383 with power steering. A 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder engine and the 318 V-8 are standard.

The hardtop is available with a new yellow flowered Mod Top vinyl roof, and the fastback offers an optional vinyl roof with four colors available.

VALIANT

Valiant offers even more economy potential than in previous years in its Signet and 100 series, each of which has two models. It is available with improved standard 170-cubic-inch and optional 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder engines and long-life, mileage-building fiberglass tires, also available in other Plymouth lines.

In styling, Valiant has a new grille, new taillights and trim, and a straight element rear window.

V-8 engines, at either the standard 273 or optional 318 cubic inches, are again available on the economy Valiant.

Mohammed's Horse

The animal that carried Mohammed to heaven was a horse named Al-Borak. This horse, according to legend, had a man's head, a horse's body, an eagle's wings and a human voice.

Corned Beef

Originally, a corn was any small substance, especially a seed or kernel. When beef was laid in brine to cure, it was sprinkled with corns of coarse salt. The process came to be known as "corning" the beef.

ASKED TO RESCIND ORDER

"Mayor Ilus Davis was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right To Work, to rescind his recent order banning the purchase of California table grapes," stated Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians For Right To Work, Inc.

Asserting that the AFL-CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Mittelberg told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city, would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California table grapes."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

Chicago Police Baiting--- A Classic Red Technique

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

What happened in Chicago was a classic operation in police baiting used extensively by followers of Hitler, Lenin, Mao, Ho and Castro.

It was 11 months in the planning.

The police fell for it.

There is no question but that the professional "youth" rioters will now use their Chicago techniques elsewhere.

It would seem reasonable now for the nation's major police departments to be better prepared than at Chicago, where the specially trained riot police were incited to react in precisely the way the rioters planned.

Yet there is little evidence that adequate official planning is under way in this country's 100 largest cities.

The Chicago techniques are documented in memoranda prepared by professionals over the past 40 years.

In these writings it is specified that well-trained agents can provoke almost any police, military or other security force by the use of certain standardized classes of action.

At Chicago, these included:

- Dropping human excrement in bags on police and others in the streets below.
- Hurling cola bottles filled with urine at police officers.
- Attacking with cement balls from which nails protruded.
- Throwing soap bars in which razor blades were embedded.
- Striking police with the jagged edges of broken bottles.

Eighty police were sent to hospitals.

The objective of these actions was fourfold:

To make the police seem bumbling and incapable of keeping order and control.

To make the police also seem like ruthless "fascist" sadists and to raise the thought in the public mind that anything would be better than such police law and order.

To make the rioters seem like modern day Robin Hoods, heroic, romantic, young martyrs, fighting against a powerful, heartless "establishment."

To discredit the United States internationally, to affect the Paris talks.

Though the rioters were poorly co-ordinated at Chicago, they did their job well. They were not able to disrupt the convention or damage any important people. They did discredit the police; they gained some nationwide sympathy.

Very few groups have such strong discipline. The Chicago police obviously do not.

Yet this reporter has seen this type of discipline in the United States and in some countries overseas. He has seen security troops hold steady and not react though they were publicly reviled, struck, their feet stomped and though they were made to look like villains.

In the case mentioned above, as a result of the courageous restraint of these security men, public sympathy shifted from the rioters to the beleaguered security troops.

TAX DATA SWAPPED

CHICAGO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service now has agreements with 43 states and the District of Columbia to swap information to help track down and collect taxes. These pacts allow the exchange of all types of tax information.

It includes names and addresses of workers covered by state employment security programs, state motor vehicle registration lists, and data about licensing and sales.

Commerce Clearing House said automatic data processing systems check on information relating to income, sales, use, estate and gift as well as motor fuel and highway use taxes.

The data is put on high-speed magnetic tapes which can be used in each of the systems employed by the states and the federal government.

Alaska is the latest to join the list. Only Alabama, Connecticut, Georgia, Louisiana, Nevada, Rhode Island and Texas have no agreements.

Humphrey Adviser Says LBJ Endorsement Should End Gossip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's endorsement should dispel gossip about whether he wants Hubert H. Humphrey to win the presidency, says a top Humphrey adviser.

"It puts to rest the gossip — and it never was anything more than that," said Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., Tuesday after Johnson ended a public silence on his vice president's campaign for the White House.

In a message to the Texas Democratic convention, Johnson said that he will support Humphrey and "work as hard for him as he has worked for America."

Harris and other top Democrats predictably welcomed Johnson's message and Harris added that "it will be especially helpful to us in our need to carry Texas."

Republicans also were predictable in their reaction. Several said Johnson's praise will only tie Humphrey closer to the Johnson record, something the GOP sees as a plus for its side.

Harris said that insofar as the statement ties Humphrey to the Johnson record, "there was no way he could escape that record, nor did he want to."

"This doesn't diminish the vice president's ability to talk about the future and about building on the Johnson administration programs. He can talk about the future and what he would do as president."

The Oklahoma senator said that if there is an anti-Johnson vote, as the Republicans contend, "there is nothing the vice president can do to lessen that vote."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., running for re-election, said the President's statement "only emphasizes the identification of Humphrey with the administration and its policies."

"In my judgment, that is the biggest political load the vice president is carrying," Javits said. "The endorsement will work in reverse."

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., a vice presidential candidate in 1952, said he thinks the President's action "takes away some of the sting of the charges that there is a division between the President and the vice president on the issues."

"It is always helpful to have the man who holds the office endorse you," Sparkman said. "I don't think the President's statement necessarily ties Humphrey to the Johnson policies."

Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., whose state has become a three-cornered battleground between Humphrey, GOP nominee Richard M. Nixon and third party contender George C. Wallace, said it was a "tossup" whether the President's endorsement would help or hurt Humphrey in the South.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he doesn't think the statement will have much effect.

"Humphrey is tied to the Johnson administration record in any event," Hickenlooper said. "But Humphrey has to stand or fall on Humphrey and not the President's record."

Court Impounds Hippie Colony Sponsor's Financial Holdings

"God will provide," said Donald B. McCoy, 37, who quit a real estate investment career with the announcement that "I finally realized that if you are unhappy, you are a failure, no matter how much money you have."

The colony is on a 696-acre estate that McCoy leased for $1,000 a month in this suburban area about 25 miles from San Francisco.

Clad only in a shirt, McCoy, in a full beard, was reading to several of his followers from a book about Jesus Christ when a reporter asked about the suit for control of his remaining fortune — estimated in court at $200,000.

"Some of the folks here are worried," he said, "but even if they take all the money away, we will continue to exist."

Arthur E. Lang of Mill Valley, McCoy's former father-in-law, brought the suit in behalf of McCoy's three daughters, aged 6 to 10. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin County named Lang temporary conservator last week and set Sept. 30 for a hearing in San Rafael on whether to make Lang permanent conservator.

McCoy's former wife, Lang's daughter, now lives, according to testimony, in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, regarded by many as the hippie capital. McCoy's daughters have been living with him on the ranch. The other residents — both male and female — live in communal fashion, apparently at McCoy's expense, in a 19-room mansion and 14-room dormitory.

Lang, in his legal complaint, said McCoy had allowed his estate to dwindle from $500,000 to $200,000 and "is giving away or spending money as fast as he can do it." McCoy said he felt Lang was "up tight" in not appreciating how the money is spent and expressed confidence of a satisfactory outcome of the case.

If you lose, he was asked, would the group possibly become self-sustaining? He said someday he expects the group to be self-supporting, but the thought of any of his followers taking a paying job off the estate — known as Rancho Olompali — was horrifying.

"That would be joining the Establishment — an impossibility for us," he said. "You cannot serve God and mammon."

As McCoy switched the conversation to love and philosophy, his 9-year-old daughter, Dana, curled up against him. "We have a lot of fun here," she volunteered.

A young man constructing a bongo drum from a barrel and a hide agreed with her. Why, he said, when the girls first arrived, they were so "up tight" they didn't want to take their clothes off for nude swimming in the pool.

Presidential Panel Opens Violence Probe Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential panel set up in Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's dying hours opens formal hearings today in its sweeping probe of violence in America.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover were listed as leadoff witnesses at the closed-door session in the same building where the assassinated New York senator had his Capitol Hill offices.

Eight weeks of hearings have been scheduled by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence to hear testimony and task force reports on such subjects as firearms, disorderly demonstrations, law enforcement and the influence of the news media.

The panel plans a preliminary report to President Johnson before he leaves the White House in January. Its final report is due next June.

A commission aide said the panel has had problems recruiting enough top-notch personnel for the study because the commission will go out of existence after a year.

Johnson created the 13-member commission June 5 as Kennedy lay dying in Los Angeles where he was shot as he celebrated his California Democratic primary election triumph.

Unlike the Warren Commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the new panel will not limit itself to the specific slaying but will delve instead into a wide area of violence and its causes.

The commission is headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, 69, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and retired president of Johns Hopkins University.

The commission gave no reason for closing its initial round of hearings, but said later sessions might be open.

The panel will take up the specific subject of assassinations, presumably including the slayings of Sen. Kennedy and civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., at its Oct. 2-3 session.

The commission members in addition to Eisenhower are Roman Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York, attorney Lubert Jenner of Chicago, former Ambassador Patricia Harris, philosopher Eric Hoffer, Sens. Philip Hart, D-Mich., and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., Reps. Hale Bogga, D-La., and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, and federal Judge Leon Higginbotham.

Dear Editor:

For those who like to solve puzzles and love mysteries, there is a unique one for them. It was started in 1946 and has continued until now. Rhodes Scholar, U. S. Senator J. W. Fulbright (D-ARK), ADA 39, inspired by the Rhodes idea, tapped the U. S. Treasury to finance "Fulbright Scholarships". The U. S. taxpayers are footing the bill which reached $53 million per year in 1966. The brightest boys from high schools and prep schools are sought and given scholarships whereby they are sent to chosen English Universities such as Oxford for Fabian-socialist endoctrination. Thepuzzles, not jigsaws, are the motive of Rhodes, of Fulbrights, and the ease with which hardheaded taxpayers, their agents, and bureaus can be bilked out of vast funds to destroy the profit motive system, individual intitiative, Republic U.S.A., andthe Church. The mysteries are myriad; the rewards how, why, when, and what.

13 Die in August Accidents

In these accidents 13 were killed, 205 were injured, and damage to vehicles involved was estimated at more than $213,000.

During the same period in 1967, the patrol investigated 239 accidents. In these accidents, seven were killed and 147 injured.

The Department of Transportation of the United States had reported to Congress on the role of alcohol in traffic accidents. The study contains these findings:

More than half of adults use the highways at least occasionally after drinking. "However, the scientific evidence is irrefutable that the problem is primarily one of the persons, predominantly men, who have been drinking heavily..."

Alcoholics and other problem drinkers, while constituting a small minority of the general population, account for a very large part of the accident problem.

In the past 35 years, in every area of the nation, alcohol has been found to be "the largest single factor leading to fatal crashes." For example, almost half of the drivers in fatal crashes of all types have been found to have blood alcohol concentrations of .10 per cent by weight or more. In single vehicle crashes, up to 57 per cent of all drivers killed had blood alcohol contents of that level.

Most crashes involving alcohol occur in late afternoon, evening, and night time hours. The worst day of the week is Saturday.

The behavior of many drinkers, including very heavy drinkers, begin to be adversely affected by blood alcohol before they outwardly appear to be intoxicated.

The report indicated that more scientific research on this problem is needed, especially in the realm of taking meaningful remedial actions.

Accidents in area counties:

Bollinger: 15 accidents, one fatality, nine injuries, $7,205 property damage in August; 63 accidents, one fatality, 28 injuries, $30,950 property damage for year.

Butler: 45 accidents, three fatalities, 29 injuries, $27,385 property damage in August; 272 accidents, five fatalities, 160 injuries, $207,870 property damage for year.

Dunklin: 21 accidents, two fatalities, 11 injuries, $12,620 property damage in August; 169 accidents, six fatalities, 74 injuries, $94,385 property damage for year.

Mississippi: 26 accidents, two fatalities, 13 injuries, $20,580 property damage in August 122 accidents, five fatalities, 64 injuries, $90,480 property damage for year.

New Madrid: 30 accidents, one fatality, 45 injuries, $38,975 property damage in August; 194 accidents, 11 fatalities, 140 injuries, $204,765 property damage for year.

Pemiscot: 24 accidents, two fatalities, 16 injuries, $14,360 property damage in August; 181 accidents, nine fatalities, 123 injuries, $167,835 property damage for year.

Scott: 23 accidents, 10 injuries, $18,285 property damage in August; 161 accidents, six fatalities, 87 injuries, $165,050 property damage for year.

Humphrey Adviser Says LBJ Endorsement Should End Gossip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's endorsement should dispel gossip about whether he wants Hubert H. Humphrey to win the presidency, says a top Humphrey adviser.

"It puts to rest the gossip — and it never was anything more than that," said Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., Tuesday after Johnson ended a public silence on his vice president's campaign for the White House.

In a message to the Texas Democratic convention, Johnson said that he will support Humphrey and "work as hard for him as he has worked for America."

Harris and other top Democrats predictably welcomed Johnson's message and Harris added that "it will be especially helpful to us in our need to carry Texas."

Republicans also were predictable in their reaction. Several said Johnson's praise will only tie Humphrey closer to the Johnson record, something the GOP sees as a plus for its side.

Harris said that insofar as the statement ties Humphrey to the some of the sting of the charges Johnson record, "there was no never any way he could escape that record, nor did he want to."

"It doesn't diminish the vice president's ability to talk about the future and about building on the Johnson administration programs. He can talk about the future and what he would do as president."

The Oklahoma senator said that if there is an anti-Johnson vote, as the Republicans contend, "there is nothing the vice president can do to lessen that vote."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., running for re-election, said the President's statement "only emphasizes the identification of Humphrey with the administration and its policies."

"In my judgment, that is the biggest political load the vice president is carrying," Javits said. "The endorsement will work in reverse."

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., a vice presidential candidate in 1952, said he thinks the President's action "takes away not the President's record."

Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., whose state has become a three-cornered battleground between Humphrey, GOP nominee Richard M. Nixon and third party contender George C. Wallace, said it was a "tossup" whether the President's endorsement would help or hurt Humphrey in the South.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he doesn't think the statement will have much effect.

"Humphrey is tied to the Johnson administration record in any event," Hickenlooper said. "But Humphrey has to stand or fall on Humphrey and not the President's record."

Court Impounds Hippie Colony Sponsor's Financial Holdings

"God will provide," said Donald B. McCoy, 37, who quit a real estate investment career with the announcement that "I finally realized that if you are unhappy, you are a failure, no matter how much money you have."

The colony is on a 600-acre estate that McCoy leased for $1,000 a month in this suburban area about 25 miles from San Francisco.

Clad only in a shirt, McCoy, who is a full beard, was reading to several of his followers from a book about Jesus Christ when a reporter asked about the suit for control of his remaining fortune — estimated in court at $250,000.

"Some of the folks here are worried," he said, "but even if they take all the money away, we will continue to exist."

Arthur E. Lang of Mill Valley, McCoy's former father-in-law, brought the suit in behalf of McCoy's three daughters, aged 6 to 10. Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin County named Lang temporary conservator last week and set Sept. 30 for a hearing in San Rafael on whether to make Lang permanent conservator.

McCoy's former wife, Lang's daughter, now lives, according to testimony, in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, regarded by many as the hippie capital. McCoy's daughters have been living with him on the ranch. The other residents — both male and female — live in communal fashion, apparently at McCoy's expense, in a 19-room mansion and 14-room dormitory.

Lang, in his legal complaint, said McCoy had allowed his estate to dwindle from $500,000 to $250,000 and "is giving away or spending money as fast as he can do it." McCoy said he felt Lang was "up tight" in not appreciating how the money is spent and expressed confidence of a satisfactory outcome of the case.

If you lose, he was asked, would the group possibly become self-sustaining? He said someday he expects the group to be self-supporting, but the thought of any of his followers taking a paying job off the estate — known as Rancho Olompali — was horrifying.

"That would be joining the Establishment — an impossibility for us," he said. "You cannot serve God and mammon."

As McCoy switched the conversation to love and philosophy, his 9-year-old daughter, Dana, curled up against him. "We have a lot of fun here," she volunteered.

A young man constructing a bongo drum from a barrel and a hide agreed with her. Why, he said, when the girls first arrived, they were so "up tight" they didn't want to take their clothes off for nude swimming in the pool.

New Medical School Cheaper Than Expansion

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — It would cost less to establish a medical school at Kansas City than it would to expand the University of Missouri medical school in Columbia, the Missouri Commission on Higher Education reported Sunday night.

The report, prepared by the university, showed that it would cost $13,224,100 to establish a medical school in Kansas City and would cost about $2,650 a student a year to operate.

The present school in Columbia has a class of 100 students each year. To double that to 200 students would cost $6,605,000 for expansion of buildings, and the operating cost would be $3,560 for each additional student, the report stated.

The commission had received results of a survey showing that Missouri needs to educate at least 100 more doctors each year to avoid a doctor shortage.

Another method has been suggested by the state's four private medical schools. They propose that the state contract with them to train the additional doctors.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Presidential Panel Opens Violence Probe Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential panel set up in Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's dying hours opens formal hearings today in its sweeping probe of violence in America.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover were listed as leadoff witnesses at the closed-door session in the same building where the assassinated New York senator had his Capitol Hill offices.

Eight weeks of hearings have been scheduled by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence to hear testimony and task force reports on such subjects as firearms, disorderly demonstrations, law enforcement and the influence of the news media.

The panel plans a preliminary report to President Johnson before he leaves the White House in January. Its final report is due next June.

A commission aide said the panel has had problems recruiting enough top-notch personnel for the study because the commission will go out of existence after a year.

Johnson created the 15-member commission June 5 as Kennedy lay dying in Los Angeles where he was shot as he celebrated his California Democratic primary election triumph.

Unlike the Warren Commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the new panel will not limit itself to the specific slaying but will delve instead into a wide area of violence and its causes.

The commission is headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, 69, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and retired president of Johns Hopkins University.

The commission gave no reason for closing its initial round of hearings, but said later sessions might be open.

The panel will take up the specific subject of assassinations, presumably including the slayings of Sen. Kennedy and civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., at its Oct. 2-3 session.

The commission members in addition to Eisenhower are Roman Catholic Archbishop Terence J. Cooke of New York, attorney Labert Jenner of Chicago, former Ambassador Patricia Harris, philosopher Eric Hoffer; Sens. Philip Hart, D-Mich., and Roman Hruska, R-Neb.; Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, and federal Judge Leon Higginbotham.

'69 Chrysler is Bigger, All New

ALL-NEW CHRYSLER—Completely new for 1969, Chrysler is in every way a bigger car than last year's models. On the outside, it is five inches longer. On the inside, nearly every dimension has been increased for driver and passenger comfort. Available in 15 models, Chrysler offers a host of engines, options and accessories. Pictured is the Chrysler Newport Custom four-door hardtop.

NEW CHRYSLER LINE FOR 1969

The 1969 line of Chrysler cars introduces a new concept of design called fuselage styling which substantially increases interior room and gives the cars a totally different appearance.

"The new styling is another giant step forward for the Chrysler line," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "In every respect, it embodies the contemporary styling and solid engineering that has made Chrysler synonomous with quality in the automotive world."

The lines of the new cars are sleek and flowing. Over-all length is 224.7 inches, five inches longer than the 1968 models. The 15 models in five series -- Newport, Newport Custom, 300, New Yorker and Town & Country wagons -- go on sale September 19.

Nearly every interior dimension has been increased from last year for optimum comfort and roominess: more than three more inches of added legroom in the rear seats of four-door sedans and even more in most four-door hardtops; greater rear-seat knee room, and shoulder room increased more than three inches in both front and rear.

The rear compartment in wagons has been expanded to 48.5 inches between wheel housings, and the housings themselves incorporate three storage compartments.

Standard engine in the Newport and Newport Custom is the strong 383-cubic-inch V-8, with a big 440 optional. In the 300 and New Yorker, the 440 is standard, with a high-per 440 option.

Chrysler styling for 1969 integrates aerodynamic smoothness into every component of the car, from a big wrap-around or looped front bumper to new concealed windshield wipers to the sleek hardtop roofline on the two-door models. Articulated wipers extend by some four inches the wiped area on the windshield lower corner of the driver's side. On two-door models equipped with air-conditioning, vent windows have been eliminated.

Concealed headlights on the 300 have "fail-safe" device allowing emergency manual operation of the headlight doors.

Among the features in the Town & Country lines is an air deflector which deflects air over the rear window, keeping it clean and preventing fumes and dust from entering the rear window when it is open.

Wagons also are equipped with dual action tailgates, which can be opened as a door otao?gate;

An optional driver aid accessory package is available, offering a fasten seat belt reminder light, a door lock reminder light and a new warning buzzer to remind a driver leaving his car that he has left his headlights on.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK WARNS AGAINST RED CHINA

Those who have personally fought the communists and seen them destroy freedom are well-qualified to speak on the dangers of any compromise with this tyranny. Chiang Kai-shek has done battle directly with the forces of communism and knows the futility of seeking "accommodations" with them.

Recently Chiang granted an interview to the Japanese press mission, on the subject of possible Japanese diplomatic recognition of Red China. He warned that such a step would be a dangerous mistake.

Chiang pointed out that the Peking and Formosa governments are unalterably opposed. Recognition of Red China implies that the communists represent the legitimate government of the mainland and ignores all of the atrocities committed by the Peking government.

Chiang stated: "The direction of the international tides of today is toward freedom and democracy, for which everyone is longing." The Chinese communist regime represents slavery and tyranny. If the people on the mainland were allowed to express their views they would undoubtedly call for the immediate removal of Mao Tse-tung's government.

Chiang urged the Japanese government to forthrightly oppose communist China and refuse to grant diplomatic or economic recognition.

Many of the members of our own State Department should pay close attention to the words of Chiang Kai-shek. The officials urge closer diplomatic and economic ties between the United States and Red China. But any steps taken to bring this about would be a real blow against freedom in the Far East.

Our government should reaffirm its support of the Republic of China and its hostility to the illegitimate communist regime on the Chinese mainland.

A man who can jump six feet high on earth could jump 36 feet high on the moon.

'69 Chrysler is Bigger, All New

ALL-NEW CHRYSLER—Completely new for 1969, Chrysler is in every way a bigger car than last year's models. On the outside, it is five inches longer. On the inside, nearly every dimension has been increased for driver and passenger comfort. Available in 15 models, Chrysler offers a host of engines, options and accessories. Pictured is the Chrysler Newport Custom four-door hardtop.

NEW CHRYSLER LINE FOR 1969

The 1969 line of Chrysler cars introduces a new concept of design called fuselage styling which substantially increases interior room and gives the cars a totally different appearance.

"The new styling is another giant step forward for the Chrysler line," Glenn E. White, Chrysler-Plymouth Division general manager, said. "In every respect, it embodies the contemporary styling and solid engineering that has made Chrysler synonomous with quality in the automotive world."

The lines of the new cars are sleek and flowing. Over-all length is 224.7 inches, five inches longer than the 1968 models. The 15 models in five series -- Newport, Newport Custom, 300, New Yorker and Town & Country wagons -- go on sale September 19.

Nearly every interior dimension has been increased from last year for optimum comfort and roominess: more than three more inches of added legroom in the rear seats of four-door sedans and even more in most four-door hardtops; greater rear-seat knee room, and shoulder room increased more than three inches in both front and rear.

The rear compartment in wagons has been expanded to 48.5 inches between wheel housings, and the housings themselves incorporate three storage compartments.

Standard engine in the Newport and Newport Custom is the strong 383-cubic-inch V-8, with a big 440 optional. In the 300 and New Yorker, the 440 is standard, with a high-per 440 option.

Chrysler styling for 1969 integrates aerodynamic smoothness into every component of the car, from a big wrap-around or looped front bumper to new concealed windshield wipers to the sleek hardtop roofline on the two-door models. Articulated wipers extend by some four inches the wiped area on the windshield lower corner of the driver's side. On two-door models equipped with air-conditioning, vent windows have been eliminated.

Concealed headlights on the 300 have "fail-safe" device allowing emergency manual operation of the headlight doors.

Among the features in the Town & Country lines is an air deflector which deflects air over the rear window, keeping it clean and preventing fumes and dust from entering the rear window when it is open.

Wagons also are equipped with dual action tailgates, which can be opened as a door otao?gate;

An optional driver aid accessory package is available, offering a fasten seat belt reminder light, a door lock reminder light and a new warning buzzer to remind a driver leaving his car that he has left his headlights on.

Other refinements and new options on Chrysler line include: fullwidth rear seats in convertible models; repositioned door locking button on two-door models for greater ease of operation; floating caliper disc brakes and improved automatic brake adjusters; improvements in Sure-Grip differential, the cleaner air system and power steering pump; suspene differential, the cleaner air system and power steering pump; suspended accelerator pedal to facilitate cleaning the front floor.

Shirts for the Petite Gal

The best of both possible fashion worlds—haberdasher fabric combined with feminine frills (left) in white with blue stripings has a fetching Victorian banded collar and soft ruffles on the bosom and cuffs. NEW YORK (NEA)—The tattersall checks and stripes junior league has graduated to big league fashion this fall. For whether it's back-to-campus or career, the more diminutive damsel will certainly have her fair share of glamor goodies now specifically designed to enhance those petite and pretty proportions.

Tailoring is one of the keys in junior designing. Shirts are slick-fit and tapered, zingy and clingy, tuck-in, body-fitting perfect. No make-dos from regular miss styles.

Beguiling styling dominates this season's offerings. Tailored and classic shirts in have been given the charming oomph of ascot stock ties, ruffled bosoms and cuffs. A flattering combination of haberdasher fabrics and feminine frills is the result.

Sporty oxfords boast of Zhivago collars, Nehru necklines, safari pockets, up-to-the-elbow cuff treatments and thoroughly delighful and snappy contrasting stitching —dark against white as well as the reverse. And the sky's the limit in colorings from wispy whites to reds, navies and blacks.

For after-hours the now-look in junior shirts, according to junior designers, is nostalgic-Victorian. Perfect for any dress-up time, these shirts are beruffled with frilly jabots (some removable for suits), stand-up lacy collars, delicate cuffs, fragile and fetching.

The junior miss has a senior part in the shirt scene for fall. And it's only fitting.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

East Africa's ancient history is the basis of a remarkable set of new stamps which depict scenes of that area's archeological heritage. The stamps were issued by the East African Posts and Telecommunications and reported by the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau.

The 30 cents shows a pillar tomb, one of the most unusual tombs found on the East African coast. Although the tombs are Moslem, they are found in no other Moslem country, as they were an architectural invention of the East African coastal culture.

The 50 cents depicts a vivid rock painting of a man attacking an elephant. The stamp is a reminder that Tanzania is the East African country with the greatest number of sites where early man painted on the walls of caves and rock shelters.

The 1/30 shilling stamp illustrates a terra cotta clay head, possibly dating from 1000-1500 AD, which was dug up at Luzira, near Kampala, and is now in the British Museum in London.

The 250 shillings features the Proconsul Skull. It was in 1948 that Mrs. Mary Leakey, wife of

The Scandinavian Post Office Boards organized a competition for a stamp design to be issued jointly in 1969 by Denmark, Iceland, Finland, Norway and Sweden. The issue will commemorate the centenary of Scandinavian cooperation.

The previous similar issue was the Flying Swans design by Viggo Bang of Denmark, released Oct. 30, 1956. The winner and designer of the new set is Ake Gustafsson of Stockholm, Sweden. It represents five ships reproduced from a coin found on the Island of Bjorko in Lake Malaren, Sweden, the site of the ancient town of Birka.

FIRST MANNED DRAGON MISSILE FIRING. Caught by the camera as it cleared the launcher, a DRAGON missile streaks down-range during a development test at Redstone Arsenal, Ala. The missile impacted with "pinpoint accuracy." DRAGON is a shoulder-fired weapon powerful and accurate enough to destroy armor and other field fortifications. The weapon system is managed by the Army Missile Command; a

Shirts for the Petite Gal

The best of both possible fashion worlds—haberdasher fabric combined with feminine frills (left) in white with blue stripings has a fetching Victorian banded collar and soft ruffles on the bosom and cuffs. The shirt (right), complete with a stand-up Mao collar, has contrasting stitching over pockets, placket and cuffs. These are proportioned for the junior shape from the Van Heusen '417 collection.

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—The junior league has graduated to big league fashion this fall. For whether it's back-to-campus or career, the more diminutive damsel will certainly have her fair share of glamor goodies now specifically designed to enhance those petite and pretty proportions.

Tailoring is one of the keys in junior designing. Shirts are slick-fit and tapered, zingy and clingy, tuck-in, body-fitting perfect. No make-dos from regular miss styles.

Beguiling styling dominates this season's offerings. Tailored and classic shirts in tattersall checks and stripes have been given the charming oomph of ascot stock ties, ruffled bosoms and cuffs. A flattering combination of haberdasher fabrics and feminine frills is the result.

Sporty oxfords boast of Zhivago collars, Nehru necklines, safari pockets, up-to-the-elbow cuff treatments and thoroughly delightful and snappy contrasting stitching —dark against white as well as the reverse. And the sky's the limit in colorings from wispy whites to reds, navies and blacks.

For after-hours the now-look in junior shirts, according to junior designers, is nostalgic-Victorian. Perfect for any dress-up time, these shirts are beruffled with frilly jabots (some removable for suits), stand-up lacy collars, delicate cuffs, fragile and fetching.

The junior miss has a senior part in the shirt scene for fall. And it's only fitting.

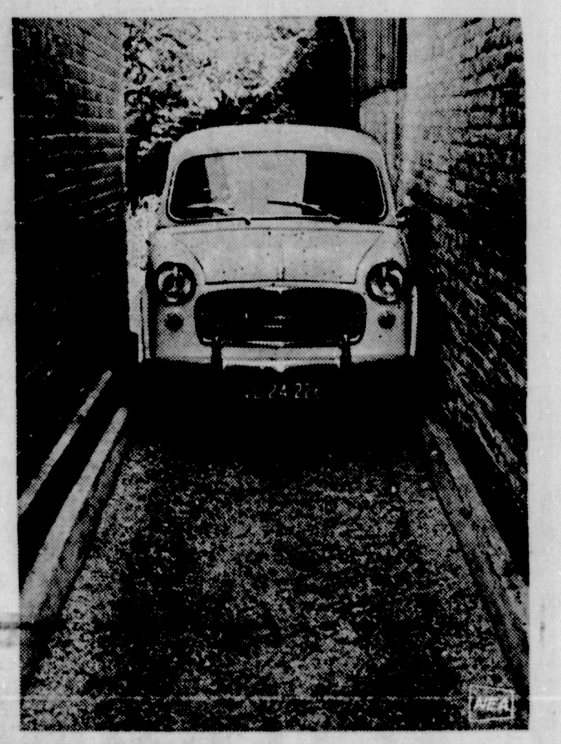
DEEP AND ACCURATE—A basic trainee at Fort Polk, La., executes a long thrust during bayonet training. These drills help the soldier develop the skills and confidence necessary for close combat.



TIGHT SQUEEZE confronts Marius Andersen of Ryomgard, Denmark, who must negotiate this narrow 65-foot-long alley connecting his back yard with the street. The Danish shoemaker carries a tape measure with him whenever he shops for a new car.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

East Africa's ancient history is the basis of a remarkable set of new stamps which depict scenes of that area's archeological heritage. The stamps were issued by the East African Posts and Telecommunications and reported by the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau.

The 30 cents shows a pillar tomb, one of the most unusual tombs found on the East African coast. Although the tombs are Moslem, they are found in no other Moslem country, as they were an architectural invention of the East African coastal culture.

The 50 cents depicts a vivid rock painting of a man attacking an elephant. The stamp is a reminder that Tanzania is the East African country with the greatest number of sites where early man painted on the walls of caves and rock shelters.

The 1/30 shilling stamp illustrates a terra cotta clay head, possibly dating from 1000-1500 AD, which was dug up at Luzira, near Kampala, and is now in the British Museum in London.

The 250 shillings features the Proconsul Skull. It was in 1948 that Mrs. Mary Leakey, wife of

The Scandinavian Post Office Boards organized a competition for a stamp design to be issued jointly in 1969 by Denmark, Iceland, Finland, Norway and Sweden. The issue will commemorate the centenary of Scandinavian cooperation.

The previous similar issue was the Flying Swans design by Viggo Bang of Denmark, released Oct. 30, 1956. The winner and designer of the new set is Ake Gustafsson of Stockholm, Sweden. It represents five ships reproduced from a coin found on the Island of Bjorko in Lake Malaren, Sweden, the site of the ancient town of Birka.

Ann Landers

Big Sister Has Problem With Rat-Fink Brother

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who has a problem in the form of a brother. I will be standing there minding my own business and my six-year-old brother Normie will come up and start making a pest of himself. Last night after I told him eight or 10 times to leave me alone he still pestered me so I gave him a light tap on the head. Normie screamed like I was killing him. He ran to my mother and said, "Ruthie hit me."

My mother came at me like I was a monster and called me a terrible kid. She said, "Just for thatyou can't have any dessert or watch TV and you have to go straight to bed right after supper."

Now that my rat-fink brother knows how to get me into trouble I am helpless. I can't leave home until I am 18 which means I am doomed to put up with this torture for six more years. Please tell me what to do. —— SUFFERING GIRL

Dear girl: Pray for a new baby brother. Normie will then be so busy defending himself against HIS brother that he will leave you alone. When your mother reads this she will probalbly tell me to drop dead.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife hates housework and anyone who steps inside our place knows it immediately. We have had some arguments over this and I always seem to lose. Liz tells me that any dumbbell can clean a house and she would rather spend her time on more creative things, like sewing or painting or pruning the hedges.

Once in a while you print something in your column about sloppy housekeepers. When you do I hand the pape to Liz and ask her if she recognizes anyone she knows. Yesterday you published such a letter and she got mad and yelled, "Ann Landers can tell women to scrub floors and sweat over the kitchen stove because she doesn't have to do it! I'll bet that dame has hired help all over the place."

Do you have the courage to print this letter and your answer? --- MR. OHIO

Dear Mr.: Your wife is right. I don't do housework, but I did plenty of it for the first 10 years of my marriage. And I didn't hate it or feel that it was beneath my dignity. My house looked fairly presentable and so did my husband's shirts, which I ironed. And nobody ever died from my cooking. Any more questions?

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting plenty fed up with reading that worn out line in your column --- "When you marry a divorced man you'd better be prepared to put up with the whole pack --- his kids, his ex-wife, her relatives, old friends---bla bla" and more stuff and nonesense.

I married a divorced man and I made it plain in advance that I was not going to be bothered with any of the aforementioned kooks. My husband's ex-wife is a religious fanatic who belts down martinis with one hand and reads the New Testament with the other. Her children look just like her and they act like her, too. Sometimes I think they do not even belong to my husband.

Kids belong with their mother, even if she is crazy and I say let her paddle her own canoe. --- NO TIES

Dear No: That canoe has your husband's children in it --- even if they don't look like him. If the waters get choppy, and it sounds as if they might, the children are going to need rescuing from time to time and if your husband is halfway decent he will do it. So get ready, Madame.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and you -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you wit your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A. J. Matthews of Sikeston has recently bought 640 acres of cut-over land near Lilbourn from Z. H. Travis of the latter town, paying $73 per acre for it. This is said to be a very fine body of land and the price paid would indicate that Mr. Matthews values it highly.

The Sikeston Masonic lodge and Rebekah members were guests at a party Wednesday evening in the lodge hall in honor of W. H. Sikes and James Kevil, the two Past Masters of the local Masonic lodge, who will leave soon to join the big brother-hood of boys in Khaki.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Matthews have received notice that their son, Ben, has arrived safely overseas.

If You Were the Judge

No Room on Force for Politicking Policeman

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wilbur decided to become a policeman despite the fact that a city ordinance prohibited policemen from engaging in politics. An idealist, however, he believed that politics could be kept out of politics. Consequently, one election year, he saw no harm in taking it upon himself to raise funds for a promising candidate whose promises appealed to him.

Unfortunately, while the candidate got in, Wilbur was let out. He was fired from the police force for engagingin politics contrary to the ordinance prohibiting same. Claiming the ordinance was illegal, Wilbur took the matter to court.

"I can't be fired!" Wilbur protested. "As an American citizen, I not only have a constitutional right to engage in politics. I have a duty to participate in it also. Therefore, the city has to give me back my job."

"That's not so," was the city's answer. "Politics is a game in which people engage in public affairs for private gain. Since it's not in the city's interests to have policemen with conflicting public interests, the ordinance was perfectly legal and Wilbur's being fired was perfectly justified."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put Wilbur back on the beat?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while a man may have a constitutional right to talk politics, he has no constitutional right to be a policeman. If Wilbur didn't like the conditions of his job, concludedthe judge, which were reasonable, he didn't have to be a policeman.

DODGE NEWS PHOTO

DODGE CORONET FOR '69 TO DEBUT DETROIT.....

A sleek and sporty fourth generation Dodge Coronet series will be introduced to the public on September 19, 1968, according to Robert B. McCurry, Dodge's general manager.

Classified as an "intermediate size car", the 1969 Coronet will boast of being the largest of its class in the industry.

The biggest seller of Dodge's automobile line, Coronet will again be offered in the widest variety of body styles and power train options.

The five series will have a total of 17 choices in body style.

TIRES AND BRAKES

Safety foremost has brought new innovations to the automatic brake adjusting system; improved disc brakes; wide tread tires, as well as a new fiberglass belted tire that provides not only additional safety, but added tread life. Improvements in power steering pumps, a new design in Sure-Grip differentials, automatic speed control, changes in transmissions, all contribute to making the Coronet a tailor-made or buyers' choice vehicle.

The summary of the 1969 Dodge Coronet will be a family size car that is still not too big for urban traffic problems and versatile enough to fit any new car buyer's pocket book.

NEW FEATURES

Emphasis by Dodge stylists and engineers on driver-passenger comfort and convenience will be highlighted by an optional manually operated driver bucket seats which will offer a choice of 160 different positions: Tilt, fore, aft, up and down. On two door models, door locks are repositioned for easier access.Power operated tailgate windows will be standard equipment. Eleven different colors of vinyl, or vinyl and cloth, trim will grace the interiors of the 1969 Dodge

Following buyer trends, the 1969 Coronet will have more vinyl roofs, interior wood-grain combinations, air conditioning, AM-FM radios, Am radio and stereo-tape combinations, and rear radio speaker.

POWERPLANTS

The multiple choice of engines provides a range from stingy economy to high performance.

- 170 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 225 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 318 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8
- 426 cubic-inch, four barrel, Hemi V8
- 440 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8

The least expensive Coronet, the Deluxe series, will be available in a two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two-seat wagon.

Although a late year introduction, the Super Bee was a surprise winner, being third in total Coronet sales in 1968. For 1969, the Super Bee will compete with its more powerful counterpart, the Coronet R/T, as leaders of the Scat Pack quintet.

Performance-oriented, the Super Bee will carry the 383 Magnum engine as the standard powerplant.

MODEL LINEUP

The Coronet 440 series, number one volume seller in the Dodge line, has five models: two-door coupe, two-door hardtop, four-door sedan, two-seat (six passenger) and three seat (nine passenger) wagons.

The next step up is the Coronet 500, which brings the luxury touches to the model. Five models again, a two-door hard top, convertible, four-door sedan, and two and three seat wagons.

The Bumble Bee-striped Coronet R/T rounds out the Coronet series with a two-door hardtop and convertible, complete with the 440 Magnum engine, rallye-type suspension, brakes and tires to match, making it a well balanced, well handling performance machine.

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The Leflore County board of supervisors has had its fill of Billie Joe McAllister.

A new ordinance makes it illegal to jump from the Tallahatchie Bridge — or any other bridge in the county — in imitation of the character in the song, "Ode to Billie Joe." Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of up to $180.

An estimated 40 to 50 youngsters have leaped from the bridge 20 feet above the Tallahatchie River since the song by former Mississippian Bobbie Gentry came out. But unlike Billie Joe, none of the youngsters has met death.

23 Enroll in Water Treatment Course Here

Among the widely diversified adult program now in progress, 23 men are enrolled in a class in a wastewater treatment program, attended by treatment plant operators from throughout Southeast Missouri.

Enrollment classes Friday in a variety of subjects open to the public.

Courses include clothing construction, communication skills, beginning and advanced traning in typing and shorthand, high school equivalency, business math and a number of technical courses, reports Richard "Dick" Downey, supervisor of adult education.

Unusual in this year's course is that a number of men have enrolled in commercial courses to add additional skills to present employment.

The water treatment class, which ends in March, outlines a complete study of waste treatment, and is now being taught by Richard Lucy, superintendent of the Sikeston treatment plant.

The class was featured in an article in the Missouri Municipal Review magazine in the August issue.

Three Treated

Three persons were admitted to the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital Tuesday:

Janet Lee Nations, Sikeston, turned left ankle while running; Carolyn Gean Steel, Sikeston, fell, injuring right arm, and Jean Hubbard, East Prairie, injured in car accident.

Heavy Oil Traffic

Because of the vast Middle East sources of petroleum, about 85 per cent of the total northbound traffic in the Suez Canal toward European ports consists of oil or oil products.

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The Leflore County board of supervisors has had its fill of Billie Joe McAllister.

A new ordinance makes it illegal to jump from the Tallahatchie Bridge — or any other bridge in the county — in imitation of the character in the song, "Ode to Billie Joe." Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of up to $180.

An estimated 40 to 50 youngsters have leaped from the bridge 20 feet above the Tallahatchie River since the song by former Mississippian Bobbie Gentry came out. But unlike Billie Joe, none of the youngsters has met death.

DODGE CORONET FOR '69 TO DEBUT DETROIT.....

A sleek and sporty fourth generation Dodge Coronet series will be introduced to the public on September 19, 1968, according to Robert B. McCurry, Dodge's general manager.

Classified as an "intermediate size car", the 1969 Coronet will boast of being the largest of its class in the industry.

The biggest seller of Dodge's automobile line, Coronet will again be offered in the widest variety of body styles and power train options.

The five series will have a total of 17 choices in body style.

TIRES AND BRAKES

Safety foremost has brought new innovations to the automatic brake adjusting system; improved disc brakes; wide tread tires, as well as a new fiberglass belted tire that provides not only additional safety, but added tread life. Improvements in power steering pumps, a new design in Sure-Grip differentials, automatic speed control, changes in transmissions, all contribute to making the Coronet a tailor-made or buyers' choice vehicle.

The summary of the 1969 Dodge Coronet will be a family size car that is still not too big for urban traffic problems and versatile enough to fit any new car buyer's pocket book.

NEW FEATURES

Emphasis by Dodge stylists and engineers on driver-passenger comfort and convenience will be highlighted by an optional manually operated driver bucket seats which will offer a choice of 160 different positions: Tilt, fore, aft, up and down. On two door models, door locks are repositioned for easier access.Power operated tailgate windows will be standard equipment. Eleven different colors of vinyl, or vinyl and cloth, trim will grace the interiors of the 1969 Dodge

Following buyer trends, the 1969 Coronet will have more vinyl roofs, interior wood-grain combinations, air conditioning, AM-FM radios, Am radio and stereo-tape combinations, and rear radio speaker.

POWERPLANTS

The multiple choice of engines provides a range from stingy economy to high performance.

- 170 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 225 cubic-inch Slant Six
- 318 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, two barrel, V8
- 383 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8
- 426 cubic-inch, four barrel, Hemi V8
- 440 cubic-inch, four barrel, Magnum V8

The least expensive Coronet, the Deluxe series, will be available in a two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two-seat wagon.

Although a late year introduction, the Super Bee was a surprise winner, being third in total Coronet sales in 1968. For 1969, the Super Bee will compete with its more powerful counterpart, the Coronet R/T, as leaders of the Scat Pack quintet.

Performance-oriented, the Super Bee will carry the 383 Magnum engine as the standard powerplant.

MODEL LINEUP

The Coronet 440 series, number one volume seller in the Dodge line, has five models: two-door coupe, two-door hardtop, four-door sedan, two-seat (six passenger) and three seat (nine passenger) wagons.

The next step up is the Coronet 500, which brings the luxury touches to the model. Five models again, a two-door hard top, convertible, four-door sedan, and two and three seat wagons.

The Bumble Bee-striped Coronet R/T rounds out the Coronet series with a two-door hardtop and convertible, complete with the 440 Magnum engine, rallye-type suspension, brakes and tires to match, making it a well balanced, well handling performance machine.

THE FOX

I like the fox. He mates for life
This makes it easy for his wife.
She doesn't fuss about her looks
Or read the latest "How-to-books."
She doesn't worry if he's fixin'
To run off with a younger vixen.
It isn't that he will or won't
He just don't.

And when she greets him with a litter
Mr. Fox is never bitter.
He simles and says, "Vulpes Velox,"
Which means "Hello there, little fox."
He steals a hen not to be rude
He's simply low on baby food.
He moves through life with silent tact
I like the fox and that's a fact.

QUESTION OF LOYALTY

Yesterday I held the world in my hands, and my hands were outstretched to share with you.

My words were warm sunshine, my laughter was echoing wind, and you were always there to hear.

My steps were strong and certain, leading me towards tomorrow, and you were always there beside me.

Today, I have lost the world, and I hold out empty hands.

My words are few; there is no laughter,

My steps are stumbling, and I often fall.

I reach out for you, but no one is there.

Where are you now, my dear "friends?"

Tracing her family's genealogy, collecting carnival and cut glass and reading are Mrs. Province's hobbies. Her husband hunts, collects guns, rocks and artifacts. He is a trustee of the Missouri Archaeological Society.

The couple attends the First Christian Church.

Vandalism at Community Center

MATTHEWS — The Matthews school calendar for 1968-69 includes:

Nov. 28-29. Thanksgiving, no school; Dec. 20, dismiss at close of day, return Jan. 2, 1969; Jan. 7, end of first semester, school in session; March 13-14, district teachers' meeting at Cape Girardeau, no school; March 24-28, no school (unless needed for snow days); May 18, baccalaureate services, 7:30 p.m.; May 23, commencement exercises, 7:30 p.m.; May 24, last day of school.

Members of the Community Club met for a business meeting at the Community Center last Monday evening. Committee members reported on plans for the Fall Festival and work sheets were distributed.

An attempt was made at assessing damage done and steps to be taken in preventing a reoccurence of destruction of the property for which many people have worked to provide and maintain for use of the community.

When the Girl Scout troops resumed meetings at the center last week it was discovered to be in a state of disrepair caused by vandals who had gained access by breaking a window. New draperies had been slashed near the hems and weights removed. The locks on cabinets and drawers had been broken. Silverware was scattered over the floor. Water glasses had been broken on the floor and commodes in the rest rooms were filled with broken glass. Deteriorated water melon rinds and cigarette stubs were strewn on the floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Givens of Sikeston, Mrs. Pearl Green, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore attended the Banana Festival at Fulton, Ky. While there they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Cox.

The Rev. Bruce Harding of Chohola, Pa., has accepted a call from the local Christian Church to serve as minister. He received his training at Phillips University at Enid, Okla. Mrs. Harding is a registered nurse. The couple visited here the weekend of Aug. 25. He will begin his services on Sept. 22.

Mrs. Annie Lee Sells underwent an emergency appendectomy Wednesday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston.

Hearnes Hails Clinic Opening

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Gov. Warren E. Hearnes dedicated one of Missouri's nine new mental health diagnostic clinics Saturday as "a beginning as well as a goal."

The governor said the clinic is part of a plan to bring mental health treatment closer to the people.

In a speech prepared for the dedication ceremony he said:

"You may recall that when our plan for nine regional clinics was approved by the Legislature, the Missouri plan was widely hailed as being a model for the nation. And I say to you now that our overall progress in mental health in recent years has moved Missouri from the dark ages to a period of enlightenment."

As community treatment centers are developed from state and federal funds, he said mental treatment will be brought even closer to the people.

He called it a period of remarkable improvement.

Symington Urges Democrats to Remember '48

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The victory by Harry S. Truman in the presidential campaign of 1948 was held before Democratic party workers Saturday as something to remember "even though things don't look too good at this time."

Symington said that primary fights should not sidetrack the Democrats in their push for victory in the general election.

Bumper stickers also got attention at the meeting. William S. Morris, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, without mentioning George C. Wallace by name, said the third party's presidential candidate sticker campaign shows good results in all parts of the state. Morris asked his hearers to counter the Wallace effort by using bumper strips bearing the name of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Referring to Wallace, Morris said "if you vote for him, you're wasting your vote."

The board also authorized $50,000 for construction improvements at the King site, located 10 miles south of Columbia, where the environmental health studies facility is planned. The facility will provide a central area for research dealing with effects of environment on health in both rural and urban Missouri.

Regarding other construction work, the board discussed but took no action on bids received for multi-purpose auditoriums for Columbia and St. Louis campuses.

A Center for International, Foreign, Area and Comparative Studies was approved with headquarters in St. Louis and offices on each of four campuses of the university. Paul R. Schratz, a member of the Department of Political Affairs at the National War College, was named director of the center.

The center's purpose is three-fold: to expand and improve teaching of international studies at all educational levels, to undertake and make available results of research and to aid the American public in understanding world affairs.

The board approved plans to establish a "named" professorship in electrical power systems engineering in the department of electrical engineering at Columbia. The professorship and support staff will be financed with gifts from nine Missouri electrical power firms. MU Curators Make Up Athletic Deficit

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Board of Curators at the Unversity of Missouri Friday made up a deficit of $41,483 incurred by the athletic department for the year which ended June 30.

William C. Myers Jr., board president, said the deficit was made up with money from a $50,000 athletic department reserve fund established several years ago.

The president said the university is studying the long-range financial situation of the department and noted that no public funds are used for inter-collegiate athletics.

To improve the financial situation Myers said complimentary tickets to M.U. athletic events which are given to state officials and others will no longer be charged to the athletic department, but would be charged to the university groups involved which would pay for the tickets with non-appropriated funds.

Earl Jarvis

Earl Jarvis at Dealer Meeting

E. R. Jarvis of Jarvis Motor Co. participated in the most unique dealer new car meeting in American Motors' history.

He was one of more than 2,100 American Motors dealers "airlifted" to Los Angeles International Airport in a single day to meet with company officials and to view AM's 1969 car line.

Nineteen giant jets carriedthe entire American Motorsdealer force from all parts of the country to Los Angeles in the morning, and returned them to their starting points late the same day. Some dealers traveled more than 6,000 miles roundtrip to attend the meeting.

The meeting began even before the dealers arrived in Los Angeles. While on route, they watched a 45minute product film on AA's Astrocolor, in the first auto sales meeting in the sky.

Upon arrival at the airport, they were taken to the American Airlines hangar area to see the 1969 Ambassador, Rebel, Rambler, AMX and Javelin cars, and to learn about AM's 1969 sales objectives from Roy D. Chapin, Jr., board chairman, and William V. Luneburg, president.

Dealers had lunch at the airport, saw a performance exhibition by Craig Breedlove, world land-speed record holder, who drove the company's AMX sports car, and then reboarded the jets to return home.

Penney Ready For 93rd Birthday, 24th Election

One of the few who can make this claim is James Cash Penney, founder of the department store chain, who is getting ready to observe his 93rd brithday on Monday, Sept. 16.

Mr. Penney seems less excited about the observance than most other associates in the Penney Company. Says Mr. Penney, "When you've had as many birthdays as I have, they become a matter of course. However, you can be sure that I'll be good and ready for No. 100."

Regardless of Mr. Penney's feelings about No. 93 associates at the Penney store here are looking forward to the birthday and plan to celebrate with a cake, according to manager S. T. Bush.

Mr. Penney's role with the Company is somewhat like that of an ex-president of the U. S. Although he has not been involved in direct management of the Company for a number of years, Mr. Penney continues to have special meaning for associates and is viewed as an elder statesman of retailing. On a formal basis, he makes his feelings about the Company known through continued service on the board of directors.

A lot of history has taken place during Mr. Penney's lifetime. When he was born in 1875, Ulysses S. Grant, 18th president, was in his second term, having first been elected in 1868.

The Republican slogan for Grant in his first campaign was "Match him!" On the other hand, one of the most wistfully appealing slogans of all time was the one used by Grant's forgotten opponent, Horatio Seymour: "Reduce taxation before taxation reduces us."

Theodore Roosevelt was president in 1902, when Mr. Penney, then 26 years old, opened his first store in Kemmerer, Wyo.

Roosevelt is remembered today for popularizing the adage, "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." It was used to underline Roosevelt's belief that the U. S. should exercise restraint in its pronouncements, but at the same time maintain a strong navy in order to support the Monroe Doctrine.

The 500th Penney store was opened in 1924 in Hamilton, Mo., Mr. Penney's hometown. It was the same store where Mr. Penney had started his retailing career in 1895 when the sotre was operated as J. M. Hale & Brother. Mr. Penney bought out the store when Mr. Hale decided to retire. President when the Company opened No. 500 was Calvin Coolidge, who had moved up from the vice presidency when Warren G. Harding died in 1923. Coolidge was elected in his own right in 1924 on the slogan, "Keep cool with Coolidge."

Harry S. Truman was president in 1951, when Mr. Penney saw the Company reach a significant milestone--its first billion dollar sales year.

Will Hubert H. Humphrey or Richard M. Nixon succeed Lyndon B. Johnson and become the 37th president? Mr. Penney is following the campaign with the same interest as other Americans.

One reason Mr. Penny is interested in politicis is he feels it is a lot like retailing.

First, a good politician, like a good retailer, must have a basic interest in people. Mr. Penney advises, "Don't go into retailing unless you like people."

Second, both politics and retailing require a certain amount of showmanship. A retailer can have quality merchandise, but unless he lets the consumer know, he might as well close his doors. By the same token, a politician also must dramatize his assets.

Fishermen on the Sea of Galilee used torches to attract fish to their boats at night back in Biblical days. Today commercial herring fishermen on Puget Sound employ the same technique using mercury lamps – the type that illuminates many American streets.

Because herring sleep on the bottom of the sea in daylight, commercial fishing is done after dark when they rise to the surface to feed. One fisherman increased his catch ten-fold.

saturday evening post
trims some millionaires
in effort to 'upgrade'
subscriber list

By FREDERICK C. KLEIN

Like a Saturday Evening Post subscription.

Winthrop Rockefeller made this ego-demolishing discovery recently when the Post rejected him as a reader. As a resident of Arkansas—he's the governor—Mr. Rockefeller is part of the rural audience the Post wants to shed.

The Post, which helped its publisher lose $55 million between 1961 and 1967, has a plan. It intends to get in the black by discarding more than half its 6.3 million mail circulation—people like Mr. Rockefeller-and concentrating on those who appreciate "more sophisticated" editorial matter.

According to the get-well script, the Post will drop out of its costly and losing circulation battle with Life and Look, print more articles aimed at a mostly metropolitan readership and start making money. The Post hopes for an 80% metropolitan circulation. But in cutting back, some city subscribers have to go, too.

Those who already have failed to meet the new Post subscriber standards include Mrs. William A. Emerson of Atlanta, mother of the magazine's editor, and Mrs. William Kerby, a Brooklyn resident whose husband is president of Dow Jones & Co., which published this newspaper.

Crushing the Readers

A Post spokesman says all who flunk should be consoled to learn that a similar cancellation was received by Martin S. Ackerman, who dreamed up the scheme. He is president of Curtis Publishing Co., which published the Post.

Mr. Ackerman and the other rejects mentioned above have requested, and been granted, a continuation of their present Post subscriptions. They apparently were victims of an unfeeling computer that was ordered to knock out 70% of the Post's rural subscribers and 50% of its metropolitan-suburban readership—and it went about the job without making nice distinctions, the Post explains.

Some readers go into shock when they realize the Post considers them too square for the magazine. A suburbanite said she was "definitely disgruntled, deeply shocked and abysmally crushed" to get the form rejection letter.

One castoff pointed out to the Post that his wife once was invited to a party given by Sen. Edward Kennedy's wife. And, he added, she "prepares succulent repasts strictly following the rules of French cuisine."

A Pennsylvania woman said she and her husband had "attained middle class affluence" and qualified as Post people. "We spend most of what we take in," she said.

A number of readers show bad form when dropped. A Los Angeles engineer flaunted his Ph.D., said he made "in excess" of $40,000 a year and described his as "The very model of your target subscriber family." He stuffily concluded his notice was mailed in error.

Circulation Man a
Knuckle-Head?

A sarcastic subscriber wrote to Benjamin Franklin, Editor—he founded the Post's predecessor in 1728 - and sent a copy to "your knuckle-headed circulation director." Signing himself Thomas Jefferson, the writer complained he was cancelled out because his Monticello residence wasn't "on the sophisticated side of Charlottesville."

Post expendables have several options. They can demand a cash refund or continuation of the Post or some other Curtis magazine. Or, thanks to a deal between publishers, they can substitute arch-rival Life for the remainder of their Post subscription.

"We know you'll love Life," says the Post's letter. "However, if your attachment to the Post is absolutely unbreakable, we could continue your subscription but only if you notify us within the next 10 days."

Life isn't the alternative say some. "Much of our mail has been from people who say that if they wanted Life, they'd already be subscribing to it," says a Post spokesman who seems unable to resist a needle even though the circulation war is over.

To be sure, not everyone is fighting mad at being switched. A life circulation man says that 75% of Post readers being offered Life are happy to get his magazine. "The response is better than we expected," he says.

And a Chicago-area man says he is "not particularly concerned" whether the Post continues arriving in his mailbox or he just gets a refund on his three-year subscription.

Mr. Rockefeller, Mrs. Kerby and any others the Post tries to drop could go on reading the magazine without a subscription, of course, simply by paying the newsstand price.

But soon, only the most free-spending sophisticates might be able to afford the Post. Starting with the Sept. 7 issue, the newsstand price is jumping from 35 cents to 50 cents, and a year's subscription will go from the present $3.95 to $8 or $10, according to Mr. Ackerman.

HOMEGROWN UFO'S

While warm weather is still with us it is smart to remember that unidentified flying objects – such as candy wrappers, for example – can be highly dangerous when whirling around inside moving automobiles. Loose papers suddenly caught in the wind when a window is open will obscure the driver's vision and cause accidents, an auto authority says.

Don't clutter up the back shelf with candy wrappers, unpaid bills, credit card receipts or paper saucers. They could fly.

Prison Stabbing Involves Madrid County Convict

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Charles Cherry, 33, serving a life term for a Carter county murder conviction, suffered a series of stab wounds in the chest and left arm Sunday night in an altercation with another prisoner at Missouri Penitentiary, Warden Harold R. Swenson reported today.

Swenson said none of the wound entered the chest cavity and the wound in the arm was more serious. He said the knife used was fashioned from a file with a whittled handle affixed to it.

Investigators from the state highway patrol questioned Billy Joe Garrett, 37, serving a 50-year sentence for an armed robbery conviction in New Madrid county.

Swenson said the fight eruptted when a tier of cells was opened to allow the men to take showers.

STILL IN SCHOOL

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) – Herbert White, Huguenot High School's 68-year-old custodian, is retiring from that job, but it doesn't mean he's through with schools.

White, who left school in the third grade, has decided to complete his elementary and high school education and will attend night school to get a diploma.

Earl Jarvis at Dealer Meeting

He was one of more than 2,100 American Motors dealers "airlifted" to Los Angeles International Airport in a single day to meet with company officials and to view AM's 1969 car liner.

Nineteen giant jets carriedthe entire American Motorsdealer force from all parts of the country to Los Angeles in the morning, and returned them to their starting points late the same day. Some dealers traveled more than 6,000 miles roundtrip to attend the meeting.

The meeting began even before the dealers arrived in Los Angeles. While on route, they watched a 45minute product film on AA's Astrocolor, in the first auto sales meeting in the sky.

Upon arrival at the airport, they were taken to the American Airlines hangar area to see the 1969 Ambassador, Rebel, Rambler, AMX and Javelin cars, and to learn about AM's 1969 sales objectives from Roy D. Chapin, Jr., board chairman, and William V. Luneburg, president.

Dealers had lunch at the airport, saw a performance exhibition by Craig Breedlove, world land-speed record holder, who drove the company's AMX sports car, and then reboarded the jets to return home.

REALISM ON VIETNAM

As protracted negotiations drag on in Paris, it is vital that Americans consider anew the problems of Vietnam and why the U. S. intervened in that Far East struggle. The danger is that we will forget the public will and conclude that the entire effort in Asia hasn't been worthwhile.

Certainly, the war has not been brought to a prompt and successful ill, as Americans earlier hoped would be the case. While more and more U. S troops have been sent to Vietnam, the Johnson administration has not demonstrated a will to win. The emphasis in briefing pilots has been on what they must not hit, because of political restrictions, rather than on striking all targets of opportunity.

The Navy also has been denied a chance to blockade the North Vietnamese supply port of Haiphong and other entry points for Red war material. Allied forces on the ground have been refused permission to engage in hot pursuit of the enemy into peripheral states of Laos other privileged sanctuaries enjoyed by the communists. Thus American and allied fighting men, who have the know-how and the courage to win the war, have been prevented from achieving a clear-cut victory. The failure in Vietnam has not been a failure of the soldiers in the field, but a failure of the "dove"- like politicians in the Johnson administration and anti-war propagandists in the "liberal" news media.

In these circumstances, a realistic Americans understandably are bitter at the status of the "no-win" war. The fact of heavy casualties is all the more bitter because of administration refusal to press for total victory against the communists. Yet reaction to this effort is useless. Such a reaction is precisely what the communists want and expect. The Communists don't believe that the United States has sufficient staying power and endurance. Americans must show the Communists that they are wrong.

The truth is that there isn't any easy, short cut to victory over Communism. For 50 years the Reds have been warring on mankind's mind and all its institutions. They will remain at war, seeking our total defeat, until we defeat them in every front and convince them thereby that Red aggression won't work. If the U. S. won't keep up the fight against Communism, it won't. Free Americans, therefore, would make a tragic mistake if, at this point, they decided further military pressure would be unnecessary, since the entire defense posture is precisely what the communists want. Even if a clear-cut victory has not been achieved, the military pressure exerted against the communists in Southeast Asia has done good. It has prevented the communists from completely overrunning the Southeast Asia rice bowl, which they have eagerly sought. Military pressure by the U. S. also deterred other Asian countries from succumbing to the communist political orbit. Unquestionably, Indonesia - with more than 100 million people - would not have turned away from Communism had the U. S. not demonstrated that it would fight Communists in Asia.

Realistic, conservative Americans, therefore, would make a tragic mistake if, at this point, they decided further military pressure would be unnecessary, since the entire defense posture is precisely what the communists want and expect. The Communists don't believe that the United States has sufficient staying power and endurance. Americans must show the Communists that they are wrong.

Even if a clear-cut victory has not been achieved, the military pressure exerted against the communists in Southeast Asia has done good. It has prevented the communists from completely overrunning the Southeast Asia rice bowl, which they have so eagerly sought. Military pressure by the U. S. has deterred other Asian countries from swinging into the communist political orbit. Unquestionably, Indonesia, with more than 100 million people, would not have turned away from Communism had the U. S. not demonstrated that it would fight Communists in Asia.

Realistic, conservative Americans, therefore, would like a tragic muddle of it, this the pressure is not as strong as the entire defense position is effort is useless. Such a reaction is precisely what the Communists want and expect. The Communists don't believe that the United States has sufficient staying power and endurance. Americans must show the Communists that they fight in the field. The "talk, talk-fight, fight" theory of Mao Tse-tung is a concept that he does believe will bring them victory. They hope to worsen the U. S. battlefield position, by portrayed in American homes each night by television, while fighted, tough negotiators in Paris try to force U. S. representatives into yielding ground inch by inch. The Communists remembered the Marshall mission to China in World War II, when U. S. negotiators tragically agreed to accept a coalition government that included Communists. Such a system would open the door to the Red Trojan Horse and make possible the total subversion of South Vietnam.

The American people, in the weeks and months ahead, need more savvy and staying power than they have demonstrated in the last 20 years. They need to be that informed, realistic opinion be fully mobilized on the issues. This means that the sentiment needs to be strengthened and organized to force the Johnson administration to apply real war-winning bombing and naval pressure against North Vietnam if the Communist negotiators refuse to make a prompt end to their aggression against the South.

J. C. Penney Announces Proposed Split

NEW YORK - The board of directors of J. C. Penney Company recommended to its stockholders approve a two-for-one split of the common shares, an increase in the authorized common shares from 27 million to 75 million, and a new class of 5 million preferred shares. A special stockholders' meeting to act on the recommendation will be held here on Tuesday, Oct. 15.

The board at the same time announced its intention to increase the next quarterly dividend payable Nov. 1 to stockholders of record Oct. 9 from the present quarterly rate of 40 cents per share to 50 cents per share and to eliminate the year-end extra dividend which has been paid in recent years. This would mean an increase in the present annual rate from $1.80 (which includes a 20 cent year-end extra) to $2, or $1 per split share.

Penney's now has approximately 26.5 million common shares outstanding or reserved for options and conversion of the Company's recently issued convertible debentures. After the proposed split, approximately 22 million new common shares and 5 million preferred shares would be available for various corporate purposes.

If the stock split is approved, it will be effective shortly after the stockholders' meeting.

The Company, which operates nearly 1,700 stores in 49 states, also reported record earnings for both the second quarter and the first half ended July 27.

Earnings after federal income taxes for the 13-week second quarter amounted to $20,790,053 or, 83 cents a share compared with $16,512,586 or 66 cents a year ago.The gain totaled $4,277,465 or 25.9 per cent.

Per share earnings for the 26 weeks ended July 27 amounted to $1.36 this year against $1.07 last year. These figures are based on net earnings for the period of $34,058,336 this year compared with $26,781,183 last year, a gain of $7,267,143 or 27.1 per cent.

Sales for the 13 weeks April 28 through July 27 were a record $715,980,588 against $613,142,252 last year, an increase of $97,808,236 or 15.8 per cent. The department store chain's volume for the 26-week period Jan. 28 through July 27 totaled a record $1,346,378,356, an increase of 13.8 per cent over the $1,183,701,756 last year.

Chrmn. William M. Batten and Pres. C. L. Wright pointed to a strong sales performance, particularly in the Company's newer stores, as a major factor in the earnings improvement for the second quarter. Penney's had a 12.7 per cent sales gain in May, 17.1 per cent in June, and 18.6 per cent in July. The Penney officers noted that sales continued to reflect strong customer demand for better quality in all areas of department store merchandise.

During the first half, Penney's store physical plant grew by 3.4 million square feet through the opening of 12 new stores and 25 auto centers and the completion of 6 major expansions.

Of the store total, six stores serving new markets for the Company were opened averaging 190,000 square feet. The other six new stores, representing relocations of existing units to large, new buildings, averaged 115,000 square feet compared with 27,000 square feet for the stores they replaced.

CHICAGO (AP) — Sex education in suburban schools begins this fall under a program that frees it from a philosophical position.

Highland Park, Bannockburn and Deerfield districts in the North Shore area will introduce a program that was developed in Evanston, Ill., and San Francisco. The educators have been developing the system for more than a year.

"I don't think we should attempt to avoid the question of moral values," said Dr. Nathir Sara, who is serving as co-ordinator for the project.

"Absolutism in moral judgment based on conventional morality is no longer effective," he said. "The whole purpose of this program is to prepare students so that they may make rational decisions which are in their best interest from a point of physical and emotional well being."

IT'S UP TO YOU

By
Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

It couldn't have been "only yesterday"...more probably it was earlier today, that I sat by the window watching the sun and working a crossword puzzle or dealing a few hands of solitaire, and wondering what some of my favorite people alp through the gap in the hedge to join the carpool for school. One week they moved northward, the next southward, then it was a steamer religious and leaflets directed toward our country." Another week, with peanuts, Mardi, squirrel freeloading on hickory nuts scolded these invaders of his private domain.

It is hardly possible that the days could have been so many and so long...and why my favorite people have grown-up and scattered, but especially strange and involuntarily I glance out of the corner of an eye, even in 1968, expecting to see them at memory's parade.

I don't know how how the gap ever came in that hedge...it has been there since Jimmy and you believe in God?" The survey Susan Bach were crawling revealed that 70% of the though to make love to Po' Yugoslav people not only believe Thing, the lamented leader in God, but dare to affirm this collie; they roved under my faith in the face of the window to pick a few violets or Communist oppression. daffodils or lilies of the valley, The Anglican Digest, organ of once even they staged their own the Episcopalian Church in the duplicate of the coronation of U.S.A., stated in its January, England's Queen Elizabeth II, 1968, issue that the Orthodox and they were lovelier by far Underground Church in than any real queen ever was. Communist countries numbers

Andi Karchmer, (her name is some 45 million adherents. Andrea,) was one of these, when The same mighty spiritual she and Susan Bach were sis- sin which prevailed in the ter and aunt watching Big Brother Clifford build his tree house days of the Roman Empire are with lumber scrap salvaged from active in our world today and active in our world today and my garage; vestiges of it still may yet be instrumental in hang overhead in the big elm bringing totalitarian which shades both the Karchmer Communism to its knees. and Greenhouse backyards; in summer grapes and figs ripened and again the gap in the hedge became a port of entry, and how welcome they were. Can you imagine better use of violets, daffodils, lilies of the valley, figs and grapes than to be savored in the aroma and flavor by your favorite people?

I still see Andi occasionally, when she isn't busy creating epigram greeting cards for Hallmark, or making top grades in Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., or writing a play.

This she has done most latterly, and I hope to be in an aisle seat down front at Memphis Little Theatre when "The Grass Isn't Greener. . . It's Dead," by Andrea Karchmer is presented by the theatre's experimental workshop March 16. Indeed, I'd rather just look at Andi.

In the summer between high school graduation and matriculation at Skidmore, she reviewed books for The Commercial Appeal, and worked at Front St. Theatre.

Jackie Nichols, student at Memphis State, will direct her play, and she will be back here for final polishing before the curtain goes up.

Well, the gap in the hedge is still there, and bits of lumber in the elm remain as reminders of Clifford's tree house, and my favorite people will be welcome to violets, daffodils, lilies of the valley, figs and grapes at proper seasons; I shall keep on sitting by my window every morning, with coffee and Canfield, to see them reappear...Ammie now in the University of Arizona and Susan in Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Andi in Princeton and Andi in Saratoga Springs.

Only Alan Karchmer is still around; he's 13, and as all men know, cursing through a gap in the hedge is infra dig for a mature person of 13.

There was a golden "only yesterday"...or early today...when my favorite people were crawling through a gap in the hedge to make love to the sweet collie and her puppies, or crowning a queen with proper panoply and pomp next door.

Stand still, time!

Fun and Excitement 50 Years Ago At County Seat

in The Kansas City Times
By Harold Calvert

CARROLLTON, Mo. - Farms and most small villages in the Mid-West have steadily lost citizens to the large urban centers over the last 40 years. County seat towns, provided they have been able to attract an industry or two to offset their farm trade loss, have nevertheless enjoyed some growth during these years of shifting population.

"Crazy Day" promotion held annually in Carrollton is reminiscent of county seat street scenes common before World War I. During "Crazy Day" the merchants dress in corny, outlandish costumes, pile bargains on the sidewalk outside their stores and in general promote a carnival atmosphere for shoppers.

Early-day merchants and all their customers were definitely not "rubes" but Saturday was the day when most farm families made their weekly visit to the county seat. A festive atmosphere on that day was the custom and the farm people seemed to enjoy it. The present burlesque of those days is equally enjoyed.

Buildings Little Changed

Most of the store buildings around the square facing the courthouse and a block or so each way, save for face liftings, are still the same as they were when the present courthouse was built in 1902. Fire took the old Wilcoxson Opera House at the southwest corner of the square and the Baum and David building at the northeast corner. Both buildings were replaced with more modern structures.

One thing around the square that is decidedly dissimilar to, say, 1910 -- is the vehicular traffic. Sleek automobiles of various makes, models and shapes constantly circle the square. The stream of cars, almost any week day, seems to never slacken, as anyone trying to back out of a parking slot will verify. How different from the traffic of 50 or 60 years ago.

True, a few automobiles of early vintage were seen occasionally on the streets in those days, their owners and drivers forming a small group of daring and , adventure some citizens. Most of those old cars were gasoline propelled, such as Stoddard-Dayton and Pierce-Arrow. A few were electrically (battery) driven and at least one steamer puffed gently around the city.

Let's picture a typical scene around the square during the early years of the century. If the day happened to be in the summer and on a Saturday, the streets and sidewalks were crowded with vehicles and pedestrians.

Produce Comes to Market

Farm families arrived in town usually about 9:30 or 10:00 in the morning. After depositing fresh produce at their favorite grocery, the horse or team of horses was tethered at one of the public hitchracks or quartered out of the weather in one of the livery stables. Farm horses were a little skittish in town. The strange noises, such as automobiles made, and the clanging and squeaking of an electric street car as it progressed across the square on its winding trip from the depots, did little to calm their nerves. A runaway team sometime during the day wasn't uncommon.

By mid-morning the town was a beehive of activity. Storekeepers walked to work but the streets were full of commercial delivery wagons, carts and farm vehicles. Mr. Sid Appleby's dray wagons were unloading their freight at the various stores. Mr. Will Sturgis and his grocery delivery wagons were busily picking up the morning's grocery orders from the 13 to 15 grocery stores.

The big ice delivery teams, Mr. Oberlag's beer delivery wagons, the laundry cart, perhaps Ralph Rice and his meat delivery cart, Otto Schmidt's telephone repair cart and many other commercial vehicles of the day all added to the clutter and hubbub of a busy Saturday morning. The air was tantalizing pleasing with many alluring odors, especially those from the sidewalk popcorn and peanut roasting machines. By noon everyone was ready for lunch.

A Variety of Lunches

Some farm people brought their lunch with them; others munched cheese and crackers in a grocery while many unencumbered fellows partook of a sandwich at Dad Offit's or Shorty Baldwin's lunch stand. Some even gave the free lunch at the saloons a working over. Many visitors, however, took their families to Jackson's restaurant for the day's eating highlight. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were Negroes and hired Negro help. The Jacksons operated one of the best restaurants in that part of the state and drew patrons from far and near. Food was served family style by white-jacketed men waiters.

Street crowds were fairly orderly during the day but frequently a visiting farm hand or a local "goodtime Charlie" some time during the day would get a little too much of the cup that cheers but alas also blears. When two quick taps sounded on the courthouse bell, it wasn't necessarily 2 o'clock. It was the signal for the town marshal to "come quick" and quiet a disturbance, usually on "battle-row" just off the square. Most of the saloons were located there and things sometimes got a little out of order.

Marshal on the Job

Bob White was a noted marshal of his day. Tall and arrow straight, with his dark blue suit and large light colored hat, his was more the appearance of a prosperous cattleman than of a town marshal. But have no doubt, he was always equal to the occasion. Within a few minutes after the alarm was sounded, he could usually be seen with a rubbery legged individual by the arm and headed across the courthouse yard toward the calaboose. The rubbery-legged one was usually somewhat argumentative but Bob White's stony countenance never seemed to suggest that he heard his prisoner's protestations -- until they became overly abusive. Then a huge fist landed flush on the protester's mouth and the argument suddenly ceased.

His Life Never Dull

The county sheriff, the town marshal and the night policeman along with a part-time sheriff's deputy constituted about the entire law enforcement team. Automobiles now have complicated the law enforcement picture and many more peace officers are needed. Even in those days, however, [illegible] were present. An occasional murder, miscellaneous thefts and quarrels kept an officer's life anything but dull.

In the afternoon while the women folks shopped the millinery and dress shops and the young people, shyly in some cases, boldly in others, got together socially, the men talked farming, visiting over a soft drink and many time a drink not so soft. Some days, free entertainment of a sort was furnished on the courthouse walk by a traveling group of ballad singers with appropriate accompaniment. If a member of the group was blind (or allegedly so) contributions came all the easier.

Perhaps the afternoon's routine might be broken by a long mournful blast of the steam whistle at the waterworks signifying a fire somewhere in town. The long blast was followed by a number of short ones which denoted the ward where the fire was supposed to be raging.

Show by Fire Wagons

Before the whistle had ceased, people were rushing toward the fire barn. They weren't interested so much in the fire as they were in seeing the fire wagon driver bring his vehicle, pulled by the two city-trained firehorses, out of the barn and with bell clanging and sparks flying head them in a ponderous gallop toward the scene of the blaze. Ol' Joe and Ol' Dan, the firehorses, like all well-trained such animals, seemed to enjoy their work as much as we youngsters envied the driver his job. "Indian Tom" Finley was the early driver that I remember best. I thought he had the most romantic job imaginable.

Then, along in the late afternoon, it came time for most of the farm families to start home. The surrey, buggy, wagon or whatever conveyance the [illegible] to the grocery store to load the week's supply of staples -- probably a 50 pound sack of locally milled Queen of the Southwest or Rose of Carroll flour, a pound or two of Peaberry coffee, sugar, salt and other items not produced on the farm. The grocery balanced the purchases against credit for the produce brought to town and a settlement was made.

Many of the younger sports stayed on into the evening to enjoy themselves bowling, playing pool and occasionally visiting a saloon. Some families stayed to enjoy the latest play at the Wilcoxson opera house. Stores stayed open until nearly midnight and the overworked merchants had some legitimate excuse for arriving late at church services the next day. The big day came to a close but would be repeated in varying degree the following Saturday.

Quaint days those. But have no illusions. The present ones, may soon seem equally quaint.

Locals and Personals

The Glee Club meets every afternoon with Misses Howard and Fink.

Miss Barth, the new teacher, conducted chapel exercises this week.

The Commercial department of the High School received three or four new typewriters this week.

This is the second week of high school and prospects were never brighter for a successful years work.

Willet Lockhart was absent part of this week on account of a sprained ankle received while playing football.

The total number of students attending the public school are 684; 133 enrolled in the High School. A grand total of 817.

John Donanew furnished the school with a great deal of amusement Tuesday when, in attempting to take a seat, he slipped and fell sprawling on the floor.

Owing to increased number of tardies the past few mornings effective steps have been taken by Supt. Lee to lessen this parctice, which is most always unnecessary.

What is the public school? A W.C.T.U. lecturer this week said: "It is an accommodation for the mother, a living for the teacher and a punishment for the students."

Since the High Schools of serveral towns have been writing to us wanting a game of football, Coach Van Horne has addressed a number of the schools in Southeast Missouri to have coaches from each school in question meet in Sikeston Saturday, September 25 to arrange a schedule of games.

The faculty has been trying to convince the young ladies that the excessive use of powder is very injurious to their complexion. However, they continue to spread it on profusely. The teachers are hoping the girl pupils will see the error of their way and cease the obnoxious practicing of doping "their" face. The fair, natural complexion of a maiden is more beautiful to look upon than a girl who seeks to hid her attractive contenance with a false face.

Miss Anna Zentmyer, of Higginsville, president of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., gave a lecture Thursday afternoon to the student body of the Sikeston High School. It was on the use of alcohol and tabacco. After the talk, which was very much appreciated, we called on her for a reading, which she gave. We have had some splendid lectures from the ladies attending the State W.C.T.U. Convention this week. Miss Zentmyer is a fine speaker and the student body is always eager to listen to a woman who can present such strong truths with force and earnestness.

On Monday afternoon of this week the agriculture class took their first field trip. They went by the Scott County Farm Bureau and asked Mr. Derr to go with them. They first studied the corredt method of pruning shade trees and at the same time called attention to improper methods of pruning. Excellent samples of tree surgery were seen and contrasted with some poor ones in which the cement was not put in correctly. Mr. Deer explained a number of orchard diseases and insect pests and how to eradicate them. The class greatly appreciated his explanations and hope to go on another trip soon.

Lectures to High School

The greatest and most appreciated lecture ever delivered to the high school was that of Mrs. Lora S. LaMance Thursday morning. Instead of the regular chapel exercise Mrs. LaMance addressed the high school. Her subject was Alaska. Mrs. LaMance has spent quite a bit of time the last few years in Alaska and is well qualified to speak on this subject.

"It is a wonderful country," says Mrs. LaMance, "in many ways. The United States bought it for less than one-half cent per acre. She paid $7,200,000 fot it, and has received twenty five dollars and fifty cents in return for every dollar put into it. And this great gain comes from four things - fish, fur, gold, and cooper. She has wonderful coal mines, some forty feet thick, that have been opened.

"Alaska has no roads. It has vast territory, a little larger than one fifth of the United States, there is less than one hundred miles of roads, and less than a thousand miles of trail. This is caused by the southern part of the country being bog from inches to twenty feet deep. Consequently, farming is not extended because to much must be expected to drain these bogs. When a boy can make thirty-seven dollars a day catching fish, it is reasonable to suppose that he will not expend a great amount of money to drain a garden spot.

"Alaska has the greatest dead volcano in the world. It is near the seacoast, and the sea fairly boils thru the crater.

"People frequently ask me," says Mrs. LaMance, "whether or not horses are used in Alaska?" There are very few because they cannot endure the severe climate. Reindeer and dogs are much more easily cared for, because they can take care of themselves.

"Alaska is the land of opportunity. There is wealth, walth, wealth. But the person who goes there must be physically and morally strong, or he will take the downward path; and if he starts down, it seems that in Alaska he can never turn back.

"The people can readily acquire the habits of civilization. Fifty-six years ago the first missionary who went there saw them eating human beings. Now they have their own schools, splendid churches and public buildings, their own water and light system. Alaska is indeed, a wonderful land, for those who are able to withstand the evils there. I would like to tell you more about Alaska; about the people and the land; about the gold mines and fox-farms there and many other things that I am sure you would enjoy hearing."

Several other lectures were delivered, all of which were interesting and to the point They were highly appreciated by us.

Two of the important lecturers were those of Mrs. Winters, of St. Joseph, who lectured to the girls on the public school system of today, and Mrs. Emmons, of Mexico, who lectured to the boys on the use of alcohol and tabacco.

The Sikeston public school had quite an honor conferred upon it when James Matthews, of the 6th grade, and Lyman Fox, of the First Primary, won the State prizes offered by the W.C.T.U. for the essay work in the school. This essay work has been in the Sikeston school for four years and during that time the school has won three State prizes. James and Lyman were introduced to the W.C.T.U. Convention Thursday morning and will be presented with books by Mrs. L. O. Middleton, State Superintendent of L. T. L. work in Missouri. This work should be in the High school as well. There were 17 medals given last year, from the first primary, down through the eighth grade, and this next year there should be 18 awarded.

The people of Sikeston, as well as the High School, are proud of having the champion W.C.T.U. medal contestant in the State. This is our Freshman, Dallas Beauchamp, who is only 13 years old, but was awarded the diamond medal over five competitors, all women and older than himself. They were worthy competitors, too, but were not able to compete against this youth of the Sikeston District. This makes the fourth medal Dallas has won since July. A silver and gold medal were received incompetition with children, after which the district medal at Blodgett, and Thursday night he competed against the best talent in the State, grown young ladies and married women, one of the girls being a High School teacher in a neighboring town, and was declared winner of the Diamond Medal over all. This gives young Dallas the state-wide reputation that he deserves.

The above news was reported from the Sikeston Herald of September 18, 1915.

CORRECTS MAYOR

"Mayor Alfonso J. Cervantes was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right to Work, to rescind his recent order banning purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Government," stated Gene Mittelberg.

Asserting that the AFL—CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians For Right To Work, told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Purchasing Department."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

The stream of cars, almost any week day, seems to never slacken, as anyone trying to back out of a parking slot will verify. How different from the traffic of 50 or 60 years ago.

True, a few automobiles of early vintage were seen occasionally on the streets in those days, their owners and drivers forming a small group of daring and , adventure some citizens. Most of those old cars were gasoline propelled, such as Stoddard-Dayton and Pierce-Arrow. A few were electrically (battery) driven and at least one steamer puffed gently around the city.

Let's picture a typical scene around the square during the early years of the century. If the day happened to be in the summer and on a Saturday, the streets and sidewalks were crowded with vehicles and pedestrians.

Produce Comes to Market

Farm families arrived in town usually about 9:30 or 10:00 in the morning. After depositing fresh produce at their favorite grocery, the horse or team of horses was tethered at one of the public hitchracks or quartered out of the weather in one of the livery stables. Farm horses were a little skittish in town. The strange noises, such as automobiles made, and the clanging and squeaking of an electric street car as it progressed across the square on its winding trip from the depots, did little to calm their nerves. A runaway team sometime during the day wasn't uncommon.

By mid-morning the town was a beehive of activity. Storekeepers walked to work but the streets were full of commercial delivery wagons, carts and farm vehicles. Mr. Sid Appleby's dray wagons were unloading their freight at the various stores. Mr. Will Sturgis and his grocery delivery wagons were busily picking up the morning's grocery orders from the 13 to 15 grocery stores.

The big ice delivery teams, Mr. Oberlag's beer delivery wagons, the laundry cart, perhaps Ralph Rice and his meat delivery cart, Otto Schmidt's telephone repair cart and many other commercial vehicles of the day all added to the clutter and hubbub of a busy Saturday morning. The air was tantalizing pleasing with many alluring odors, especially those from the sidewalk popcorn and peanut roasting machines. By noon everyone was ready for lunch.

A Variety of Lunches

Some farm people brought their lunch with them; others munched cheese and crackers in a grocery while many unencumbered fellows partook of a sandwich at Dad Offit's or Shorty Baldwin's lunch stand. Some even gave the free lunch at the saloons a working over. Many visitors, however, took their families to Jackson's restaurant for the day's eating highlight. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were Negroes and hired Negro help. The Jacksons operated one of the best restaurants in that part of the state and drew patrons from far and near. Food was served family style by white-jacketed men waiters.

Street crowds were fairly orderly during the day but frequently a visiting farm hand or a local "goodtime Charlie" some time during the day would get a little too much of the cup that cheers but alas also blears. When two quick taps sounded on the courthouse bell, it wasn't necessarily 2 o'clock. It was the signal for the town marshal to "come quick" and quiet a disturbance, usually on "battle-row" just off the square. Most of the saloons were located there and things sometimes got a little out of order.

Marshal on the Job

Bob White was a noted marshal of his day. Tall and arrow straight, with his dark blue suit and large light colored hat, his was more the appearance of a prosperous cattleman than of a town marshal. But have no doubt, he was always equal to the occasion. Within a few minutes after the alarm was sounded, he could usually be seen with a rubbery legged individual by the arm and headed across the courthouse yard toward the calaboose. The rubbery-legged one was usually somewhat argumentative but Bob White's stony countenance never seemed to suggest that he heard his prisoner's protestations - until they became overly abusive. Then a huge fist landed flush on the protester's mouth and the argument suddenly ceased.

His Life Never Dull

The county sheriff, the town marshal and the night policeman along with a part-time sheriff's deputy constituted about the entire law enforcement team. Automobiles now have complicated the law enforcement picture and many more peace officers are needed. Even in those days, however, [illegible] occasional murder, miscellaneous thefts and quarrels kept an officer's life anything but dull.

In the afternoon while the women folks shopped the millinery and dress shops and the young people, shyly in some cases, boldly in others, got together socially, the men talked farming, visiting over a soft drink and many time a drink not so soft. Some days, free entertainment of a sort was furnished on the courthouse walk by a traveling group of ballad singers with appropriate accompaniment. If a member of the group was blind (or allegedly so) contributions came all the easier.

Perhaps the afternoon's routine might be broken by a long mournful blast of the steam whistle at the waterworks signifying a fire somewhere in town. The long blast was followed by a number of short ones which denoted the ward where the fire was supposed to be raging.

Show by Fire Wagons

Before the whistle had ceased, people were rushing toward the fire barn. They weren't interested so much in the fire as they were in seeing the fire wagon driver bring his vehicle, pulled by the two city-trained firehorses, out of the barn and with bell clanging and sparks flying head them in a ponderous gallop toward the scene of the blaze. Ol' Joe and Ol' Dan, the firehorses, like all well-trained such animals, seemed to enjoy their work as much as we youngsters envied the driver his job. "Indian Tom" Finley was the early driver that I remember best. I thought he had the most romantic job imaginable.

Then, along in the late afternoon, it came time for most of the farm families to start home. The surrey, buggy, wagon or whatever conveyance the [illegible] brought to the grocery store to load the week's supply of staples -- probably a 50 pound sack of locally milled Queen of the Southwest or Rose of Carroll flour, a pound or two of Peaberry coffee, sugar, salt and other items not produced on the farm. The grocery balanced the purchases against credit for the produce brought to town and a settlement was made.

Many of the younger sports stayed on into the evening to enjoy themselves bowling, playing pool and occasionally visiting a saloon. Some families stayed to enjoy the latest play at the Wilcoxson opera house. Stores stayed open until nearly midnight and the overworked merchants had some legitimate excuse for arriving late at church services the next day. The big day came to a close but would be repeated in varying degree the following Saturday.

Quaint days those. But have no illusions. The present ones, may soon seem equally quaint.

Locals and Personals

The Glee Club meets every afternoon with Misses Howard and Fink.

Miss Barth, the new teacher, conducted chapel exercises this week.

The Commercial department of the High School received three or four new typewriters this week.

This is the second week of high school and prospects were never brighter for a successful years work.

Willet Lockhart was absent part of this week on account of a sprained ankle received while playing football.

The total number of students attending the public school are 684; 133 enrolled in the High School. A grand total of 817.

John Donahew furnished the school with a great deal of amusement Tuesday when, in attempting to take a seat, he slipped and fell sprawling on the floor.

Owing to increased number of tardies the past few mornings effective steps have been taken by Supt. Lee to lessen this parctice, which is most always unnecessary.

What is the public school? A W.C.T.U. lecturer this week said: "It is an accommodation for the mother, a living for the teacher and a punishment for the students."

Since the High Schools of serveral towns have been writing to us wanting a game of football, Coach Van Horne has addressed a number of the schools in Southeast Missouri to have coaches from each school in question meet in Sikeston Saturday, September 25 to arrange a schedule of games.

The faculty has been trying to convince the young ladies that the excessive use of powder is very injurious to their complexion. However, they continue to spread it on profusely. The teachers are hoping the girl pupils will see the error of their way and cease the obnoxious practicing of doping "their" face. The fair, natural complexion of a maiden is more beautiful to look upon than a girl who seeks to hid her attractive contenance with a false face.

Miss Anna Zentmyer, of Higginsville, president of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., gave a lecture Thursday afternoon to the student body of the Sikeston High School. It was on the use of alcohol and tabacco. After the talk, which was very much appreciated, we called on her for a reading, which she gave. We have had some splendid lectures from the ladies attending the State W.C.T.U. Convention this week. Miss Zentmyer is a fine speaker and the student body is always eager to listen to a woman who can present such strong truths with force and earnestness.

On Monday afternoon of this week the agriculture class took their first field trip. They went by the Scott County Farm Bureau and asked Mr. Derr to go with them. They first studied the corredt method of pruning shade trees and at the same time called attention to improper methods of pruning. Excellent samples of tree surgery were seen and contrasted with some poor ones in which the cement was not put in correctly. Mr. Deer explained a number of orchard diseases and insect pests and how to eradicate them. The class greatly appreciated his explanations and hope to go on another trip soon.

Lectures to High School

The greatest and most appreciated lecture ever delivered to the high school was that of Mrs. Lora S. LaMance Thursday morning. Instead of the regular chapel exercise Mrs. LaMance addressed the high school. Her subject was Alaska. Mrs. LaMance has spent quite a bit of time the last few years in Alaska and is well qualified to speak on this subject.

"It is a wonderful country," says Mrs. LaMance, "in many ways. The United States bought it for less than one-half cent per acre. She paid $7,200,000 fot it, and has received twenty five dollars and fifty cents in return for every dollar put into it. And this great gain comes from four things - fish, fur, gold, and cooper. She has wonderful coal mines, some forty feet thick, that have been opened.

"Alaska has no roads. It has vast territory, a little larger than one fifth of the United States, there is less than one hundred miles of roads, and less than a thousand miles of trail. This is caused by the southern part of the country being bog from inches to twenty feet deep. Consequently, farming is not extended because to much must be expected to drain these bogs. When a boy can make thirty-seven dollars a day catching fish, it is reasonable to suppose that he will not expend a great amount of money to drain a garden spot.

"Alaska has the greatest dead volcano in the world. It is near the seacoast, and the sea fairly boils thru the crater.

"People frequently ask me," says Mrs. LaMance, "whether or not horses are used in Alaska?" There are very few because they cannot endure the severe climate. Reindeer and dogs are much more easily cared for, because they can take care of themselves.

"Alaska is the land of opportunity. There is wealth, walth, wealth. But the person who goes there must be physically and morally strong, or he will take the downward path; and if he starts down, it seems that in Alaska he can never turn back.

"The people can readily acquire the habits of civilization. Fifty-six years ago the first missionary who went there saw them eating human beings. Now they have their own schools, splendid churches and public buildings, their own water and light system. Alaska is indeed, a wonderful land, for those who are able to withstand the evils there. I would like to tell you more about Alaska; about the people and the land; about the gold mines and fox-farms there and many other things that I am sure you would enjoy hearing."

Several other lectures were delivered, all of which were interesting and to the point They were highly appreciated by us.

Two of the important lecturers were those of Mrs. Winters, of St. Joseph, who lectured to the girls on the public school system of today, and Mrs. Emmons, of Mexico, who lectured to the boys on the use of alcohol and tabacco.

The Sikeston public school had quite an honor conferred upon it when James Matthews, of the 6th grade, and Lyman Fox, of the First Primary, won the State prizes offered by the W.C.T.U. for the essay work in the school. This essay work has been in the Sikeston school for four years and during that time the school has won three State prizes. James and Lyman were introduced to the W.C.T.U. Convention Thursday morning and will be presented with books by Mrs. L. O. Middleton, State Superintendent of L. T. L. work in Missouri. This work should be in the High school as well. There were 17 medals given last year, from the first primary, down through the eighth grade, and this next year there should be 18 awarded.

The people of Sikeston, as well as the High School, are proud of having the champion W.C.T.U. medal contestant in the State. This is our Freshman, Dallas Beauchamp, who is only 13 years old, but was awarded the diamond medal over five competitors, all women and older than himself. They were worthy competitors, too, but were not able to compete against this youth of the Sikeston District. This makes the fourth medal Dallas has won since July. A silver and gold medal were received incompetition with children, after which the district medal at Blodgett, and Thursday night he competed against the best talent in the State, grown young ladies and married women, one of the girls being a High School teacher in a neighboring town, and was declared winner of the Diamond Medal over all. This gives young Dallas the state-wide reputation that he deserves.

The above news was reported from the Sikeston Herald of September 18, 1915.

CORRECTS MAYOR

"Mayor Alfonso J. Cervantes was asked in a letter released today by Missourians For Right to Work, to rescind his recent order banning purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Government," stated Gene Mittelberg.

Asserting that the AFL—CIO sponsored boycott was not supported by California grape pickers, Mr. Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians For Right To Work, told the Mayor, "We know you, as Mayor of this great city would not want to be put in the position of using the power of your office to force unwilling workers 2,000 miles away, into joining an organization not of their choosing. We are confident that when you have all of the facts, you will promptly rescind your order banning the purchase of California grapes by the St. Louis City Purchasing Department."

Mr. Mittelberg requested an audience with the Mayor, in behalf of Jose Mendoza, a spokesman for the California grape pickers.

Missouri was named by the Labor Department to participate in its Work Incentive project and will receive $2,285,847 to provide training for 1,800 persons on welfare.

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED - Findings in the joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the national recreation area potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of GreaterSt. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS - This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor.

However, I was able to be in Missouri this past weekend for speaking engagements including the annual meeting of the Mo-Ark Flood Control Association, the Big Brothers banquet in Kansas City, and dedication of the newairport in Clinton.

Foreign Aid Needs A Sanity Clause

Let's take a look at what recently came out of Santa's bag of goodies. A breakdown of U.S. aid spending for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962, showed that of 107 recipients, India accounted for nearly twice as much as any other nation. Pakistan, which received almost $404 million, was second, followed by Turkey, Korea, Vietnam, Brazil, Chile, the United Arab Republic, the Republic of China and Mexico, in that order.

The European nation receiving the most U.S. aid was Yugoslavia, which ranked 13th among all recipients. Altogether, more than $2 billion in U.S. aid has gone to hat nation. Apparently Tito doesn't think he has to be a good boy in order to have a visit from Santa Claus. The acting chairman of the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee has stated that there is a "planned campaign of physical violence" directed from the capital of Yugoslavia to oust American Serb religious leaders.

One American taxpayer, retired businessman R. J. Ausfahl of Dallas, decided to learn first hand what happens to U.S. foreign aid money after it leaves this country. His findings were:

"Among the objectives of our foreign aid programs is to give assistance to the less-fortunate peoples of the world...Few of us would deny assistance to the sick, miserably-housed and poverty-stricken in Asia and Africa. The sorry part is that, with all the billions of tax dollars that have been contributed to these areas, the less fortunate have benefited only to the extent of wages received from work on some of our idiotic and ridiculous projects.

"My criticism of foreign aid is based entirely on personal, on-the-spot observations of many of our projects in 14 countries of Asia and Africa, plus 8 years' residence in South America. No accusations are made of graft or thievery.

"Space limits me to descriptions of a few projects. There are dozens more, equally as ridiculous as the following examples.

The following paragraph sets the stage for a comparison.

"Illinois Route 74, a recently constructed highway I have watched progress, is a four-lane concrete artery that passes through high-priced farmland. Millions of yards of earth were moved in construction of overpasses. Average wages paid were roughly $3 per hour. The cost was $700,000 per milee.

"Contrast this with the cost of a foreign-aid road in Saigon, South Vietnam. American contractors and engineers using identically the same equipment as was used on Illinois No. 74 were completing the first 18-mile leg of a proposed 250-mile road. This road was largely of 2-lane, concrete construction that originated in the city but terminated in the flat virgin jungle. There was one short piece of overpass over the railroad tracks. Wages paid were from 6 to 32 cents per hour, with an average of 12 cents.

"The cost was about $4 million per mile.

"I questioned local people as to why such a road had been built and got this answer: "So the fat Chinaman with the automobile can take his wife out riding on Sunday afternoon.'

"Kosichang, Thailand, is a small town, built on a mountainside. The cobblestone surface on a street in the outer edge of town had been replaced with a concrete street complete with gutters. The oddity of this project we supplied was that there wasn't a car, truck, or even a bicycle in the town. But they did have a street for an occasional two-wheel oxcart.

"Djibouti, French Somaliland, had another example of American generosity. Fifty assorted sizes of trucks were stored on a vacant lot ajoining the dock. They had never been uncrated and had stood there so long that the red in the clasped-hands insignia of foreign aid had faded to pink. "A search through he city and surrounding area disclosed no construction projects.

"Inquiry as to why the trucks were not being used brought the answer, "Nobody knows now to drive or service them.'

"Rougly 95 percent of the peoples of Asia and Africa are illiterate and have insufficient income for the bare necessities of life.

"In my travels I found there was little evidence the foreign aid was being used for educational purposes. The general attitude of the 5 percent toward the 95 percent seemde to be that the latter are dumb and that it is better to keep them that way. Communism thrives on ignorance, yet (foreign aid) give-away ignores, education and embarks on ridiculous grandiose projects to demonstrate how we do it in the U.S.A."

Mail Box

To The Editor:
Sikeston, Mo.

Sir:

I write this letter to you with a certain amount of anxiety and misgivings, but a strong sense of conscience and devotion to the profession and vocation that God has lain upon me, compells me to speak out. I am speaking of the large number of "George Wallace for President" stickers that I have seen in our county.

Now I recognize that a man's politics is a personal matter and that it should not be tampered with, but as one of those men set aside by God to be a leader, in guiding the consciences and hearts of men, thru love and understanding, I feel the need to turn on the "Lamp of Understanding."

One of our great leaders said that; "We have nothing to Fear but Fear itself," and this is appropriate advice for today. The unrealistic candidacy and campaign of governor Wallace is based on fear and superstition. He calls for law and order, suppression of the anarchists and the stopping of the intellectual, all, of whom, he feels are a threat to our way of life.

Now let us, through honesty and objectivity, look at the facts, Governor Wallace calls for law and order but this is the same man that was conspicously silent when an unruly crowd of white persons were in evidence around central high school, Little Rock, Ark., during the attempt of law abiding Negro families to integrate it; when ministers, nuns and dedicated laymen marched in Montgomery, Alabama's freedom march, and state and local policemen attacked them; when the dogs and water hoses, in Birmingham, stopped the efforts of peaceful assembly by loyal citizens; when a bomb was tossed into a Birmingham church, on that Sunday morning, killing three innocent children; when the unruly crowd of people, led by former U.S. Army General Walker of Dallas, Texas, attempted to disrupt the integration of the university of Mississippi by battling U.S. marshalls and this is the same man who thumbed his nose at his own people, when they voted that a man could not serve more than two terms as governor, by running his wife as a stand-in for himself.

Governor Wallace calls for suppression of the anarchist but this is the same man who defied the entire country by physically standing in the door of the university of Alabama to stop integration, decreed by the Federal Government; this is the same man that advocates dissolving the the supreme court and the Federal Government. He derides the intellectual, while riding from state to state, in an airplane designed and conceived by them, he runs his state with computors and methods brought on by the intellectual, he is living in a country, blessed with an advanced technology, thanks to our intellectuals, therefore his thesis is not logical.

I therefore submit to you that the remark of the governor, that; "All Lawbreakers should be shot," could turn out to be fatal to him, as the first funeral held, would be his.

Investigate the number of "United Methodist" ministers who have been forced to leave the state of Alabama, because of the Wallace regime.

I admonish your readers, Sir, to refrain from being led by patrotic sounding phrases and emotionalism but by honest soul searching and by God. I believe, then, if God leads them they will be led in another direction pointing to decency rather then to density.

Thank you Sir, and may God's richest blessings be on you and all who read this honest thought.

To the Editor,
Daily Sikeston Standard
Dear Sir,

I am enclosing the editoral section which was recently published in The Daily Dunklin Democrat, in Kennett, Mo., which I have just received. This plea by Publisher Jack Stapleton, Jr., I feel should be read by every American Citizen, and acted on if for no reason than to pay a Tribute to her husband who gave his life for each and everyone of us.

To take time to write a card or letter is the lest we can do to say "Thank You" to this young widow, who gave us her husband. Echo is a very nice young girl, whom I know personally as a member of her family.

It is very difficult for us to understand why this is happing to a person who has been of no trouble to anyone. When we stop to think how much trouble we have with our own people. Really, I can't help wonder why she would want to stay with so much turmoil in our land. Don't get me wrong I love my Country more with each passing day. But each day also, I ask myself why must it be this way.

So I am asking each of you to send a card or letter today. To show Echo and the rest of the world that we are truly Americans who have the right to stand up and be counted when it comes to what we believe in. And to say "Thank You" to all the boys, and families, who have died for you and I.

Mrs. Glenda Wasson,
Sikeston, Mo.

Please find an self-addressed envelope enclosed, as I would like to have the writing returned to me as soon as you are finished.

Drew Pearson Special

EDITORS: For your information and publication if desired most congressmen honestbut cut corners, Pearson contends

Drew Pearson, interviewed by Mike Wallace on the CBS radio show "dimension," declared that while an overwhelming majority of congressmen are honest but that many of them "cut corners."

Asked about the new book, "The Case Against Congress," he wrote with Jack Anderson, Pearson told Wallace that most congressmen are good men. He added:

"There's a lot of cutting corners, such as relatives on the payroll, such as junkets abroad. There's nothing illegal about this, but still the public gets pretty fed up with things such as taking your office allowance and spending it on your own law office.

"We point out in this book that there 300 congressmen have law firms, and it's pretty hard to differentiate, draw the line, as between when they're practicingfortheir law firms, and when they're practicing for the government, sometimes on the floor of the congress."

Wallace then wondered if alcoholism is much of a problem in Washington. Pearson said:

"Not with a majority, but with a minority it is. This is one of the problems of Adam Clayton Powell and one of theproblems of Tom Dodd. I've publicly called attention to the fact that Senator Long of Louisiana, who's a very fine senator, I think, he has problem late in the afternoon and he's told me, 'Drew, you're.wrong about my like of bourbon. You're absolutely wrong -- it's scotch!'

"Mendel Rivers has said several times, 'Drew Pearson's got me on the wagon.' That is correct, and he has been on the wagon interminably, but he has fallen off on occasion.

Wallace asked Pearson how he started to specialize in Washington exposes. Pearson explained:

"I think it goes back to the Hoover administration when Bob Allen and I wrote a book, 'The WAshington Merrygoround,' because there was so much news that we saw not being published. Those were the rather complacent days of Herbert Hoover and you have a big majority of the newspapers, then and now, which are Republican and they glanceover a lot of things. So we wrote a book, and it was a best seller and we were both fired from our jobs as a result of that book. So we started writing a column daily to write the same kind of exposes."

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Do you think there might be any chance of at least getting myself as far as the Golden Gates with my "good intentions"? I'm one of these good thinkers that never makes it around to the good doings bit, you know sort of thoughtful and thoughtless all at the same time. For example, I'll hear someone's been taken to the hospital for major surgery and immediately I'm all contrite, heartsick, and running down a list of a dozen different things to do -- send them flowers, or would they prefer a book, or a card with a personal note in it, or perhaps it would be better to cook a meal for their family at home, or maybe offer to take the children off their hands for an evening, or and so on, and on, and on, and meanwhile, I get busy on one of the courtless tasks I have to do at home and the next time I think about what I should have done is when I'm walking down the street and came face to face with the patient herself, (the whole problem being that the doctors don't keep anyone in the hospital long enough these days for me to get around to getting my good deeds one!).

And it's not only the ill I neglect, it's even my own family and myself. I'm always full of good intentions when school first starts as to how I will arise early, put on a lovely robe (the first thing I'd better do there is go out and buy one, mine looks like I've just been through the battle of Gettysburg in them), and makeup, and sally forth to the kitchen to prepare a lovely breakfast, served with a clean cloth, and flowers on the table to start the day of my three fellas off right. Hasn't happened yet! Instead, they've had no flowers, a dirty cloth, cold cereal with peanut butter toast, and a mother to serve it who not only looked like she'd been through that famous battle, but that she had been on the Confederate side as well!

And now that Brete is off to kindergarten for the morning do I get myself bathed, perfumed, heeled and madeup to spend a glamourous day mopping, washing, and sweeping like Doris Day does in all her movies? Nah, I still do my chores dressed worse than any maid, and if I have to go to the store for something I just put on my sunglasses and pray I pass incognito -- that intention usually fails too, cause never am I hailed and greeted by so many friends as when I look like a slob, but just let me finally get the house and myself clean at the same time, and you guessed it, no company until both are good and dirty again. I'd just like to know how come dirt attracts friends? Oh well, such is life, and at least my thoughts are good ones even if my actions aren't and from what I read in the papers these days even that in itself is unusual!!

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

MISSOURI, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WORKING TOGETHER -- As example of the growing Federal-State- local partnership in helping to meet problems in our State, following is a summary of some of the programs, loans and grants announced in a recent typical week:

Kansas City and St. Louis were among 26 cities designated to participate in a Small Business Administration program to stimulate minority-owned businesses in inner cities.

Missouri was named by the Labor Department to participate in its Work Incentive project and will receive $2,285,847 to provide training for 1,800 persons on welfare.

Poplar Bluff received a $265,000 Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant for improvements in its water system.

Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis received an Army contract of $4.5 million for parts for artillery shells.

Missouri Southern College in Joplin received a loan for $1,348,000 from HUD for two new dormitories, one for men andone for women.

St. Louis received $60,000 from HUD for planning 1500 new low-rent homes.

The Labor Department approved Manpower Development and Training Act projects for Hannibal, St. Joseph, Chillicothe, Flat River, Sikeston and Kansas City.

The Office of Economic Opportunity approved $804-826 to the State of Missouri for training 770 migrant and seasonal farm workers.

MERAMEC RIVER BASIN STUDY PLANNED - Findings in the joint study by the National Park Service and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the national recreation area potential of the Meramec River Basin are to be reported to the Secretary of the Interior in December, 1968.

Because it adjoins and is a part of the heavily populated region of GreaterSt. Louis, there is broad interest in this study. The Interior Department has assured that full consideration will be given to all recreation potential in both the Lower and upper portions of the Basin.

MISSOURI SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS - This past week has been taken up by Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Treaty of Non-proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and gun control legislation debate on the Senate floor.

However, I was able to be in Missouri this past weekend for speaking engagements including the annual meeting of the Mo-Ark Flood Control Association, the Big Brothers banquet in Kansas City, and dedication of the newairport in Clinton.

Foreign Aid Needs A Sanity Clause

Let's take a look at what recently came out of Santa's bag of goodies. A breakdown of U.S. aid spending for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962, showed that of 107 recipients, India accounted for nearly twice as much as any other nation. Pakistan, which received almost $404 million, was second, followed by Turkey, Korea, Vietnam, Brazil, Chile, the United Arab Republic, the Republic of China and Mexico, in that order.

The European nation receiving the most U.S. aid was Yugoslavia, which ranked 13th among all recipients. Altogether, more than $2 billion in U.S. aid has gone to hat nation. Apparently Tito doesn't think he has to be a good boy in order to have a visit from Santa Claus. The acting chairman of the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee has stated that there is a "planned campaign of physical violence" directed from the capital of Yugoslavia to oust American Serb religious leaders.

One American taxpayer, retired businessman R. J. Ausfahl of Dallas, decided to learn first hand what happens to U.S. foreign aid money after it leaves this country. His findings were:

"Among the objectives of our foreign aid programs is to give assistance to the less-fortunate peoples of the world...Few of us would deny assistance to the sick, miserably-housed and poverty-stricken in Asia and Africa. The sorry part is that, with all the billions of tax dollars that have been contributed to these areas, the less fortunate have benefited only to the extent of wages received from work on some of our idiotic and ridiculous projects.

"My criticism of foreign aid is based entirely on personal, on-the-spot observations of many of our projects in 14 countries of Asia and Africa, plus 8 years' residence in South America. No accusations are made of graft or thievery.

"Space limits me to descriptions of a few projects. There are dozens more, equally as ridiculous as the following examples.

The following paragraph sets the stage for a comparison.

"Illinois Route 74, a recently constructed highway I have watched progress, is a four-lane concrete artery that passes through high-priced farmland. Millions of yards of earth were moved in construction of overpasses. Average wages paid were roughly $3 per hour. The cost was $700,000 per milee.

"Contrast this with the cost of a foreign-aid road in Saigon, South Vietnam. American contractors and engineers using identically the same equipment as was used on Illinois No. 74 were completing the first 18-mile leg of a proposed 250-mile road. This road was largely of 2-lane, concrete construction that originated in the city but terminated in the flat virgin jungle. There was one short piece of overpass over the railroad tracks. Wages paid were from 6 to 32 cents per hour, with an average of 12 cents.

"The cost was about $4 million per mile.

"I questioned local people as to why such a road had been built and got this answer: "So the fat Chinaman with the automobile can take his wife out riding on Sunday afternoon.'

"Kosichang, Thailand, is a small town, built on a mountainside. The cobblestone surface on a street in the outer edge of town had been replaced with a concrete street complete with gutters. The oddity of this project we supplied was that there wasn't a car, truck, or even a bicycle in the town. But they did have a street for an occasional two-wheel oxcart.

"Djibouti, French Somaliland, had another example of American generosity. Fifty assorted sizes of trucks were stored on a vacant lot ajoining the dock. They had never been uncrated and had stood there so long that the red in the clasped-hands insignia of foreign aid had faded to pink. "A search through he city and surrounding area disclosed no construction projects.

"Inquiry as to why the trucks were not being used brought the answer, "Nobody knows how to drive or service them.'

"Rougly 95 percent of the peoples of Asia and Africa are illiterate and have insufficient income for the bare necessities of life.

"In my travels I found there was little evidence the foreign aid was being used for educational purposes. The general attitude of the 5 percent toward the 95 percent seemde to be that the latter are dumb and that it is better to keep them that way. Communism thrives on ignorance, yet (foreign aid) give-away ignores, education and embarks on ridiculous grandiose projects to demonstrate how we do it in the U.S.A."

Mail Box

To The Editor:
Sikeston, Mo.

Sir:

I write this letter to you with a certain amount of anxiety and misgivings, but a strong sense of conscience and devotion to the profession and vocation that God has lain upon me, compells me to speak out. I am speaking of the large number of "George Wallace for President" stickers that I have seen in our county.

Now I recognize that a man's politics is a personal matter and that it should not be tampered with, but as one of those men set aside by God to be a leader, in guiding the consciences and hearts of men, thru love and understanding, I feel the need to turn on the "Lamp of Understanding."

One of our great leaders said that; "We have nothing to Fear but Fear itself," and this is appropriate advice for today. The unrealistic candidacy and campaign of governor Wallace is based on fear and superstition. He calls for law and order, suppression of the anarchists and the stopping of the intellectual, all, of whom, he feels are a threat to our way of life.

Now let us, through honesty and objectivity, look at the facts, Governor Wallace calls for law and order but this is the same man that was conspicously silent when an unruly crowd of white persons were in evidence around central high school, Little Rock, Ark., during the attempt of law abiding Negro families to integrate it; when ministers, nuns and dedicated laymen marched in Montgomery, Alabama's freedom march, and state and local policemen attacked them; when the dogs and water hoses, in Birmingham, stopped the efforts of peaceful assembly by loyal citizens; when a bomb was tossed into a Birmingham church, on that Sunday morning, killing three innocent children; when the unruly crowd of people, led by former U.S. Army General Walker of Dallas, Texas, attempted to disrupt the integration of the university of Mississippi by battling U.S. marshalls and this is the same man who thumbed his nose at his own people, when they voted that a man could not serve more than two terms as governor, by running his wife as a stand-in for himself.

Governor Wallace calls for suppression of the anarchist but this is the same man who defied the entire country by physically standing in the door of the university of Alabama to stop integration, decreed by the Federal Government; this is the same man that advocates dissolving the the supreme court and the Federal Government. He derides the intellectual, while riding from state to state, in an airplane designed and conceived by them, he runs his state with computors and methods brought on by the intellectual, he is living in a country, blessed with an advanced technology, thanks to our intellectuals, therefore his thesis is not logical.

I therefore submit to you that the remark of the governor, that; "All Lawbreakers should be shot," could turn out to be fatal to him, as the first funeral held, would be his.

Investigate the number of "United Methodist" ministers who have been forced to leave the state of Alabama, because of the Wallace regime.

I admonish your readers, Sir, to refrain from being led by patrotic sounding phrases and emotionalism but by honest soul searching and by God. I believe, then, if God leads them they will be led in another direction pointing to decency rather then to density.

Thank you Sir, and may God's richest blessings be on you and all who read this honest thought.

To the Editor,
Daily Sikeston Standard
Dear Sir,

I am enclosing the editoral section which was recently published in The Daily Dunklin Democrat, in Kennett, Mo., which I have just received. This plea by Publisher Jack Stapleton, Jr., I feel should be read by every American Citizen, and acted on if for no reason than to pay a Tribute to her husband who gave his life for each and everyone of us.

To take time to write a card or letter is the lest we can do to say "Thank You" to this young widow, who gave us her husband. Echo is a very nice young girl, whom I know personally as a member of her family.

It is very difficult for us to understand why this is happing to a person who has been of no trouble to anyone. When we stop to think how much trouble we have with our own people. Really, I can't help wonder why she would want to stay with so much turmoil in our land. Don't get me wrong I love my Country more with each passing day. But each day also, I ask myself why must it be this way.

So I am asking each of you to send a card or letter today. To show Echo and the rest of the world that we are truly Americans who have the right to stand up and be counted when it comes to what we believe in. And to say "Thank You" to all the boys, and families, who have died for you and I.

Mrs. Glenda Wasson,
Sikeston, Mo.

Please find an self-addressed envelope enclosed, as I would like to have the writing returned to me as soon as you are finished.

Drew Pearson Special

EDITORS: For your information and publication if desired most congressmen honestbut cut corners, Pearson contends

Drew Pearson, interviewed by Mike Wallace on the CBS radio show "dimension," declared that while an overwhelming majority of congressmen are honest but that many of them "cut corners."

Asked about the new book, "The Case Against Congress," he wrote with Jack Anderson, Pearson told Wallace that most congressmen are good men. He added:

"There's a lot of cutting corners, such as relatives on the payroll, such as junkets abroad. There's nothing illegal about this, but still the public gets pretty fed up with things such as taking your office allowance and spending it on your own law office.

"We point out in this book that there 300 congressmen have law firms, and it's pretty hard to differentiate, draw the line, as between when they're practicingfortheir law firms, and when they're practicing for the government, sometimes on the floor of the congress."

Wallace then wondered if alcoholism is much of a problem in Washington. Pearson said:

"Not with a majority, but with a minority it is. This is one of the problems of Adam Clayton Powell and one of theproblems of Tom Dodd. I've publicly called attention to the fact that Senator Long of Louisiana, who's a very fine senator, I think, he has problem late in the afternoon and he's told me, 'Drew, you're.wrong about my like of bourbon. You're absolutely wrong -- it's scotch!'

"Mendel Rivers has said several times, 'Drew Pearson's got me on the wagon.' That is correct, and he has been on the wagon interminably, but he has fallen off on occasion.

Wallace asked Pearson how he started to specialize in Washington exposes. Pearson explained:

"I think it goes back to the Hoover administration when Bob Allen and I wrote a book, 'The Washington Merrygoround,' because there was so much news that we saw not being published. Those were the rather complacent days of Herbert Hoover and you have a big majority of the newspapers, then and now, which are Republican and they glanceover a lot of things. So we wrote a book, and it was a best seller and we were both fired from our jobs as a result of that book. So we started writing a column daily to write the same kind of exposes."

Do you think there might be any chance of at least getting myself as far as the Golden Gates with my "good intentions"? I'm one of these good thinkers that never makes it around to the good doings bit, you know sort of thoughtful and thoughtless all at the same time. For example, I'll hear someone's been taken to the hospital for major surgery and immediately I'm all contrite, heartsick, and running down a list of a dozen different things to do -- send them flowers, or would they prefer a book, or a card with a personal note in it, or perhaps it would be better to cook a meal for their family at home, or maybe offer to take the children off their hands for an evening, or and so on, and on, and on, and meanwhile, I get busy on one of the courtless tasks I have to do at home and the next time I think about what I should have done is when I'm walking down the street and came face to face with the patient herself, (the whole problem being that the doctors don't keep anyone in the hospital long enough these days for me to get around to getting my good deeds one!).
